One day of peace for the weary world

Combined News Services

The bombers ceased their pounding of North Vietnam, Roman Catholic and Protestant leaders of Northern Ireland gathered together for a peace rally and thousands of U. S. residents donated food and clothing for the relief effort in the earthquake-shaken land of Nicaragua.

Slowly the earth turned today from Christmas Eve to Christmas, a moment of peace in a troubled, changing world. The message, as always, was of faith and hope — and of joy to millions spared the blows of bomb and quake.

Christian pilgrims trekked into Bethlehem as 19 choirs caroled throughout the ancient Judean hill-top town and Israeli troops stood guard against any attempts to disrupt the festivities.

Pope Paul VI, speaking to a Christmas Eve audience, said he approached the joyous holiday with a saddened heart because there still was no peace settlement in Vietnam. It was the fifth time in a week the Pope had appealed for peace. (Story, Picture, Page A-2)

The devastation in the Nicaraguan capital of Managua made it difficult for many not to dig down in pockets already depleted by Christmas shopping and give a little bit more.

... No tundra Santa Claus in Nicaragua. (There will be no Santa Claus in Nicaragua), said a radio announcer over a Spanish-language radio station in Miami and hundreds responded with gifts of food and clothing.

The bombs stopped in Vietnam as President Nixon ordered a 24-hour halt from the Florida White House at Key Biscayne. But officials with Nixon refused to comment on whether the cessation might continue after the truce expired at 5 a.m. Christmas Day.

In troubled Northern Ireland, police reported both a Christmas Eve peace rally by Roman Catholic and Protestant leaders and a memorial service in Belfast for Protestants killed during the year passed without violence in a jovial atmosphere.

In Bethlehem, thousands of Christian pilgrims from around the world celebrated in the little town to mark the eve of the birth of Jesus while the Israeli troops and other security forces stood guard.

The 19 choirs, 11 of them from overseas, caroled throughout the town while pilgrims and tourists concentrated in Manger Square bundled against clear but unnaturally cold weather that dipped the nighttime thermometer to 28 degrees.

Managuans stream from ruined city

By MATTHEW KENNY

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI)—Thousands of Nicaraguans began a mass exodus from the earthquake-shattered capital city Sunday, leaving the smoldering ruins of Managua almost a ghost town.

In a similar but smaller exodus, hundreds of Americans who were in Managua when the devastating tremors shook the city Saturday morning were leaving aboard transport planes ferrying badly needed medical and food supplies to the Central American capital from the United States.

Gen. Anastasio Somoza, former president and still military strongman, said at least 70 per cent of Managua was demolished by the quakes. Tremors still shook the smoldering ruins of the city 36 hours after the first shock.

"WE HAVE OFFICIALLY buried more than 800 persons," Somoza said Sunday. "But we have no figures on the total number of dead." Burial details were reported busy all day.

Lt. Col. Jose Alagret, commander of the Army Corps of Engineers, estimated the total number of dead would range from 10,000 to 12,000. More than 20,000 were injured and as many as 200,000 homeless, he said.

Thousands of bodies were buried and reports said many were burned in fires set off by the earthquake. Another report picked up by ham radio operators in the United States said government officials had started dynamiting in some sections of the city.

Other reports reaching the United States Sunday night indicated the government was asking for aid in the form of medical supplies first and food second.

Doctor and nurse teams also were arriving from several countries including the United States.

SOMOZA, WHO IMPOSED martial law to facilitate control of refugee movement, received a telephone call Sunday morning from President Nixon who offered U.S. assistance in the emergency relief and rebuilding efforts facing the capital. Nixon told

11th B52 lost before 24-hour bombing halt

SAIGON (UPI) — American bombers that pounded Communist targets in Hanoi for seven consecutive days took a Christmas holiday Sunday, but not before the 11th B52 bomber was shot down flying in the heaviest raids of the war over North Vietnam.

Officials at the Florida White House at Key Biscayne said President Nixon had ordered a 24-hour Christmas

Xuan Thuy, North Vietnam's chief negotiator in Paris, tells U.S. television audience there will be no resumption in peace negotiations until the bombing in the North is halted. Page A-12.

Eve halt. But they refused to comment on whether the cessation might continue after the holiday truce expired at 5 a.m. Christmas Day.

Nixon, disappointed by the failure of his efforts to bring home U.S. prisoners of war in time for Christmas, ignored antiwar demonstrators outside his vacation home and settled down Sunday to a quiet holiday with his wife. (Related stories, Pages A-10, 11.)

THE U.S. COMMAND in Saigon refused to comment on all questions regarding a temporary bombing halt. But informed sources indicated the bombing had been halted, including in the Hanoi-Haiphong area which Nixon put off limits Oct. 23 to show American goodwill in attempts to work out a peace settlement.

In the ground war, both North and South Vietnamese ground troops have declared 24-hour truces, but there were several reports of fighting.

Nixon ordered full-scale bombing of the North resumed last Monday and since then American warplanes have been pounding the area in around-the-clock raids.

Earlier, the U.S. command said another B52 crashed because of damage from North Vietnamese fire and a smaller F4 fighter-bomber was downed near Haiphong. The B52 crashed in Laos and at least one crewman was missing. It was the 11th B52 shot down since President Nixon ordered resumption of the bombing in the Hanoi-Haiphong area Dec. 18.

THE TWO NAVY crew members of the F4 Phantom ejected into the Tonkin Gulf and were rescued. The command said the cause of the downing was unknown.

At least 10 other Americans were reported missing in Laos after their AC130 Spectre gunship was shot down. The command said the plane, which normally carries a crew of 12, was shot down Thursday. Two of the men were rescued.

American losses over North Vietnam since Dec. 12 have been the heaviest of the war. At least 56 American fliers are missing and 14 planes have been shot down.

The President was reported by his spokesman to be pursuing all avenues possible for resuming the talks in Paris on ending the Vietnam conflict.

To combat heart disease

AMA calls for U.S. diet switch

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

The American Medical Association, in an about face, today called for sweeping changes in the diet of most American adults in an attempt to prevent development of coronary heart disease.

The AMA, through its Council on Foods and Nutrition, was joined in the new policy statement by the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Academy of Sciences National Research Council.

The statement is cautiously worded, but careful reading reveals that the new recommendations, if heeded, would mean a drastic change in the dietary habits of a majority of American adults.

Medical observers say that the AMA's Council on Foods and Nutrition has been trying for three years to achieve a consensus for revising its earlier stand on diet and heart disease.

Earlier, the AMA regarded dietary manipulation as an appropriate management technique only for those persons predisposed to frank blood-fat disease. It did not advocate dietary revisions for the general population.

Activists on the council have long been seeking a stronger statement.

No reference is made in today's statement to earlier controversy between the AMA and the American Heart Association in regard to change in dietary habits.

Today's statement, published in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, states:

"In summary, the average level of plasma lipids (blood fats) in most American men and women is undesirably elevated."

The first recommendation is that measurement of blood fats, particularly that of cholesterol, should become a routine part of all physical examinations beginning in early adulthood. Such exams should be repeated at intervals throughout life.

Cholesterol is a fat-like substance, excessive amounts of which in the blood can lead to heart attacks, medical authorities say.

The second recommendation is that persons falling into risk categories on the basis of blood-fat levels should be made aware of their risk and should receive appropriate dietary advice.

Modified and ordinary foods useful for the purpose of dietary modification

Truman worsens

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Doctors treating former President Harry S. Truman said Sunday his kidney efficiency had fallen to its worst level since his hospitalization almost three weeks ago. Truman's weakened heart also began to beat irregularly.

His wife, Bess, 87, maintained a Christmas Eve vigil at the bedside of the 88-year-old former chief executive, then went home at midnight. Truman was listed in critical condition and was in a coma for the second day.

$200,000 fire damage

Fire engulfed a department store warehouse in Bellflower Sunday night, gutting the building and destroying an estimated $200,000 in retail merchandise.

15220 Lakewood Blvd., was raging out of control when county firemen arrived about 6 p.m. Asst. Chief Ron King said. Thirteen fire-fighting units and more than 50 men were needed to contain the blaze in the single-story 80 by 200-foot stucco building.

Seaboard Distributing Co. is a wholesale outlet and warehouse firm for Merit and Sad Sack Department Stores throughout the Southland.

King said the unexplained fire was discovered about 5:50 p.m. in the industrial neighborhood. A security guard said the building had been closed since Friday afternoon.

An L-shaped addition to the main building was saved, King said, and the contents of clothing suffered only minimal smoke damage, he added.

Pope celebrates Christmas with workers

Combined News Services

Pope Paul VI left the Vatican Sunday night to celebrate the arrival of Christmas among construction workers in Sant' Oreste, Italy, and descend to the depths of one of Europe's longest railway tunnels.

Earlier Sunday the pontiff told a Christmas Eve audience he was saddened by failure of the United States and North Vietnam to reach a peace settlement and end the fighting.

It was the fifth time in a week that the Pope appealed for peace and the fourth time he specifically mentioned the delayed agreement and increased hostility.

The Pope was driven by Jeep nearly two miles down the tunnel underneath Mt. Soratte, a 50-mile journey north of Rome.

The normally ear-splitting compressors and jack hammers were silent during the Pope's underground visit but the hum of machinery pumping air into the tunnel could still be heard along with the gushing of water being pumped out.

The pontiff unveiled a plaque at approximately the half-way point of the tunnel which eventually will carry 150-mile-per-hour trains between Rome and Florence.

After praying with the construction workers, the Pope knelt before a manger scene made of rocks from the construction site by a nearby community of cloistered nuns.

He then left the tunnel to celebrate midnight Mass under the stars for the construction workers, their families who came from all parts of Italy and for local villagers.

It was the first time the Pope had left the Vatican on Christmas Eve since he celebrated Mass in a steel mill at Toronto in 1969.

Regal return

Breaking an eight-year self-exile, Badshah Khan Abdul Ghafoor Khan, 82, the symbol of nationhood for millions of Pathan tribesmen, rolled across the border near Peshawar, Pakistan, Sunday sitting in a gold-upholstered armchair mounted on a truck.

His procession wound for more than four hours through the historic Khyber Pass and turned into the biggest traffic jam in the pass since Emperor Nadir Shah used elephants to carry the peacock throne and other loot from Delhi into Persia two centuries ago.

Greek Yule

President Nixon's elder daughter, Tricia, and her husband, Edward Cox, arrived in Athens Sunday to spend the Christmas holidays.

They joined the President's younger daughter, Julie, who is here with her husband, Ensign David E. Senhoffer, assigned to a U.S. Navy 6th Fleet ship.

The Coxes plan some sightseeing before leaving for Moscow to continue a European vacation.

Unexpected

Evelyn Wadsworth Symington, wife of Missouri's senior U.S. senator, died unexpectedly of an apparent heart attack Sunday. She was 69.

Sen. Stuart Symington, who has represented Missouri in the Senate since 1952, and the couple's son, Rep. James Symington, D-Mo., had accompanied her to the hospital.

Muscleman

Charles Atlas, the 88-pound weakling who built himself into a famous muscleman and told millions of others how to do it, died Saturday in Long Beach, N.Y. from a prolonged heart ailment. He was 80.

Beginning in 1922, Atlas offered his secrets in a body building correspondence course. Advertisements with a picture of his rippling torso became staples in comic books and popular magazines.

He once explained that his claim to be able to turn scrawny kids into strongmen who could ward off bullies was based on a personal experience that cost him his girlfriend when he was 16.

Way clear

Rabbi Meir Kahane, leader of the militant Jewish Defense League, formally received Israeli citizenship Sunday in Jerusalem, clearing the way for him to head a slate in next year's Knesset (parliamentary) elections.

Kahane said he would ask a district court next week to return his U.S. passport, making possible an American campus lecture tour.

Kahane's passport was confiscated Oct. 6 as a condition to his release on bail of $9,500 in a case involving attempted weapons smuggling overseas for alleged use against Arab guerrillas.

Royal wedding

King Hussein stands beside his bride after simple wedding at her parents' home in Amman Sunday. Unlike his British-born second wife, whom he divorced three days ago, Hussein's new bride will be his queen because she is Arab and Moslem as the constitution requires.

Fence mending

Israeli Premier Golda Meir will visit France next month to attend a meeting of socialist leaders and possibly to hold political talks that could help thaw the five-year-old freeze in French-Israeli relations, it was announced in Jerusalem Sunday.

Court blocks Nixon football plea

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court refused Sunday to hear an appeal to lift a local television blackout of the National Football League playoff game between Green Bay and Washington. The appeal, relayed by limousine in predawn darkness, and its subsequent denial issued just hours before the noon EST kickoff, was a major defeat for the nation's most prominent sports fan — President Nixon. Through Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst, the President last week asked that the ban be lifted for this Washington game and any other NFL playoff game sold out 48 hours in advance of the kickoff. NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle refused.

Holiday toll mounts

INTERNATIONAL

Ulster enjoys quietest day in year

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Police reported no major violence in Northern Ireland Sunday for the first time in at least a year. They said gunmen on both sides of the feuding sectarian forces apparently were observing a Christmas truce. Religious leaders said they expected thousands of Roman Catholics and Protestants to attend an interdenominational peace rally in Belfast Christmas Eve. Protestant militants said a similar number would attend a memorial service for Protestants killed in the past year. Police said a few isolated incidents occurred during the night, but that they were "very minor." Nobody was hurt or killed and no property was damaged. "This has been the quietest day we have had for as long as I can remember," one police official said. Thus far, 676 persons have died in more than three years of violence involving Catholics, Protestants and British security forces.

Political prisoners freed

MANILA — Four congressmen and three city mayors were among the 76 political prisoners released Sunday by the Philippine authorities. This brought to 244 the number of political detainees given "temporary liberty" since early this month. Earlier, military authorities announced the release of 120 prisoners, including 81 persons to be freed on Christmas Eve from the military stockade in Camp Olivas, Pampanga, 40 miles north of Manila.

Error ends 25 years of silence

TEL AVIV — An Israeli telephone exchange supervisor told Sunday about her conversation Friday with a Lebanese operator — the first reported civilian call between the neighboring countries in 25 years.

"I really don't know who connected us," said Mrs. Seule Speer, the operator at the Tel Aviv overseas exchange. "One of my girls called me over and said it's Beirut on the line, so I figured there must have been a mistake."

The Lebanese operator told the Israeli switchboard she was trying to get a Rome number.

Mrs. Speer, who spoke "for quite a while" with her counterpart, said "we could have gone on talking for half a day but apparently she decided to hang up and said it looked like there had been a foulup on the line."

"I guess she was a bit scared then," Mrs. Speer said.

Regular contacts between Israel and Lebanon, which signed an armistice but no peace treaty after the 1948-49 Arab-Israeli war, are limited to brief sentences between security personnel at a single border crossing normally closed to traffic.

Refinery fire kills 1

DORAVILLE, Ga. — At least one man was killed Sunday night when an explosion in an oil pipeline touched off a fire at a refinery where a massive gasoline storage tank fire last spring that claimed two lives. DeKalb County authorities said they believed the victim, an employee of the refinery, was killed as he attempted to cut off a valve feeding fuel into a main pipeline where the roaring fire erupted. The fire had been extinguished about two hours after it broke out.

Gaza refugees relocated

RAFAH, Israel-occupied Gaza Strip — The first of 105 Arab families in the occupied Gaza Strip, ordered to relocate as part of a massive refugee camp reconstruction program abandoned their dwellings Sunday. Some families began to dismantle their own houses so they could haul away the bricks for use in building additions to their new government-built homes. The relocation operation is part of a drive to amalgamate the camps with adjoining towns and villages. Meanwhile, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has summoned the national security council to an emergency session Tuesday to consider the military preparations against Israel and ways of preserving the unity of the "domestic front," Cairo newspapers said Sunday.

African plea to Pope

NAIROBI, Kenya — An African religious leader Sunday asked Pope Paul VI to abandon the Roman Catholic Church's traditional alliance with Portugal. Canon Burgess Carr, general secretary of the Nairobi-based All-Africa Conference of Churches, also urged the Portuguese to negotiate with leaders of independence movements in Portugal's African territories. Carr said he was making the Christmas appeal to Pope Paul, in a cable, on behalf of 149 million Christians in Africa.

Bob Hope ends Viet tour; 'sad' on peace

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

SAIGON (AP) — Bob Hope's longest running hit, "The Road to Vietnam," ended a 9-year run Sunday without the champagne party for peace he had been planning as a triumphant tour finale.

"We feel real bad about this," said Hope, mopping his brow after a farewell Vietnam performance for 6,000 troops on a sun-scorched athletic field near Saigon's Tan Son Nhut air field.

"The morale of these kids is a lot better than mine. They know they got a job to do and we're so close to finishing it."

The comedian received South Vietnam's highest civilian medal after winding up his Saigon show. He said he was hoping for a peace that "lives and lasts for a long, long time."

HOPE SAID that after nine years of Christmas shows in Vietnam, receiving the Kim Khanh Medal and two other Vietnamese awards "sort of climaxes the whole thing for me."

At a news conference before the award ceremony in the general's mess at Tan Son Nhut Airport, Hope said this was his last big Christmas tour to military installations abroad. But after receiving the three medals, he cracked: "I may come back — I may come back just to wear the medals around here."

Then, turning to the South Vietnamese officials present at the awards ceremony, he said: "I do hope that you get the peace that you deserve — a just peace — and I hope that it lives and lasts for a long long time. God bless you."

ON STAGE the veteran 68-year-old performer hid his disappointment at the collapse of cease-fire negotiations behind a barrage of topical rapid-fire quips aimed at a variety of sacred cow targets.

On cease-fire: "We came out here prepared for peace . . . not only did they fail to reach an agreement in Paris, but now they're fighting over the hotel bill."

On politics: "Richard the First has become Richard the Second and he's finally offered a job to George McGovern . . . as a school crossing guard on the Ho Chi Minh trail."

On Hope himself: "This is my ninth and last trip to Vietnam. It has to be . . . the chicken with my blood type died."

AS USUAL when playing for a GI audience, Hope was at his funniest when ignoring the "idiot cards" held up by stage hands and ad libbing mildly blue material.

But the entertainment package, geared for leers and howls from a youthful audience, was the usual deft and fast-moving melange of pretty girls, show business songs and jokes closer to the palace boards than the TV screen, especially when black comic Red Foxx was sharing the spotlight. Foxx, an old burlesque comedian now starring in TV's "Sanford and Son," was making his first tour outside America with vintage risque lines that brought torrents of laughter across the generation gap.

The pretty girls — all beauty queens from various contests ranging from "Miss Polish America" to Miss World, in the perfectly packaged person of Australia's Bolinda Green — introduced themselves with provocative lines designed to draw the maximum oinks from a khaki-clad stockyard of proudly unreformed male chauvinist pigs.

The show kicked off with the predictable hurricane of whistles and wolf calls when a tall blonde in a mini-dress stepped out of a limousine. Only this time the explosion of leers was embarrassingly premature as the ovation went to Nancy Weyland, the general's pretty daughter who was mistaken for one of the arriving cast members. She seemed to love every minute of it.

The show ended on a lingering emotional note as Dolores Hope, the comedian's wife, led the audience in singing "Silent Night."

But the afternoon's biggest avalanche of applause and emotion came when Hope departed from the script to let the audience in briefly on his disappointment at the turn of events in Paris.

"We came here prepared for peace. We're all a little disappointed that it didn't arrive. We hope that peace will arrive soon and that it will be a peace that will last so that we don't have to come out here and do this again."

Darkened windows tell Berlin's joy

BERLIN (UPI) — West Berlin windows were dark Sunday night — a symbol of the city's happiest Christmas since 1965.

For the first time since the Communist wall went up to halt the flight of refugees 11 years ago the city did not call on West Berliners to place lighted candles in their windows as a sign of their desire for reunion with their relatives in the east.

Parents travelled through the wall for reunions with their children in East Berlin. Brothers spent Christmas Eve with their East Berlin sisters.

It was their first Christmas together in seven years.

West Berliners passed through border checkpoints carrying blue jeans, nylon shirts, panty hose, lined pineapple, fresh citrus fruits, chocolate, coffee and other presents rare or expensive in the east.

But they sat at tables laden with pheasant — available this year for the first time — goose, turkey and other delicacies. East Germany, despite shortages, has the highest standard of living in the east bloc.

The long German Christmas celebration begins on Christmas Eve and West Berliners and West Germans poured across the border to visit eastern relatives by train, subway, elevated railway, by automobile and by foot.

The traffic began Saturday. By New Year's Day an estimated 500,000 were expected to visit the east, raising to 2 million the number given Communist passes since the Big Four Berlin agreement of June 3 opened the wall for West Berliners.

For the last six years the East German government refused to issue wall passes over the holiday.

Embassy woman killed, 3 alive

21 quake survivors arrive in D.C.

By MICHAEL PUTZEL

ANDREWS AIR FORCE BASE, Md. (AP) — Twenty-nine women and children, among the first Americans to be evacuated from earthquake — devastated Managua, Nicaragua, landed in a chill dense fog at this air base outside Washington Sunday, shaken but none seriously injured.

Fran Pelic, one the three women embassy officials who survived the collapse of their home, limped from the airplane and said of her injuries: "It is nothing. We're all lucky to be alive."

Rae Carol Morgan, the U.S. vice consul from St. Joseph, Mo., said she was asleep in her upstairs apartment in the embassy compound when the quake hit shortly after Friday midnight.

"It didn't wake me up at first," Miss Morgan said. "But when I heard the sound of buildings falling, I got up and went to where the stairs were. They weren't there and I fell two floors into the basement."

Miss Morgan was holding a brown paper bag. Asked what it contained, she said, "the nightgown I fell in. It's all I have left. Three of us lost everything."

Asked about rebuilding the city, she said, "it would be a wise idea if they rebuilt it somewhere else."

Miss Morgan said she has scratches and bruises over much of her body but wasn't seriously hurt.

Speaking to newsmen minutes after she left the U.S. Air Force C-141 transport that brought the survivors here, Miss Morgan's voice trembled as she recounted the events of the previous hours.

Miss Morgan said the ambassador's secretary, Rose Marie Orlich, was killed and another woman embassy employee was seriously hurt. The woman, whom Miss Morgan declined to identify, was flown to Panama, presumably to receive emergency hospital care.

Miss Morgan said there were six embassy personnel and a Marine guard on the embassy compound when the quake struck. All but Miss Orlich survived.

The embassy itself remained standing but was unsafe to enter, she said.

Candas Stewart of Toledo, Ohio, wife of the U.S. public affairs officer, and their two children, also were among the survivors evacuated Sunday night.

Mrs. Stewart said she understood that crews searching for bodies must dynamite their way into the destroyed U.S. embassy building. She said the body of the ambassador's secretary, who was killed in the earthquake, still was trapped in staff living quarters next to the embassy.

She described downtown Managua as "almost completely totaled."

Capt. Richard B. Badgley of St. Petersburg, Fla., the Air Force pilot who flew the relief mission, said looking down on Managua from the air you could see no buildings intact.

"It's a mess, but the airport's in good shape. It's crowded with relief planes."

Army identifies slain private

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Army Sunday identified as Mark S. Owens, 20, of St. Louis, Mo., the body of a private found bludgeoned near his barracks at the Presidio.

Hotel ceiling fall pins Calif. woman 6 hours

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — "The movement stopped and I thought that if I was going to die I ought to at least make a struggle first," a California resident said Sunday in recounting the six hours she was trapped in debris after the earthquake in Managua.

Vera Hernandez, an attractive black-haired woman from San Jose, Calif., said, "I felt the hotel moving. When I thought it was going to stop, the ceiling fell, and I was pinned under it."

"The only feeling I had then was a desire to go to sleep. Then the movement stopped and I thought that if I was going to die I ought to at least make a struggle first."

"I heard some women crying for help and some men trying to get them out. I called to the men. They answered and tried to help me but the debris was too much for them and they couldn't move it."

"I KEPT STRUGGLING and found some cracks and was able to pull some stuff away. I lowered myself to the floor below and the porter helped me escape," she said.

Miss Hernandez said she had been on an eight week tour of South America but extended her trip to include a stop in Managua. She stayed at the Grand Hotel in Managua.

Miss Hernandez said she had been on an eight-week but said she worked in the mayor's office at San Jose.

HER STORY was only one of many in this devastated city. James Robert Adams of Opelousas, La., a crop duster working in Nicaragua, also was at the Grand Hotel. He said he saw several people killed when a nightclub across the street caved in.

At the Managua General Hospital, where a U.S. Army medical team set up a treatment center, the patients were all on the ground outside the hospital because inside there was nothing but death and debris.

Cuba vows to return skyjack ransom

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A Southern Airways spokesman said Sunday the airline has received an assurance from the Cuban government that the $2-million ransom money the airline paid to three hijackers last November will be returned.

Southern made this announcement: "Graydon Hall, Southern Airways executive vice president and general manager, has returned from Havana, where he met with top Cuban officials and has been assured that Southern Airways funds held by the Cuban government are being returned to Southern Airways."

The spokesman said Hall returned Friday night from Havana after having been there "overnight." The money was turned over to the three hijackers after a Southern Airplane was hijacked Nov. 10 outside Birmingham, Ala., en route to Miami, Fla. The hijackers took the plane on a circuitous route to Havana, flying to Detroit, Cleveland, Toronto, Knoxville, Chattanooga, Havana, Key West, Orlando and back to Havana. The hijackers, identified as two Detroit men wanted on rape charges and for an escape from a Tennessee prison, were taken into custody by the Cuban government.

Vote of confidence

I received a card from the Los Angeles County Registrar of Voters office which said my registration had been canceled because I didn't vote and that I would have to reregister. I did vote, so I sent back the card stating this. Why was the card sent to me?

C.L.B., Long Beach, and others.

You have nothing to worry about if you mailed back the card and marked "I voted" in the proper box. Your neighborhood polling place may have failed to list you as having voted. It may have been a keypunch error, or confusion over a reregistration may have caused your name to appear on two polling sheets. Harold Cone, chief deputy registrar, estimated more than 8,000 nonvoter cards were mailed to persons who actually voted. A prepaid postcard came attached to each so the department could be notified in case of error.

Power play?

I've seen many advertisements by Southern California Edison Co. which stress the need for more electrical power. Can you find out how much they are spending for these ads? I feel I am paying for them through my already too high electric bills. K.B., Long Beach.

SCE's advertising budget for 1972 was $1.5 million which is less than 2 per cent of the utility's gross revenues, according to Kenneth Conferman, advertising assistant of SCE. He said the ads aren't to promote additional uses of electrical power, but to warn the public of the power shortages which they predict will occur because the company is currently blocked from building needed power plants. "We are trying our best to let the public know what the situation is. We need their help to get them the needed power."

Disability

In March, I applied for unemployment benefits. I finally got a job, but then I became ill, and I had to apply for state disability. I was told that I couldn't collect the maximum amount of disability benefits because my earnings figures had been frozen when I applied for unemployment. Since employees pay separate amounts for disability and unemployment insurance, why should the one have any bearing on the other? E.G., Downey.

The amount a person receives for either unemployment or disability benefits is based on his earnings. Since you applied for both types of benefits during the same year, the law requires that your disability rate be based on your earnings prior to when you applied for unemployment insurance in March. Your income at that time evidently was not great enough to qualify you for the maximum amount of disability. The income you earned after you went back to work was not computed and you apparently feel that this income would have entitled you to higher rate of disability benefits. The law is designed to protect individuals who have been unemployed for several months prior to becoming disabled. Such individuals with no recent earnings would consequently receive lower disability benefits if the law did not exist. A spokesman for the California Department of Human Resources Development said that in the majority of cases, the law provides greater benefits, but your case evidently is an exception.

Rebate

We canceled our homeowners insurance with National American Insurance Co. of California in August and took out a new policy with another company to satisfy our mortgage requirements. We had made our payments on the first policy to Commerce Service Corp. in Los Angeles. We have written and phoned them to no avail to get a rebate on the premium which was paid to June 1973. All we get is silence. Can ACTION LINE help? D.L.D., Long Beach.

You now have a $55 rebate from Commerce Service Corp. One of the forms needed in order to cancel your policy had been misfiled, said a spokesman. It was located after ACTION LINE'S phone calls.

Deposit

On April 30 my wife and I looked at model homes being sold by Larwin Tempo Realty in Cerritos. We saw one we liked and the salesman told us we'd better put $100 down to hold it while we thought it over, with the understanding that we would receive a refund if we changed our minds. We changed our minds the next day, but we still have no refund. Can ACTION LINE help? C.R.B., Long Beach.

No. ACTION LINE contacted Fred Marx, a sales manager for Larwin Tempo, who said you actually signed a contract to buy the home on April 30. He said the normal deposit is $600, $100 of which is not refundable, but they allowed you to pay only the $100. He added that the cancellation request which you signed on May 9 clearly stated that $100 was to be paid to the seller. He said if you should ever wish to buy another Larwin home, you will be credited with the $100.

HOW TO USE ACTION LINE

When calling or writing with a problem or question, give your name, address and telephone number—not for publication, as only readers' initials are used in the column—but to help ACTION LINE help you. Include pertinent information but please don't send original documents or pictures that you want returned.

The volume of mail makes it impossible to answer or acknowledge every question. Each question, however, is carefully read and considered. Because of the delay in transcribing telephone messages recorded on ACTION LINE's special number, 432-3451, mail requests often receive prompter attention than phone calls.

Persons seeking information contained in past ACTION LINE items may visit the newspapers' library, Room 208, The Independent, Press-Telegram Building, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

CG seeking man lost on kayak trip

The Coast Guard will resume its search today for the 22-year-old son of a Palos Verdes physician who apparently disappeared Sunday during an attempt to paddle a kayak from Torrance Beach to Malibu.

A Coast Guard spokesman said Robert Kuchar left Torrance Beach at about 7:45 a.m., paddling a black 10-foot kayak. When he failed to arrive at Malibu his father notified the Coast Guard.

The spokesman said a helicopter and a cutter started searching at 3:40 p.m. and continued until dark Sunday. He said the search would resume early today.

Kuchar reportedly was experienced in kayaking.

Police round up drunken drivers

Many holiday partygoers found themselves in jail Christmas Eve as police reported drunk driving arrests running "ten times" normal.

Long Beach police said at 9 p.m. Sunday they had booked 76 persons on suspicion of drunk driving since 4 p.m. Friday and jailed 67 more for intoxication.

Arrests were so frequent at times, one officer said, that the department was unable to keep up with the statistics. Records personnel, fingerprinters and photographers literally were swamped with traffic in tipsy travelers.

Many of those arrested, however, might be out for Christmas Day if they qualify for the department's Own Recognition program by demonstrating good moral character or can raise the cash bail demanded by some offenses.

Those who can't, said one sergeant, can expect a hot turkey dinner in jail today.

The arrest pattern of drunk drivers was similar across the county, authorities reported, but no statistics were available immediately. Highway patrol officers accounted for more than 700 drunk driving arrests throughout the county.

Municipal police, sheriff's deputies and highway patrolmen promised they would work near full-strength through the night to crack down on drunk drivers.

Compton man slain in lot

A 26-year-old Compton man was shot to death Sunday while cleaning up the parking lot behind the MacDonald's hamburger stand where he works at 1117 S. Long Beach Blvd., Compton.

Police said Ramon Gutierrez, of 504 S. Polansetta Ave., was shot once in the back with a small-caliber gun at 7:45 a.m. as he was picking up papers in the lot.

According to Sgt. Cliff

ford Green, Gutierrez was alone in the lot when a fellow employee, inside the building, heard a shot and ran outside to see what it was.

Gutierrez was taken to Martin Luther King Hospital, where he died at 9:05 a.m.

Green said Compton police were questioning a 17-year-old in the case, and holding him for further investigation. He said Gutierrez was not robbed, and they could not determine a motive for the shooting.

Green added that police did not consider the murder a "gang shooting."

DIET

tion should be readily available on the market, reasonably priced and easily identified by appropriate labeling, it's asserted.

Existing legal and regulatory barriers to the marketing of such foods should be removed, the statement continues.

Briefly, the statement notes that care should be taken that dietary advice should not compromise the necessary intake of essential nutrients.

Ten years ago the AMA, in a public statement, called dietary attempts to lower cholesterol a food fad and a "wasted effort."

The AMA said then that the American diet provides all the nutrients essential to health. It dwelled at length on the importance of the basic food groups, and listed some of the necessary foods as milk, cheese, ice cream, meat and eggs. Even butter is needed, the AMA said.

The new recommendations, however, say that persons in risk categories for coronary heart disease should substantially decrease their intake of saturated fat and lower cholesterol consumption. In practice, this entails substituting vegetable oils, or polyunsaturated fats, for part of the saturated fat in the diet.

Saturated fats are mostly animal fats. They can be roughly defined as those that are solid at room temperature. Unsaturated fats, mostly vegetable oils, are generally liquid at room temperature.

Cholesterol is found in foods of animal origin such as dairy products, meat, eggs and certain seafood.

Substitution of vegetable oils for animal fats in the diet usually brings about a reduction of cholesterol in the blood.

The new statement says that the evidence now available is sufficient to discourage further temporizing with this major national health problem (coronary disease).

The statement continues: "There is abundant evidence that the risk of developing coronary heart disease is positively correlated with the level of cholesterol in the plasma

$200,000 Bellflower blaze

Three-alarm blaze at Seaboard Distributing Co., 15220 Lakewood Blvd., Bellflower, destroyed an estimated $200,000 in retail merchandise Sunday. Building was gutted before 13 county fire-fighting units with more than 50 men could bring it under control. Task was complicated by reignition of materials already doused with water or chemicals. Intense heat caused the building contents to re-erupt in flames. One fireman received minor injury. —Staff Photo by RON CARLSON (blood) . . .

"There is extensive evidence that the level of cholesterol in the plasma of most people can be lowered by appropriate dietary modifications. Generally, such lowering can be achieved most practically by partial replacement of the dietary sources of saturated fat with sources of unsaturated fat, especially those rich in polyunsaturated fatty acids, and by a reduction in the consumption of fats rich in cholesterol.

"Preliminary evidence suggests that faithful and continued consumption of a cholesterol-lowering diet over a period of years can reduce the coronary attack rate in middle-aged men. As would be expected in dealing with a chronic disease of this kind, early intervention after the disease is evident."

The statement goes on to say that elevation of other blood fats, such as triglycerides, can impose increased risk of coronary heart disease.

But triglycerides can also be reduced by diet, it says.

The statement declares that although there is no evidence that diets that lower triglycerides can reduce coronary heart disease, the inference from studies to date is that such a reduction in heart disease can be expected.

More than 10 years ago, the American Heart Association said that the reduction or control of fat consumption, under medical supervision, with reasonable substitution of vegetable oils for animal fats, could be recommended as a possible means of preventing fatty thickening of the arteries, thus decreasing the risk of heart attacks.

Asked to comment on the new recommendations, Dr. Wilbert S. Aronow, chairman of the Long Beach Heart Association's coronary risk-factor screening program, said:

"The AMA has finally seen the light."

Aronow said that a low-cholesterol, low-calorie diet also is recommended by the American College of Cardiology and the American College of Chest Physicians.

"The AMA recommendation is 'long overdue,'" Aronow added.

"Our affluence is killing us," he continued. "There must be a drastic change in the American diet."

Aronow said that blood cholesterol levels, to be safe, should be less than 200. The new AMA statement uses the figure 220.

The AMA statement notes that about one-third of American men, and a less definitely known proportion of women, consuming their usual diets maintain blood cholesterol levels at or below 220.

Aronow said that blood triglycerides can be reduced by lowering total calorie intake and cutting intake of carbohydrates — especially the "simple" sugars such as candies, ice cream, cookies and cake."

The AMA statement also mentions the other risk factors associated with susceptibility to coronary heart disease. They include high blood pressure (hypertension), heavy cigarette smoking, obesity and physical inactivity.

Coronary heart disease is the major public health problem in the United States and in many other countries, the AMA statement said. In 1970, for example, some 666,000 Americans, of whom about 171,000 were under 65, died of coronary heart disease. Many more were disabled by the same disorder.

U.S. general reports from Hanoi

By TELFORD TAYLOR
New York Times Service

HANOI, North Vietnam —After five days and nights of heavy bombing, Hanoi is badly scared and half deserted but seems vigorous and in good spirit.

Despite the crippling of Telford Taylor, professor of law at Columbia University, is visiting Hanoi. He is a retired brigadier general and was chief prosecutor at the Nuremberg war trials. One of his books is: "Nuremberg and Vietnam: an American Tragedy." This dispatch was delayed in transmission.

communications and utilities by hits on the central power plant, the railroad station and the airport, essential services have been maintained.

The airport terminal is completely wrecked and the main runway is damaged and villages near the airport have suffered badly.

Early this morning, the large Bach Mai Hospital was destroyed. The hospital grounds were torn by huge fresh craters and the buildings that escaped direct hits were shattered by blast.

Viewed a few hours later, the hospital remains were a terrible scene, with rescue workers carrying patients piggyback, cranes and bulldozers and people using only their hands desperately clearing debris to reach victims said to be still buried in the rubble, and the frantic hospital director running from one building to another.

Despite the severity of the bombing, Hanoi looks nothing like the Berlin or Hamburg of World War II. So far the bombing has been relatively concentrated in certain areas, and one can drive through the city for many blocks and see no damage whatever.

Most of the American bombers operate at high altitudes but occasionally a plane comes in low to avoid radar detection and lets go its load simultaneously with the sound of the sirens. Bursts of gunfire with no bombs or alerts mark the appearance of reconnaissance aircraft, which are said to be pilotless.

THIS afternoon, I was shown the remains of a large low-cost housing development in the An Duong district of Hanoi. Some 30 multiple-dwelling units covering several acres had suffered 20 or more hits leaving fresh craters 50 feet in diameter and virtually total destruction of the homes.

There were said to be 260 casualties in housing area, of which half were fatalities. Over-all figures on the number of killed and wounded in Hanoi are not available.

Air defense discipline appears to be excellent and shelters effective against anything but a direct hit, are numerous and well-distributed. Yesterday afternoon a bomb leveled several large buildings adjacent to the Cuban Embassy, but I was informed that everyone in the vicinity had taken shelter and that no one was killed, which seemed miraculous considering the scale of this destruction in the heart of the city.

EVACUATION of the city began soon after the first bombing attacks and was in full swing by today. By truck, pedicab, bicycle and on foot, families and individuals depart for the greater safety of the countryside. Street traffic and crowds have dwindled to a fraction of the volume observed during the weekend before the bombing began, and many shops are now closed and shuttered.

American airmen from planes shot down are shown at news conferences for the stated purpose of substantiating claims of planes destroyed. At the Hoa Binh Hotel near the center of the city, the guests, including Polish and Indian members of the International Control Commission and Cuban seamen marooned from ships in Haiphong Harbor, have spent many hours in the hotel's shelter.

Their enforced confinement has been brightened by the singing of Joan Baez, one of a group of Americans visiting North Vietnam to bring Christmas mail to American prisoners of war.

Fire erupts on gasoline barge

PORT ALLEN, La. (UP) —Fire erupted in a barge containing 10,000 barrels of unleaded gasoline Sunday and continued to burn despite the efforts of tugboats spraying water and firemen pumping chemical foam from the shore. There were no injuries.

Assistant Fire Chief Ray Landry said the barge was grounded on the west bank of the Mississippi River across from the Louisiana capitol at Baton Rouge.

The Coast Guard issued a notice for other boats to stay clear of the area. Neither the Coast Guard nor the fire department knew the name of the barge's owner and neither had information on the cause of the blaze.

Rhetoric matching bombings

N. Viets playing on emotions of PW families
By GEORGE ESPER

SAIGON (AP) — Hanoi is playing hard on the emotions of American prisoner-of-war families this Christmas, matching the intensity of last week's U.S. air strikes with rhetoric.

Scores of broadcasts portray North Vietnam as a nation being cruelly butchered and devastated, but still turning the other cheek to care for the American pilots captured while bombing it.

The U.S. Command has done little to dispel this notion, responding with the standard comment that American bombers target only military installations.

HANOI'S harshest words have been reserved for President Nixon and Jerry W. Friedheim, the spokesman for the U.S. defense Department. Hanoi has said it intends to appeal to world opinion and the American public.

Verbal attacks on Nixon for his decision to resume the bombing of Hanoi and

ANALYSIS

Hai Phong in its greatest intensity of the war are continuing, with some criticism coming from countries friendly to the U.S.

Some relatives of American PWs have accused Nixon of sacrificing the prisoners' lives. A nationwide interfaith group of 44 religious leaders has accused the Nixon administration of "aborting the possibility and betraying the duty of peace" by resuming the bombing. The National Peace Action Coalition has called for massive demonstrations in Washington and other cities on Nixon's inauguration day Jan. 20 "to put a halt to the horror" of the bombing.

TYPICAL of the Radio Hanoi broadcasts is this commentary:

"Our hearts are burning with wrath, but the government of the Democratic Republic of North Vietnam and our people are unanimously determined to continue to provide humane treatment to captured enemy pilots.

"Since August 1964 hundreds of American enemy pilots who had been guilty of crimes committed in the North and were subsequently captured have been meticulously protected and provided with conditions for comfortable living. Those who were wounded and captured while committing their crimes were provided with timely medical care."

THE commentary, designed to gain the full impact of the traditional family reunions at Christmas, says at another point: "Had the Nixon administration honored its agreements with the Government of the Democratic Republic of North Vietnam and observed the time — Oct. 31 — set for signing the accord on ending the war . . . how many American families would now be enjoying reunions?"

North Vietnam repeatedly has claimed that on Dec. 20 and 21 American bombs hit and damaged the main American prisoner of war camp, dubbed the "Hanoi Hilton" by the captives. It says a number of American prisoners were wounded. Friedheim has termed this claim incorrect, but Hanoi says an American peace delegation led by folk singer Joan Baez observed the damaged camp.

"Nixon," says a Radio Hanoi commentary, "is precisely the one who has committed crimes of utmost cruelty against the people of Vietnam and he even poses a threat to the lives of American pilots captured here . . . while directing his spokesman Friedheim to utter lies . . ."

Protesters' candle light peace vigil

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Antiwar protesters began a candlelight vigil outside the White House Christmas Eve, the first event in a series of planned holiday demonstrations against the renewed bombing of North Vietnam.

About 20 members of the Washington Peace Center and a Quaker group that has been picketing the executive mansion on and off for four years stood in the cold and rain in Lafayette Park while President Nixon and his family celebrated Christmas in Key Biscayne, Fla.

Tom McCarthy, a spokesman for the peace center, said many clergymen of all faiths would participate in an ecumenical service Monday in the park, which will be followed by picketing of the Executive Office Building next to the White House and a rally in the park with speeches by Vietnam veterans and prisoner-of-war wives.

McCarthy said the two-day demonstration was planned only in the past few days after "snowballing support from the public for some kind of activity to protest the bombing."

Former Marine Bill Clark, 29, of Danbury, Conn., said he was protesting "as a penance." John Bosma, 29, of Hartford, Conn., said events of the past week converted him to the antiwar movement.

Bomb delays Baez flight from Hanoi

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — American folk singer Joan Baez and her pacifist companions in Hanoi are not on their way home because of bomb damage to the Hanoi airfield, it was reported here Sunday.

A spokesman for the ground service supplying the Soviet airline Aeroflot said the plane expected to fly them back to Moscow Saturday was canceled and there is no other Aeroflot flight until next Saturday.

The plane, due to fly into Hanoi Saturday from Moscow via Vientiane, was held up in Rangoon because of damage to the Hanoi landing strip, the spokesman said. At first it was thought the flight might be made Sunday, but Hanoi reported the runway could not be repaired within 24 hours, so the Aeroflot plane was ordered back to Moscow.

The next plane to Hanoi is the regular weekly flight of the International Control Commission which is due to fly to Hanoi and back to Vientiane on Tuesday. There was no immediate word on whether the ICC plane would be able to make the flight, or if Miss Baez and her companions could leave aboard it.

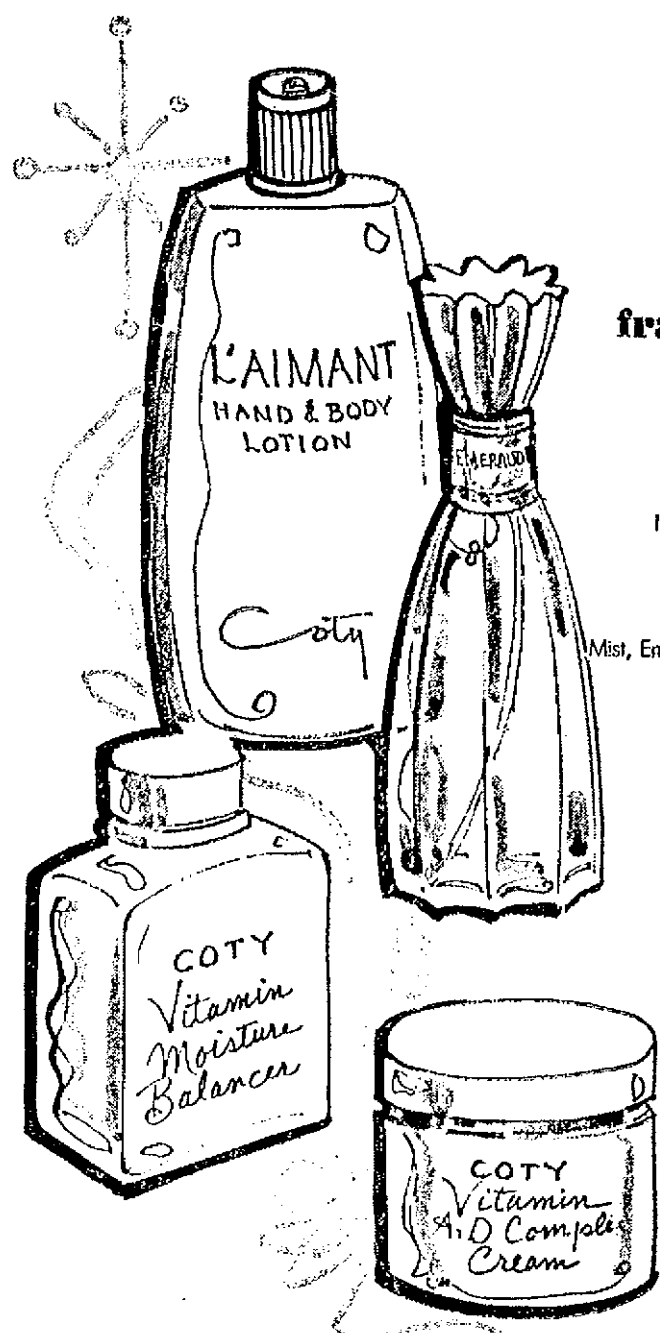

The group flew into Hanoi aboard the Saturday Aeroflot flight a week ago, with about 500 letters from their families for American prisoners of war in North Vietnam. They had planned to fly back to Moscow on the return flight Saturday.

Petition hits bombing

CAIRO (AP) — Americans living in Egypt are circulating a petition demanding an end to American military action in Southeast Asia and denouncing the current U.S. bombings of North Vietnam. Copies were published in both Cairo's English and French language daily newspapers Sunday.

Saigon has big Yule celebration

Thousands throng city streets; black market booming
By BARNEY SEIBERT

SAIGON (UPI) — Saigon residents Sunday held their biggest Christmas celebration since the Americans entered the war, thronging by the thousands to downtown Tu Do Street and snapping up toys at the black market.

Tu Do, which was once filled with partying GIs, was jammed with Vietnamese enjoying the holiday atmosphere.

One American who has lived in Saigon for 18 years said he has never seen the Vietnamese on Tu Do on Christmas Eve before. He said the Vietnamese traditionally celebrate the holiday eve in the central market, but this year's throngs on Tu Do may have been an overflow.

Thousands of residents, many of them wearing their Sunday finest, strolled down the street holding hands and talking. Many of them wore festive American Indian-style headbands with two or three feathers that are sold on the street corners.

The street was closed to traffic to accommodate the strollers and, even with the crowd, it was much quieter than normal without the roar of Hondas and other motor traffic.

Later in the evening, many of the strollers jammed into the red brick Kingdom of the Saints cathedral near Independence Palace for midnight Mass, which was celebrated three hours early because of a strict 11 p.m. curfew.

Along broad Nguyen Hue, near the waterfront in downtown Saigon, the black market stands were crammed with the greatest variety of toys and gifts in at least seven years.

The narrow strip of parkway in the center of the street was filled with newly cut long-needle pine trees from the mountain resort of Dalat. Their vendors were busy nearby, hammering together wooden stands for the trees.

Competing with the pine trees were a wide variety of artificial trees, some plastic, some metal.

The black market stands along the sidewalks of Nguyen Hue have somehow, despite the tight customs controls, managed to obtain a greater assortment of toys than ever before and this, on Christmas Eve, generated the closest thing to a Christmas shopping rush that Saigon had ever seen.

Families who were Buddhists, or who lacked the cash to buy, came anyway, to stare at the newly arrived wonders from Hong Kong, Singapore, Taipei and Tokyo. Long-time residents said more stores than ever before were decorated for Christmas, and Christians or not, more Vietnamese were exchanging Christmas cards.

Southland man one of 3 pilots set to leave Viet

SAIGON (AP) — Three American pilots, one from the Southland, were dumped unceremoniously into a trailer of cold water when they returned to their base here Sunday and loved every drop of it.

Capt. Charles Pepper of Childersburg, Ala., Jim Lancaster of La Habra, Calif., and Jack O'Connor of Massapequa, N.Y., had just completed their last three missions in Vietnam as light observation plane pilots for the 21st Tactical Air Support Squadron.

Pepper said he is going home with a feeling of pride and accomplishment, but does not believe peace is at hand. "Not really. It's a hard question to answer. I really don't know. I still feel like it's going to be a long war here."

EARTHQUAKE

Somoza, "Our thoughts and prayers are with the victims."

"We are greatly appreciative of the U.S. assistance and the U.S. help, but we need more than just treating the people," Somoza said. Referring to Nixon, he added: "I'd like him to help us rebuild the capital."

The U.S. Army sent a demolition team with a ton of explosives to blast dangerous structures. Army engineers planned to fly in today with heavy earthmoving equipment. The U.S. Southern Command in Panama said Air Force transports would bring a number of water purification units.

The Defense Department sent four C130 and one C123 aircraft from Canal Zone to Managua with more than 60,000 pounds of medical and other relief supplies. This was in addition to six Saturday flights.

The Sunday shipment included fifteen 400 gallon water trailers. In all, 225 Army and Air Force medical personnel were assigned to the hospital units being sent to Nicaragua in addition to other rescue personnel.

PLANES FROM THE United States, Europe and Latin America brought more than 100 tons of blood plasma, food, clothes and other supplies.

In Washington, the Agency for International Development, which is coordinating U.S. relief efforts, warned against sending unsolicited goods to the stricken nation. It advised making cash contributions to local voluntary organizations.

Planes were having to land at Managua without the aid of the control tower, which was not operating as a result of the earthquake.

Water had to be brought in from Mexico. Food was running low and some stores raised their prices while some families shared their food with others. Milk, which usually sells for 27 cents a quart, was being sold Christmas Eve for $1.

UPI correspondent Martin McReynolds said thousands of homeless were leaving the city by any means possible. Furniture, clothes and other belongings were stacked high on buses, cattle trucks, sugarcane carts, bicycles and even baby carriages all day long.

SEVERAL THOUSAND other Managuans were still in the streets, spending a dismal Christmas Eve huddled outside away from the danger of falling rubble.

The government by continuous radio programming on two frequencies urged residents to flee to friends and relatives' homes in the interior, away from the dangerous ruins of the capital. Many more, mostly injured persons, were reported evacuated to neighboring countries including El Salvador and Costa Rica, where the government had offered 1,000 hospital beds for victims.

"This is a city that was, but is no more," Alagret said.

The city prison, a turreted fortress near the downtown area, was possibly the biggest single death trap when the earthquake struck. Alagret said at least 100 prisoners were inside at the time, many of them undoubtedly being killed when the structure's stone walls collapsed.

Men, women and children, many staring blankly in shock, others weeping and some chatting, sat on mounds of debris that once had been their homes.

Another strong earth tremor rocked Managua at 2 a.m. PST Sunday, causing some already weakened buildings to fall, and light tremors could be felt as late as midday. But there was little more damage that could be done to this city, most of whose normal population of about 300,000 has been fleeing into the countryside since the major quake struck early Saturday.

Somoza's private residence, "El Retiro," on the southern edge of the city, was converted into a relief coordination center, and its spacious grounds were turned over to medical teams working from a U.S. Army field hospital flown in from Ft. Hood, Tex.

Buildings moved into the devastated downtown section and other districts of Managua clearing away piles of rubble as much as 15 feet high to reopen blocked streets.

Fire, still smoldered in wide areas of the city. Alagret, riding in a jeep through areas where he could pass, said thousands more bodies undoubtedly were buried under the debris. He ordered mass burials for those bodies initially recovered in order to reduce the possibility of pestilence in this hot tropical city, where the sun shone brilliantly Sunday.

Alagret roughly estimated total damage at more than $2 billion, a staggering figure in a country whose current annual budget is $100 million.

THE PRESIDENTIAL PALACE, sitting on a hill alongside a lagoon, was destroyed by the quake. The entire southern portion of the palace fell into the lagoon.

U.S. Ambassador Turner B. Shelton, whose embassy was demolished by the quake ordered the wives and children of all his personnel to leave the country. His own secretary, Rose Marie Orlich was killed in the quake as was an unidentified American woman visiting her.

The Intercontinental Hotel, a pyramid-shaped building on a hill overlooking Managua, was one of the few major buildings which survived the earthquake, although it was damaged and has been evacuated. Howard Hughes had been staying there but he and his staff left Saturday after the earthquake struck. The inner structure of two other major hotels, the Balmoral and the Gran, collapsed and left only the cracked outside walls still standing.

Managua's tallest building, the 18-story Bank of America, survived the earthquake but was tilted slightly off center.

Armed soldiers moved through the downtown district and in some residential neighborhoods, passing on word of the general evacuation order. There appeared to be little looting.

Cargo ship reported sinking in heavy seas

JUNEAU, Alaska (UPI) — A 570-foot cargo ship with 30 men aboard was reported sinking in heavy seas Sunday night 800 miles south of Kodiak, Alaska.

A Coast Guard HC130 aircraft dispatched to the scene said it could find no trace of the Pacover, a 13,000-ton Liberian registry vessel carrying a Korean crew.

The ship, en route to Japan from Vancouver, B.C. with a cargo of coal, was reported that it was sinking.

The Coast Guard dispatched aircraft to the area, where 20-foot waves were buffeted by winds up to 50 knots. Two Coast Guard cutters were steaming toward the area and the Canadian ship Quadra headed for the scene.

But claims peace not foreclosed

No talks until bombs stop, says Thuy

NEW YORK — Xuan Thuy, Hanoi's chief negotiator at the regular Paris peace talks, says there can be no further negotiations while the United States continues its bombing campaign in north Vietnam above the 20th parallel.

"Of course, the negotiations cannot be carried out under the bombing," Thuy said.

He made his comments through a translator on ABC TV's "Issues and Answers" program, filmed in Paris Saturday and broadcast Sunday.

The North Vietnamese official said his government was prepared to sign a peace pact on the basis of the October draft agreement worked out by its envoy, Le Duc Tho, and Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's national security adviser. Thuy again accused Washington of seeking to change the "substance" of the October draft.

The United States resumed bombing north of the 20th parallel, including Hanoi and Haiphong, Dec. 18. The bombing was suspended for 24 hours for Christmas, sources in Saigon reported.

"You can imagine that under such circumstances how can we continue the negotiations," Thuy told his interviewers, "and moreover, from Dec. 18 until now, the bombings were carried out with increasing violence."

But he said a peace settlement had not been foreclosed.

"Of course if Mr. Nixon returns to the Oct. 20 agreement and agrees to sign it, we are prepared to sign it, too. But on condition that he should stop the bombings of North Vietnam."

Pressed as to whether the bombing would have to stop before the parties could resume talks on the basis of the draft agreement, Thuy answered, "Right."

"At least, the U.S. should return to the situation before December the 18th," he added.

On Oct. 26, Kissinger had said that "peace is at hand." He said only details remained to be ironed out, perhaps in one more session with Tho.

But the resumed talks dragged on and on, Dec. 16, Kissinger told a news conference that the President thought a "just and fair" settlement had not been reached. He blamed Hanoi for reneging on items supposedly already nailed down.

North Vietnam, however, said Kissinger had sought changes because of objections by South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu.

While bombing of North Vietnam's southern panhandle had continued during the crucial talks, bombing and mining of harbors in the country's heartland had been halted by the President when an agreement appeared near.

The renewal of the heavy bombing of the Hanoi-Haiphong area has brought protests in this country and overseas.

In the interview, Thuy reiterated Hanoi's position that the talks broke down because "the U.S. side insisted upon modifications of the principles of the content, of the substance of the agreement."

In his Dec. 16 news conference, Kissinger said agreement hinged on a "fundamental" point. Thuy, however, at a Paris news conference three days later, said the Americans had demanded no less than 126 changes in the October draft.

Elaborating on his previous statements, Thuy said Washington had raised the question of North Vietnamese forces in South Vietnam during the November and December talks after having agreed earlier that the issue need not be dealt with by the United States and North Vietnam.

Thuy said Kissinger had insisted that there be "some phrase, some sentence in the agreement implying the total withdrawal of North Vietnamese forces."

"Moreover, now, regarding the question of political detainees in South Vietnam, they, he, made them — the release of the political detainees in South Vietnam — contingent upon the withdrawal of North Vietnamese forces."

Thuy also said the United States had wanted to maintain military personnel and advisers in the South under the "disguise of civilian personnel."

Further, he said, Kissinger had sought to eliminate all mention of the National Liberation Front's Provisional Revolutionary Government from the agreement and to reduce the functions of the transitional National Council for National Reconciliation and Concord.

"In November, as early as in November," Thuy said, "I told Mr. Kissinger that if now the U.S. insisted on changes of questions of principles and substance, then we, too, we have to ask for changes to maintain the principles, the agreed principle of the agreement and then the negotiation would drag on."

"Therefore, the best way is to maintain the agreement reached Oct. 20. And if changes are to be effected, they should be changes of detail and technical questions."

Thuy termed "absurd" Nixon administration charges that North Vietnam began evacuating Hanoi on Dec. 3 in anticipation of plans to stall negotiations.

DAY OF PEACE

Bells resounded through the starlit hills for about one minute at 12:10 a.m., heralding the anniversary of the Christ child's birth and drowning out the music of the High Pontifical Mass broadcast outside the 600-year-old Church of the Nativity. The Latin patriarch, Msgr. Giacomo Beltritti, performed the Mass.

Loudspeakers carried the music to thousands of pilgrims in Manger Square outside the church who huddled and flapped their arms against the cold as they watched the Mass televised to them on a 40-foot-wide and two-story-high cloth screen.

An estimated 12,000 to 14,000 pilgrims will have visited Bethlehem during the two-day homage to the birth of the Christ child, a west bank military spokesman said.

SOLDIERS in heavy coats with woolen masks covering all but their eyes stood with automatic weapons at the ready on roofs overlooking the square, strung with glowing red, yellow, blue and green lights and mixed with the aroma of roasted chestnuts, cooking chick peas, wine and marijuana.

For the first time, the midnight Christmas ceremonies were being relayed on live television to Europe, and sent by satellite to the United States.

"On earth, peace, goodwill toward men," Apollo 15 Astronaut James Irwin read from the New Testament after accepting honorary citizenship from Mayor Elias Freij. He and his choir stood on a floodlit stage facing 5,000 pilgrims gathered in the square.

RECOUNTING the spiritual aspects of his journey to the moon, he urged his audience to appreciate what he called the glory of Christmas.

"... To climb a higher mountain so that we can look out and see new valleys, new horizons, so that all of us can look forward with the most joyous anticipation at the very highest flight of our mortal lives, and that is to meet Jesus Christ in the heavens."

Devil dropped it

GOESCHENEN, Switzerland — A 1,400-ton block of granite seen by tourists each year will be moved at a cost of $80,000 to make way for superhighway, authorities announced. The rock will rest just 60 yards from its original spot, where legend says the devil dropped it in anger after being outwitted by a smart Swiss.

Dreary cloud blankets cover most of nation

Associated Press

Wet, dreary cloud blankets covered most of the nation Christmas Eve but only a few areas got a fresh sprinkling of snow to make Christmas white.

Snow fell on the northern Rockies, the Great Basin, the upper Mississippi Valley and the upper Great Lakes.

The Pacific Northwest was battered by rain and high winds. Gale warnings were posted from the Canadian border south to central Oregon.

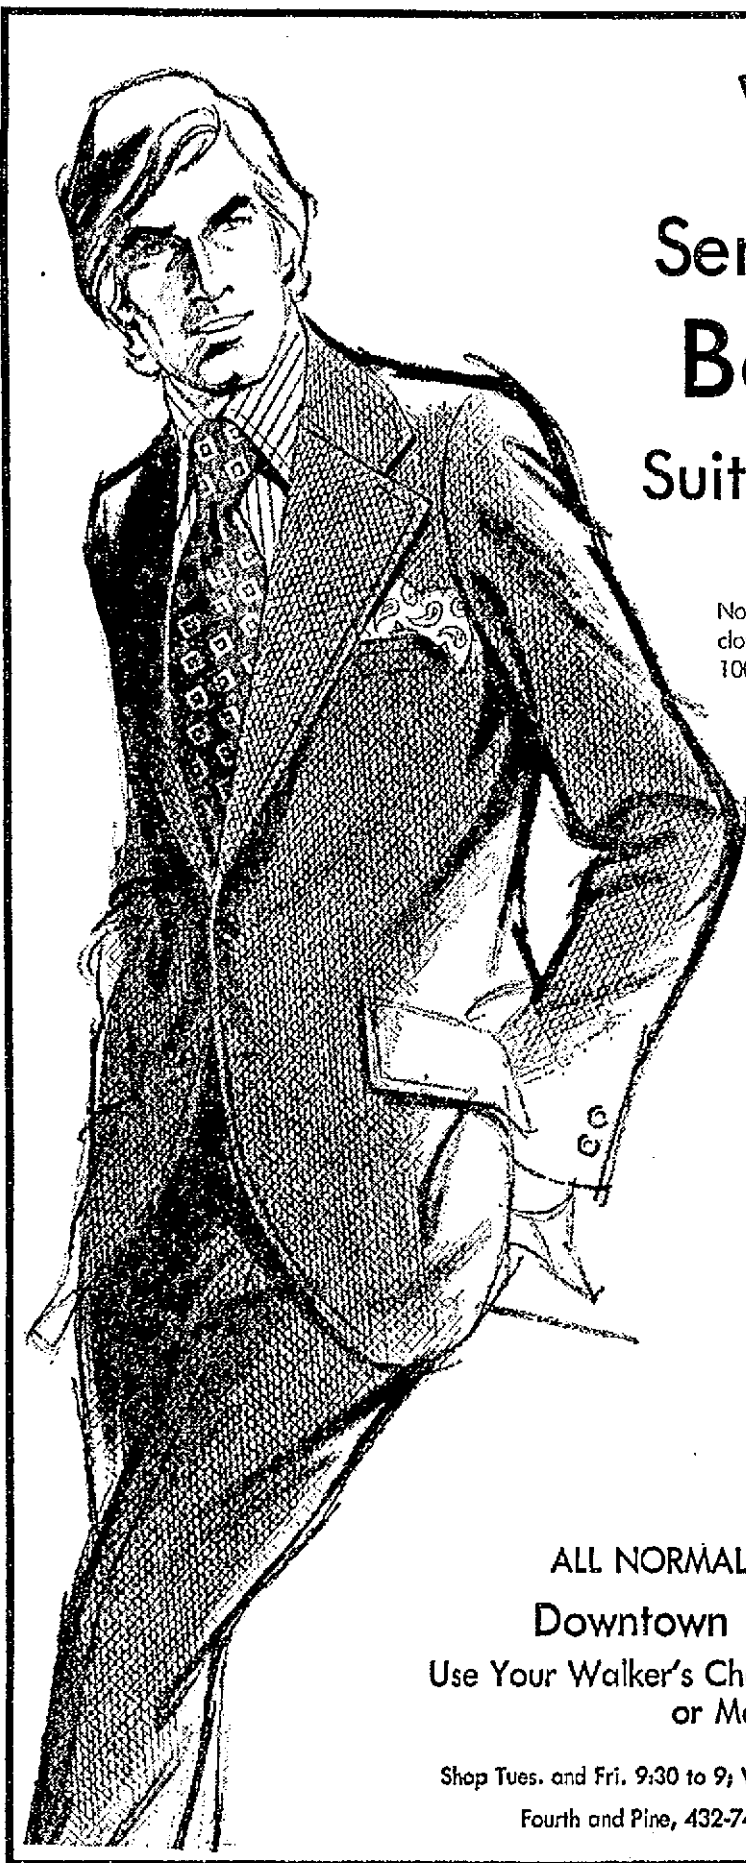

Scattered areas of drizzle, freezing rain and wet snow stretched from the plains to the central Appalachians. Fog and freezing rain caused the issuing of travelers advisories for southern Michigan and central Illinois.

The sun peeked over the edge of the cloud blankets in the Southwest, the southern Plains and Florida.

Temperatures across the nation were mild, except for the upper Mississippi Valley where they barely pushed above zero in some areas. Temperatures ranged from 4 above zero at Fargo, N.D., to 72 to Gainesville, Fla.

But Yule tradition to end

He's 83 and climbing tree

ALAMO (UPI) — Giovanni Muzzini, 83, climbed up a 55-foot pine tree limb to string more than 300 Christmas lights for what has become a Christmastide beacon in the hills surrounding this small community some dozen miles from Oakland.

But this will be the last year for the tradition — which dates back to 1949. The tree, a California pine, is dying and the octogenarian says it will be chopped down with the return of spring.

Trimming the tree 23 years ago was easy, Muzzini says, because it was only seven-feet tall when he and his wife planted it. As it grew, Muzzini continued to decorate it each Yuletide.

"I climb up branch by branch," he said, of the job that now takes a little bit more than two hours. "It's not hard. I love to do it. The higher I go the better I feel. I sing sometimes."

While making the ascent, he said, "my wife hides."

His wife, Mary, said she'll be glad to see the annual tree trimming chore get back to the ground level. "Giovanni's like a little boy, climbing like that all the way to the top," she said.

Holiday spirit overcomes loss

CHARLESTON, W. VA. (UPI) — Not even robbery could spoil J. H. Tate's holiday spirit.

An unknown thief stole two large electric candles and Christmas lights adorning the front porch of Tate's west side home.

He put up a large sign outside the residence, which bore this message:

"Merry Christmas to the fellow who stole my decorations!"

Hound makes snack of tree ornaments

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)

— When Sherlock Holmes once said, "quick Watson, the needle," he probably never dreamed that a Bassett hound named Dr. Watson would clean off an entire Scotch pine Christmas tree.

The family of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Underwood, Louisville, decorated their tree with traditional garlands of popcorn, cranberries and other edibles, only to find the tree bare of its festooning Sunday. The doleful hound had snacked.

Nixon sent reminder of 'ruined Yule'

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP)

— Parts of a destroyed Christmas tree are on their way to the Florida White House, a Christmas "gift" from about 500 Fort Wayne parishioners who claim President Nixon has ruined their holiday.

A gaily decorated Christmas tree, taken from the altar of the St. Mary's Catholic Church, was torn apart, its lights and decorations smashed, and stuffed into a box addressed to Nixon.

Larry Williamson, secretary of the parish council, said the pieces of the tree symbolized what Nixon had done to the Christmas of the world by renewing the bombing of North Vietnam.

ANTIWAR ACTIVIST John McInteer who has maintained peace vigil in Redding federal building since Nov. 2 will observe Vietnam bombing truce by taking off a few hours to enjoy Christmas turkey dinner with a friend.

Antiwar activist will mark Viet truce with Yule dinner

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — John McInteer's little red kerosene lamp will flicker through Christmas Day. But McInteer will share in America's holiday bombing truce by taking a four-hour break in his lonely vigil to go eat turkey with a friend.

McInteer, 52, of the Northern California mountain town of Redding, has maintained vigil at the federal building pretty much continuously since Nov. 2 to protest President Nixon's failure to sign for peace in Vietnam.

Sympathizers occasionally have spelled him at the rickety card table in the lobby, or on the concrete steps outside.

His longest break came against his will last week when he was locked up for 48 hours in the San Francisco County jail for soliciting donations to send medical aid to Hanoi.

McInteer's beard now is fuller and grayer, his face more deeply tanned than when he ignored the startled gasps of U.S. marshals just after lunchtime Nov. 2 and set up his table, lit a little red lamp and phoned himself down in the busy main lobby of the building in the heart of the city.

While officials rifled through the rule book for a way to get him out, he kept his lamp refueled from a can of kerosene beside him and checked his sleeping bag and clothes for the long cold nights he's have to spend outside.

After a little official harassment, the building officials left him alone. Somebody pinched his lamp while he was away for a few minutes one day. He quickly bought another one that's now chained to the table to keep a light what he said would be a flame to burn until there is peace in Vietnam.

"I didn't want to be here all the time," he said. But even with help from like-minded antiwar protesters he has been the mainstay of the vigil.

"I didn't think I'd still be here when I started," he said. "I was continuously optimistic."

As he laid out his toothbrush to dry and took off his shirt in readiness for another day in the sun, he said. "I can't think of anything more important than staying here until the bombing and killing and maiming stops. I'd be happy to work myself out of a job if President Nixon will sign a peace agreement."

Kitty Hawk blacks still in brig

Navy seen cracking down on dissidents

By EARL CALDWELL
New York Times Service

SAN DIEGO — While attention has focused on investigations into racial incidents, the Navy in recent weeks quietly has begun a crackdown on dissident black sailors.

Official sources have denied the existence of any crackdown but evidence to the contrary has been mounting since the carrier Kitty Hawk returned here from Southeast Asia late last month.

The Navy's racial problem drew wide attention in mid-August when it was disclosed that black and white crewmen had engaged for more than five hours in a bloody riot aboard the carrier as it was headed for the Vietnam war zone.

In that brawl, 46 crewmen were injured and 21 sailors — all of them black — were arrested and now are being held in the brig in San Diego.

The Navy has ordered that none of the accused blacks be released on bail although it has been announced that 19 of the 21 will face special and not general courts-martial. Under the Uniform Code of Military Justice the most serious offenses are decided in general courts-martial.

The Navy has issued a series of administrative orders that appear to be aimed primarily at black crewmen. These orders, among other things, make it illegal for blacks to give the clenched fist salute or to greet one another with a special handshake that is often referred to as "the dap," a more involved version of a black handshake widely used among civilians.

The Navy also has moved to discharge a number of the blacks involved in shipboard racial disputes. In addition to the incident on the Kitty Hawk, there also was a demonstration by blacks on the carrier Constellation that ended with the ship's captain returning the vessel to port and putting the dissidents ashore. There were about 125 sailors involved in that incident and sources say that at least half of them now have been given less than honorable discharges.

Other evidence of the crackdown came earlier this month when it was announced that a Kitty Hawk sailor, believed to have been photographed delivering a black power salute as the ship entered port Nov. 20, was fined, reduced in rank and ordered into custody.

Officially the sailor, Willie Paison, 24, was convicted in a captain's mast proceeding for violation of a lawful order, the Navy said. It was alleged that he wore dungarees when the ship's plan of the day called for "a proper blue uniform" in areas visible to the public, and that he was in a restricted, dangerous radar area.

News pictures taken when the carrier entered port showed Capt. Marland Townsend, commander of the Kitty Hawk, and behind him in a near silhouette against a radar dish were several sailors with fists raised. The Navy said that Paison was not tried on any charge relating to a salute.

He was convicted and ordered to forfeit half a month's pay for two months, reduced from E-3 to E-2 pay grade and placed in 30 days' correctional custody.

Some sources close to the situation said that the Navy's recent actions were not aimed so much at black sailors as much as they were designed to show that the racial friction that has cropped up recently was not the result of any permissiveness.

Charges to that effect "upset the Navy terrifically," informed sources said.

The charges came from older Navy officers who had earlier been accused of not enforcing directives intended to eliminate racial discrimination.

The recent investigation into the racial incidents — one conducted by a three-man subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee — has ended, but the committee's report is not expected until early next year.

Now where's the elusive billionaire?

Hughes quits hideaway in quake-ruined Managua

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Managua earthquake has propelled billionaire Howard Hughes from his hideaway in Nicaragua, a Hughes spokesman said Sunday.

But where did he go? Hughes spokesman Dick Hannah said he couldn't say where the meandering mystery man had gone — or even if he had arrived there.

But, Hannah said, Hughes — who coincidentally turned 67 Sunday — has left the devastated Latin American capital, his latest locale after earlier secluded stays in Las Vegas, Nev., the Bahamas and Vancouver, B.C.

Hughes and his staff of 12 to 15 left Managua early Sunday, Hannah said. All members of the Hughes party were unharmed by the earthquake, he said.

Hannah said Hughes had probably arrived at his destination, but because of his swift departure, there was "no place set up for him right away."

Hughes and his staff had been living in the Intercontinental Hotel, which was reported heavily damaged.

Hughes, who is reputed to be very protective of his health, once objected to nuclear testing in Nevada when he was living in Las Vegas because he said he feared it might cause earthquakes.

It was doubted Hughes would return to the United States because of possible legal difficulties involving his past and present financial empire. Complicated lawsuits involving Hughes date back to the time he owned Trans World Airlines, and more recently he refused to return to Nevada despite subpoenas involving the firing of his chief aide who oversaw his Nevada holdings.

The recluse was seen publicly in 1953 but said last year in a telephone interview with seven newsmen that he planned to come out of seclusion soon and lead a more normal life.

There has been no indication in the last year, however, that Hughes is changing his lifestyle.

After vanishing from his penthouse in Las Vegas on Thanksgiving eve of 1970, Hughes flew to the Bahamas. In February 1972 he went to Nicaragua to discuss an airline merger.

A month later he took up residence in a Vancouver hotel and shortly thereafter returned to Nicaragua.

His uncle, author Rupert Hughes, once said, "I can get in touch with The Almighty by dropping to my knees, but I don't know how to contact Howard."

Russ crack down on dissent in wake of Cold War thaw

By HEDRICK SMITH
New York Times Service
MOSCOW — As the Soviet Union has moved toward improved relations with the West this year, its secret police have mounted a determined campaign of repression against the domestic dissident movement that has left some dissenters feeling weaker, more vulnerable and more on the defensive than at any time since the mid-60s.

Since the year began, dissident sources report, more than 100 persons have been arrested in the Ukrainian republic as part of a crackdown against nationalist activities there, and at least a dozen have been given sentences of three to 15 years on charges of anti-Soviet activity.

EIGHT key activists in Moscow and other major cities have been arrested or tried in a year-old campaign to suppress the Chronicle of Current Events, the most important dissident publication. Since April, 1968, the publication has recorded activities of dissenters, the courts, the secret police and Soviet censors as they affect the rights campaign here.

Some other key activists, arrested previously, have been given long sentences or their terms in mental hospitals have been extended.

The 28-year-old stepdaughter of the physicist, Andrei D. Sakharov, now the figurehead leader of the civil rights movement here, has been suspended from Moscow State University, and two of his colleagues in the rights movement have been forced out of jobs and compelled to find other work.

A. I. SOLZHENITSYN
Friend Feels Pressure

Although no direct action has been taken against Aleksandr I. Solzhenitsyn, the Nobel Prize-winning author, authorities have reimposed a ban against foreign travel by Mstislav Rostropovich, the renowned cellist at whose home Solzhenitsyn lives.

But the most severe blow to dissidents recently has been the news that Pyotr A. Yakir, a 49-year-old historian who was until his arrest June 21 a leading figure in the small, loose dissident coalition known as the Democratic Movement, has given his police interrogators information about fellow dissenters.

ACCORDING to dissident sources, at least 25 persons have been summoned for questioning by the secret police on the basis of information either supplied or confirmed by Yakir, and some have reportedly been forced by the police to confront Yakir when they have denied what he had purportedly said.

Among those reportedly called in by the secret police are several scholars at the Institute of History in Moscow, where Yakir once worked, scientists at the complex of institutes in Obninsk, a city about 75 miles southwest of Moscow, and other intellectuals.

Moreover, close friends said that Yakir had told his daughter, Irina, during a meeting last month at Lefortovo Prison where he is held, that although he had not abandoned the basic principles of the rights struggle, he had now seen material from previous political trials showing that Soviet dissidents were being used, willingly or unwillingly, by anti-Soviet forces abroad, notably the Russian emigre organization the People's Labor Union, known as NTS for its initials in Russia.

To many dissidents, the case of the burly, bearded historian is especially poignant because as the son of Gen. Iona Yakir, a Soviet army officer shot in 1937 at the peak of the Stalinist purges, he spent 16 of his first 30 years in a prison camp. He was rehabilitated by Nikita S. Khrushchev in 1954 and became an active anti-Stalinist and rights-campaigner. He was long one of the most regular sources of information on dissident activities for foreign newsmen.

A FEW months before his arrest and after repeated police warnings that he was engaging in anti-Soviet activities, Yakir told one foreign reporter: "If they beat me, I will say anything. I know that from my former experience in the camps. But you know it will not be the real me speaking."

From brief contacts, those who have seen Yakir in the past few weeks report no obvious evidence of physical mistreatment. But he was known widely as a heavy drinker and has reportedly been denied alcohol in prison. Some dissidents said they understood that he had given information to interrogators only after having been hospitalized twice for deprivation of alcohol.

So demoralized was one Soviet dissident by the latest developments that when he was asked about their impact on the dissident movement, he replied: "What movement?" Sakharov, the physicist, has remarked privately that the situation has become worse for dissenters as Soviet relations have improved with Western nations, especially since the visit to Moscow last May of President Nixon. He contends that Soviet authorities now believe that Western public opinion is more concerned with improving relations and trade and will thus ignore police actions against Soviet civil-rights activists. Other dissidents share that view.

THE ONE major exception to the general contraction of the dissident movement is Jewish emigration activity, which has had its periodic ups and downs at critical junctures of Soviet-American diplomacy but still maintains a sense of dynamism.

Dissenters also note that Chronicle of Current Events has managed to come out four times this year despite a reported order by the Communist Party's Central Committee last Dec. 30 that it be suppressed by the secret police.

'72 vintage year but what's ahead?

Challenge for Soviet foreign policy

By PETER J. SHAW

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union's foreign policy enjoyed a vintage year in 1972, the Nixon summit, a strategic arms limitation pact, falling barriers to Soviet-American trade, tacit acceptance of the Potsdam status quo in Europe, the beginnings of a European security conference, and improved links with West Germany and India.

The challenge in 1973 will be the sober task of maintaining what has been won.

SEASONED diplomats and observers predict that talks on European force reductions and the unavoidable frictions of a full-dress European security conference will give Soviet diplomacy its severest tests in 1973.

"Achieving agreement on force reductions will be just as difficult, or more difficult, as the strategic arms limitation talks," a veteran Western diplomat said. "If anything is likely to take the gloss off the triumphs of 1972, this will."

Diplomatic betting at the moment is that the Kremlin will do all it can, short of compromising security and internal stability, to make the international stability, to make the international parleys a multisided success.

Some diplomats who foresee Soviet flexibility in any talks on reduction of forces in Europe say the Kremlin may wish to extend such dialogues to include nuclear arms as well as troop numbers.

Their reckoning is based on the economic drain of supplying nuclear arsenals for two potential fronts, Europe and China.

Virtually no one expects any change in 1973 in the Sino-Soviet stalemate on border talks and the ideological rift.

THE BORDER talks apparently are stalled over Soviet refusal to heed China's demand for at least a partial withdrawal of the 1 million Soviet troops Peking says are massed along the border.

Soviet offers of olive branches in the ideological split were ignored by the Chinese in 1972 and will be, one diplomat said, "as long as Mao Tse-Tung is in charge."

The rosy euphoria that accompanied better Soviet-American relations in 1972 may dull somewhat in 1973.

Diplomatic contacts have been warming steadily under a Kremlin directive — confirmed by Russians and Americans alike — to be "freer and easier." But the great trade boom remains distant.

"Both nations have been led to expect too much in the way of mutual economic benefits," a Moscow veteran said. "The hard facts are that the trade balance remains 3-1 in America's favor and is not going to shift in 1973. The big deals for Soviet natural gas that could change things are not feasible until the end of the decade."

One key to a trade upsurge — most favored nation tariff status for the Soviet Union — remained threatened by 75 U.S. senators who vowed to thwart approval if Moscow does not rescind or tone down a "diploma tax" on would-be emigrants. No clear picture of Soviet policy regarding the tax had emerged at year's end.

MODERATION in Soviet-American projects for environmental and scientific research is expected in 1973. There will be a smaller, more selective number of projects because the volume of talks up to now has been wearing down the bureaucracies of both nations.

No major new agreements are anticipated when Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Communist Party general secretary, visits Washington in April.

Diplomats say Brezhnev and President Nixon will review the progress of the pacts signed in Moscow last May. One predicted

LEONID I. BREZHNEV
To Visit U.S. in April

Brezhnev "may not be very happy" about the pace of economic cooperation although both sides should "make every effort to smooth things over."

Factually, most diplomats and observers think China will remain the Kremlin's top preoccupation in 1973, largely because of security fears. "The new Soviet-American friendship is a big and major switch," one European diplomat said. "It is not just for tactical purposes, but a permanent change based on a permanent fact — the nuclear arms balance and the need to keep arms at a reasonable economic and military level."

FOLLOWING a Vietnam cease-fire, the Soviet Union will likely continue to support Hanoi politically but do nothing to provoke a confrontation with the United States should hostilities reignite. Diplomats think the Kremlin will continue to press for the neutralization of Southeast Asia as a step that would curb Chinese influence.

Moscow will probably maintain its tough line against Israel in 1973 and keep the door shut on any possible renewal of major involvement in Egypt, whose ouster of Soviet advisers in 1972 was embarrassing, albeit welcome, for the Kremlin.

Harris Survey

Expectations told of 2nd Nixon term

By LOUIS HARRIS

Sizable majorities of the American people expect that a second Nixon Administration will yield real progress in relations with Russia and China abroad while making gains in controlling air and water pollution here at home.

At the same time, the public is doubtful that President Nixon will be able to keep his campaign pledges of cutting federal spending and avoid raising taxes. People are similarly skeptical that the President will succeed in controlling inflation and in reducing unemployment, or that he will be able to prevent school busing to achieve racial balance.

On two key Nixon objectives, the public is divided: by a narrow 43-41 per cent, a small plurality feels the President "will be able to unify the country"; but by 47-37 per cent, a plurality also doubts that he will be "able to establish a generation of peace."

A nationwide cross section of 1,504 households was asked:

"In his second term in the White House, do you think President Nixon will (READ ITEMS ON LIST) or don't you think he will do that?"

PUBLIC EXPECTATIONS FROM SECOND
NIXON ADMINISTRATION

	Will	Will	Not
	Do	Not	Do
Expand trade with Russia and China far beyond what it has ever been before	82	11	9
Come to further major agreements with the Russians on arms control limitations	76	13	11
Make real progress in controlling air and water pollution	63	26	11
Expand help for the poor	58	32	10
Help minorities achieve equality	52	32	16
Get along with the Democratic controlled Congress	45	41	14
Put in major tax reforms	43	37	20
Unify the country	43	41	16
Prevent school busing for racial balance	40	42	18
Keep federal spending in line	40	47	13
Reduce unemployment	39	48	13
Establish a generation of peace	37	47	16
Control inflation	36	51	13
Avoid increasing federal taxes	23	61	13

Taken as a whole, it is apparent that the public has more confidence that progress can be made in foreign than domestic policy by a second Nixon administration.

However, there are some surprising areas of optimism on the domestic front. Although he has had a vigorous agency dealing with environmental pollution, nonetheless in the latter stages of the campaign, Nixon vetoed a massive water pollution control bill, which was then promptly passed over his veto by both houses of Congress. Subsequently, he has refused to allocate all of the funds appropriated on Capitol Hill. Nevertheless, by 63-26 per cent, the public expects to see real progress on air and water pollution in the next four years.

Perhaps the most interesting finding is on the racial issue. Here, a majority of 52-32 per cent feels Nixon in his second term will "help minorities achieve equality," and, by 42-40 per cent, the public doubts he can "prevent school busing for racial balance." Ironically, it is the South which leads the rest of the country in these twin expectations regarding racial developments, with a 57-23 per cent majority in that region expecting help from Washington for minorities and a 47-34 per cent plurality doubtful that school busing will be checked.

It is now obvious he won the South heavily in spite of serious white misgivings about future gains for blacks under Nixon. The results among blacks are equally interesting. For they feel, by 56-27 per cent, that the President will "not be able to prevent busing" and by 45-38 per cent, that he "will not help minorities achieve equality." In a sense, Nixon starts out with the worst of both worlds on the racial issue.

In the economic area, the doubts about what the President can do to ease the twin problems of inflation and unemployment reflect the continuing worries the American people have that the worst of our economic troubles have not been solved by the price and wage control program. To the contrary, these negative expectations should be taken as a sign that any early attempts to ease the controls system will likely be met by sizable public hostility.

Law gives parents tax break

Up to $4,800 yearly allowed for child care

By LYNNE OLSON Associated Press

If you're a working parent, you may be eligible for a new, little known tax break on child care when you file your 1972 federal income-tax return.

Under a clause in the 1971 tax law, which just went into effect this year, working couples and single parents can deduct up to $400 a month, or $4,800 a year, the costs of child-care and household help.

Previously, the maximum deduction for child care was $900 a year and applied only to working women who made less than $8,000 annually.

According to the new statute, you may deduct the wages of a babysitter — or a housekeeper, cook or maid if her duties involve child care.

If your child is cared for outside your home — in a nursery school, summer camp or day-care center — the maximum deduction for child care is $200 a month, including transportation costs between your house and the place where the care is given.

But another $200 can be deducted monthly for household help, as long as its purpose is to free the mother to work.

If you have two children, up to $300 can be deducted for outside care and $100 for household help. With three or more children, up to $400 can be deducted for care outside the home, but nothing for a maid or housekeeper.

YOU'RE eligible for the deduction if you have children under the age of 15 or dependents over 15 who are physically or mentally unable to take care of themselves.

As with any tax regulation, there are several limitations.

In the case of a couple, both parents must work for money neither can be a volunteer. Work, however, can be done at home as long as income is gained from it.

All child-care and household-help records must be kept and the couple must file a joint return.

Four hundred dollars is the maximum that can be spent in any one month. In other words, you cannot spend $800 in January and $200 in February, then average the two months' costs to $400 a month.

If the two of you earn over $18,000 a year, your child care deduction is reduced proportionately. You can figure the reduction by subtracting $1 from the deduction for each $2 earned over $18,000.

If your combined incomes exceed $27,600, you're not eligible for any deductions.

Will the new deduction encourage more women to get jobs?

A SPOKESMAN for the Tax Corp. of America, the second largest tax preparation service in the country, says he thinks it will. His company has been receiving many inquiries from women about the deduction, he says.

"As more and more women find out about it," he adds, "more and more are going back to work."

Britten D. Richards, Bloomington, Ind., attorney and executive director of the National Association of Married Working Couples, isn't so sure.

Pointing out that the wage ceiling for a single parent is the same as for the combined incomes of husband and wife, Richards says it wouldn't pay many wives to go to work because their added incomes would make the couples ineligible for the deduction.

Single parents have much more of an advantage under the new statute than do married couples, he says.

But, he adds, "despite its defects, married women are certainly better off with the new deduction than with the old."

Shades of Lyndon; Texans again in high U.S. posts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If you scratch official Washington these days, the "ouch" frequently will have a Texas drawl. It's nothing like when LBJ ran the show but several Texans are in high Washington jobs, particularly on Capitol Hill.

Although no Texan holds a job in the traditional Cabinet, President Nixon has named Anne Armstrong a special counselor in the White House, with Cabinet rank.

Mrs. Armstrong, wife of a Texas rancher, has been co-chairman of the Republican Party. Her White House job marks the first time a woman has held Cabinet rank since another Texan, publisher Oveta Culp Hobby of Houston, was secretary of Health, Education and Welfare under Dwight D. Eisenhower.

If Nixon's appointments subject to congressional approval go through, the deputy secretary of Defense will be William P. Clements, a Dallas oilman.

John Connally, Navy secretary under John Kennedy and for a while Treasury secretary under Nixon, remains in a special advisory status with Nixon and the President says he will be using Connally from time to time for special projects.

Both major national political parties have Texans at their head: George Bush of Houston at the GOP and Robert Strauss of Dallas with the Democrats.

IN THE CAPITOL, the seniority system has given Texas some important leverage. George Mahon heads the House Appropriations Committee, which some call the most important.

The House Banking Committee chairman is Rep. Wright Patman, who also has become the dean of the House.

The House Agriculture Committee is headed by Rep. Bob Pogue, and the new chairman of the Science and Astronautics Committee will be Rep. Olin E. Eague.

Rep. Jack Brooks, who has headed the Joint Committee on Congressional Operations, becomes its vice chairman for two years, in the system that alternates between Senate and House chairmen.

In the Senate, John G. Tower, a Republican, is ranking GOP member of the Banking Committee and is second-ranking GOP member of Armed Services.

Among the federal agencies, there are Rush Moody and Pinkney Walker on the Federal Power Commission, Luther Holcomb and Raymond Telles on the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, and Willard Deason of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Ho! Ho! Ho!

at airport

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — What does a hijack-conscious security guard do when a man wearing a Santa Claus suit and carrying a bulging sack starts to board an airplane.

Guards at Hopkins International Airport dutifully went through all the packages the costumed fellow was carrying in his sack Sunday afternoon.

But just as Edward Cline had said, all were Christmas gifts, and he was finally cleared for the flight to Washington, D.C.

Cline, of Tiffin, Ohio, and his wife planned to pay a surprise visit to relatives. The red suit was part of the holiday surprise, they said.

It's quirk,
farm livers

By BERNARD BRENNER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A statistical quirk in a still-unpublished government survey will produce results appearing to show a slight increase in the nation's farm population this year.

But privately, Agriculture Department experts believe the number of Americans celebrating Christmas on farms today probably is down again to the lowest level since about 1835.

The department's annual estimate of farm population in April, not yet officially published, will show about 9.5 million persons living on farms, or about 4.6 per cent of the total population. This would be about 57,000 above the 1971 farm population estimate of 9,425,000 persons also 4.6 per cent of total population. The indicated increase is the first shown since 1955 when the 19,078,000 estimate was up 59,000 from the previous year.

HOWEVER, one Agriculture Department population specialist said the increase shown for 1972 probably is a result of a chance "sampling error" which statisticians know can occur within predictable limits in all sampling surveys.

The procedures used in the department's annual farm population sampling can allow a variation of 250,000 persons, the expert explained. He said all signs indicate that despite the 1972 survey results, the farm population probably did not go up this year and likely declined slightly.

Agriculture Department records show, however, that the rate of decline in the farm population has been slowing in recent years. Between 1960 and 1961 for example the number of people living on farms dropped by 832,000.

From 1970 to 1971, the decline was only 287,000.

CURRENT estimates of farm population, according to department records, are the lowest since some time between 1830 and 1840, with 1835 representing a good guess as the last time the number was as low as 9.5 million. The hazy records of the time show the number of people on farms probably was below 9.5 million in 1830, but almost certainly had topped that level by 1840.

The 9.5 million Americans living on farms in 1835, according to these estimates, were feeding a total U.S. population of about 15 million. The same number of farmers in 1973 have provided enough food to serve Christmas dinners to a total population of about 200 million.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U.N. officials announced they have signed a $2.3-million contract with engineering firms to study a planned 1,400-mile road across the Sahara Desert. The road is expected to boost trade and tourism in the region.

Pentagon to close Thai unit

ARPA accused of policy-making role, intelligence activity

BANGKOK (UPI) — A Pentagon agency accused of intelligence and policy-making roles in Thailand over the last 10 years will quietly close its doors at the end of this month as part of the wind-down in America's military role in Southeast Asia.

It is a field facility of the Pentagon's Advanced Research Projects Agency (ARPA), a little known organization that develops classified electronic research and intelligence systems as well as more mundane items such as new combat packs, boots and field rations.

ARPA's office here was billed as a facility to help Thailand's military develop its own research and development capability when it was opened in 1962.

It grew to an organization with a staff of more than 140 and became by far the largest of ARPA's five overseas branches, spending about half of a $25-million yearly budget for a program known as Project Agile.

ARPA's Bangkok office also became involved in wider activities such as defoliation and counterinsurgency work, leading to charges that the advisory role to the Thai military was merely a cover for other jobs.

Almost to a man, the professional staff of about 30 American scientists that has phased out the facility's last research projects over the last few months feels that much of the criticism has been unjustified, their reputation tarnished unjustly and the ARPA office's closing perhaps hastened a bit as a result.

"WE WERE always regarded as the guys in the black hats just because we worked for the Pentagon," said one of ARPA's civilian scientists.

There has been criticism that the agency was virtually a power unto itself that could move into any area it wanted. When U.S. Ambassador Leonard Ungar appeared before Senate hearings on the U.S. role in Thailand three years ago, he was questioned about ARP and testified that it was engaged in other activities besides its joint research activities with Thai scientists.

But Ungar, who as the top American official in Thailand was supposed to have control over ARPA's activities, had to admit to the committee that he didn't know what the agency was doing in many areas. Neither did the top U.S. military commander in Thailand at the time.

OFFICIAL confirmation still is not available that the agency used airplanes of Air America, a charter line that works for the CIA and other U.S. government agencies in Southeast Asia, to defoliate an area of jungle in Thailand in 1965 and 1966.

An ARPA source said the defoliating was done to test results in an area under secure conditions that were not available in Vietnam. The same source said when the Thai government sought ARPA's help some time later to defoliate an area in North Thailand where Communist guerrillas were active, the request was refused on grounds the defoliants had been found harmful to animals and humans.

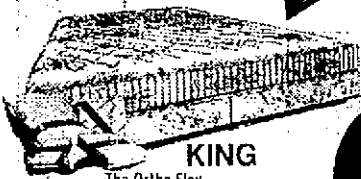

ARPA also ran projects to gather intelligence material on Communist guerrillas from Thai sources. In addition, ARPA teams helped develop ground and airborne sensor systems to detect Communist movement through the jungle, some of which have had applications in the electronic warfare system the United States has used to locate bombing targets in Laos and Vietnam.

Bereaved father urges calm Blacks check fury in youth's slaying

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Tears form in Shirley Brewer's eyes when he shows visitors the two dozen sports trophies and medals his 15-year-old son, Raymond, won in what promised to be the start of a brilliant sports career.

But the bereaved father urges his son's black classmates and neighbors not lash back at the white officers who shot and killed the youth in what police call a "tragic coincidence."

He also tells his other four children that they must still respect the law and pray for justice.

SO FAR, Sacramento's black community — although seething and bitter over the police slaying of the black youth — has heeded the father's pleas for nonviolence. In angry but non-violent confrontations with city officials, blacks have demanded and won concessions and promises of reforms and public investigations of the police.

SCHOOL FRIENDS CARRY casket of Raymond Brewer, right, at recent funeral in Sacramento. Plainclothes police officers on a stakeout mistook Raymond for gunman and killed him.

died was a dreary, cold, overcast Sunday with signs of a coming rainstorm. The five Brewer children had spent much of the day indoors in their small but comfortable home in a pleasant, integrated subdivision in north Sacramento.

But after the football games on television, Raymond was restless. He and two friends from down the street decided to go roller-skating at a rink about a mile away on Del Paso Boulevard.

They talked Raymond's older brother, Stan, 19 into giving them a ride over to the rink in his car, but they each took short pieces of broom handle to protect themselves from vicious dogs in the area on the walk home.

RAYMOND, in particular, was frightened of dogs. He had been bitten two years earlier and had gone through a painful series of antirabies shots.

Ever since then, said his mother, Velma, Raymond never went far from home without a stick to keep the dogs away.

When they started home from the skating rink, it was just after dark, about 6:30 p.m., and the three black youths were carrying their sticks.

They took a shortcut behind the rink and were walking north toward home across a broad, dark intersection where three streets and railroad tracks converge three blocks behind the rink.

About then, a man shouted and several figures moved toward them. The boys ran.

The men, it turned out later, were plainclothes policemen with unmarked cars. It was a stakeout for three black gunmen wanted for seven robberies in that neighborhood over the past two weeks — in which sawed-off shotguns had been used.

A pregnant woman had been shot in the leg in one robbery, and victims had been kicked and beaten in others. Undercover units had been combing the area, and a few minutes earlier a bartender reported suspicious black men around his tavern at the all-white southern end of El Paso Boulevard.

THE WIDE intersection Raymond and his two friends were crossing was just behind a rear entrance to that tavern. Police said later that the sticks looked like the sawed-off shotguns the robbers were believed to be armed with.

The officers said they identified themselves by shouting and ordered the boys to halt. Raymond's two companions said they heard shouts, but didn't hear anyone say "police." The officers fired, and Raymond was hit. His friend, 15-year-old Adrian Richardson, said he tried to carry Raymond, but Raymond was hit again. He was found dead on the sidewalk in a pool of blood with gunshot wounds in the leg and back. Police wrestled the other boys into submission. Friends of the boys say they were beaten with gun butts, but police have refused comment pending completion of a district attorney's investigation.

"If they had been white, Raymond would be alive," said Don Chaney, 27, who organized a protest march by 1,000 black youths after Raymond's death.

"If they are after a black suspect, police go and put pistols in the faces of every black they see — young, old, whatever. All it is innocent people getting hurt," Chaney said.

Chaney's complaint is echoed by black leaders throughout California's capital city. Rosenwald Robertson, a black city councilman who lives in the same block with the Berbers, said many blacks look on Sacramento's police as "some kind of occupation force."

Eleven per cent of Sacramento's 268,000 residents are black, and so are 12 per cent of the city's police force. But the highest ranking black in the department is a sergeant. Robertson is pushing for appointment of a black police captain "so that black people will begin to feel that the police department belongs to them, too."

Robertson and a young white councilman, Phillip Isenberg, have spurred City Council action in the case. So far, these events have taken place:

—The council has named a 23-member, multiracial citizens committee to investigate the police department, which was one demand of black leaders.

—The council also directed the city to pay for Raymond's funeral, another black leaders' demand.

—The three officers in the case have been taken off patrol duties and reassigned to desk jobs pending a district attorney's investigation, but Police Chief William Kinney has refused demands that they be suspended while the investigation is being made.

—A new gun policy restricting police use of weapons was imposed by Kinney.

—Two City Council meetings have been filled with black demands for "justice and changes," and numerous meetings have been held in black neighborhoods between council meetings to hammer out black demands.

—An estimated 1,000 blacks marched to city hall chanting: "All we want is justice." They explained that by justice they meant the three officers involved in the shooting should be tried on murder charges.

—Raymond's school held memorial services and flew the flag at half staff for a week. No regular school events were canceled on request of the Brewer family.

—Police and school officials report "high tension" in black areas and in the schools, but there have been no reports of violence.

lence, riots, looting or racial incidents.

Shirley Brewer also talks of justice, but his is a voice softer than that of many demonstrators, and sometimes drops almost to a whisper.

"I'm not a jury," he said in an interview at his home. "I'm not a judge. I don't have the knowledge or training for that."

"I'm just his father, and I pray justice will be done," he said.

"I teach my children all the time, respect the law, because we depend on the law to protect us. 'I'm going to continue to tell my children to respect the law."

"I want justice done, and I'll be satisfied in memory of Raymond. I don't blame all policemen. I'd be wrong if I did. I just want justice to the officers who killed my boy — not for my sake, but for my children's sake and for all the rest of these parents and children around here. Then we will feel safe," said Brewer, his wife Velma sitting quietly at his side.

PRAYER, justice and respect for law were also Brewer's message to Raymond's teammates and friends when he went to Raymond's high school after his son's death to accept Raymond's last sports honor — the junior varsity football team's most valuable player of the year award.

Raymond starred in every sport he tried. In Little League baseball he started winning trophies at the age of 8. He had collected trophies and medals in a variety of track events.

He didn't try football until he was 14, but as soon as he entered high school last September he started breaking junior varsity records. He chalked up his 21st touchdown in nine games a week before he died.

"It's hard to predict what a kid might have done, and I wouldn't make predictions now about what Raymond might have done," said football coach Ken Brooks. "But his statistics were far above any other athlete I have coached. He had everything he needed."

"Raymond would have gone a long way," his father said softly. He pointed to a wall covered with newspaper clippings of older brother Stan's track and football feats in high school and junior college and said, "If Raymond had lived he would have had a lot more, a lot more."

ROBERTSON, who is a minister as well as city councilman, says the killing was more than just a case of a few policemen making a mistake or acting hastily. He calls it a "dramatic, tragic example" of police attitudes toward blacks.

a wanton act on the part of the officers," Police Chief William Kinney said the day after the killing. "It was, instead, an incredible chain of coincidence and circumstance."

Since then, Kinney — a slender and soft-spoken veteran of 32 years on the Sacramento police force — has refused to discuss details of the case pending completion of the district attorney's investigation.

But Kinney has also refused to discuss an impressive list of reforms in police training, the handling of juveniles and community relations which he had made in the two years he has been chief.

"It would not be appropriate to appear to be bragging about our accomplishments at this time," Kinney said in an interview.

MANY OF the changes already made are similar to the demands of Sacramento's black leaders, and they earned Kinney a "no confidence" vote from a majority of officers in his department.

One was a policy limiting the use of weapons to cases in which an officer or citizen is in danger or in the pursuit of suspects in felony cases involving serious injury or the threat of deadly force.

That policy — proposed before young Brewer's death but opposed by the police officers association — was imposed by Kinney after the shooting. But he refused to speculate on whether it would have prevented Raymond Brewer's death.

However, Sgt. James Jorgensen, president of the city's police officers association, says flatly it would have made no difference.

"It was unavoidable," Jorgensen said. Members of the police force "all feel it is a tragedy, and they all feel bad about it, but they all feel it was an unavoidable, tragic coincidence."

"They were in their minds chasing fleeing felons armed with shotguns. They didn't willfully or wantonly kill this youth. It is just as much a tragedy to these officers as to the community," Jorgensen said.

BOTH BLACK and white Sacramento leaders say they are hopeful that the investigations and the community meetings triggered by Raymond's death will continue to be peaceful.

"Sacramento has a sizable number of blacks who are trying to remain cool and calm," Robertson said. "But the calm may not continue if some things are not followed through."

"I don't want any violence or destruction or demonstration in Raymond's name," said the dead youth's father. "I can't hate. I'm just not made that way," he said.

War tied to public distaste for technology

By LINDA KRAMER

BERKELEY (AP) — Nobel laureate Dr. Edwin McMillan, retiring as director of the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory, says the Vietnam War has led to a public distaste for scientific technology.

McMillan said the war and general economic trends also have produced cutbacks in government funding for scientific research.

"Not only does the war take money, but there is the general public disaffection with technology and its products which seems tied into this somehow," he said in an interview.

"It is a sociological question," he continued. "Why should the nation as a whole reduce support for research? There is no single clear-cut reason for this unfortunate trend."

McMILLAN said that after World War II scientists were admired by the public. "Scientists had proved themselves as useful citizens of the nation."

He was one of the Manhattan project scientists under the direction of J. Robert Oppenheimer at Los Alamos, N.M. who helped design, build and test the first atomic bomb between 1943 and 1945.

"Society today doesn't

NOBEL LAUREATE DR. EDWIN McMILLAN
Retiring as Director of Lawrence Radiation Lab

have the feeling science is great and good as it did after the war," McMillan said.

"Scientific work to support a nation's war effort is traditional and most of us at Los Alamos worked with enthusiasm," the 65-year-old physicist added. "Most of the people I knew thought about it as something they had to do."

"We knew very well what we were creating," he said. "Some had serious thoughts about what would happen after, but I can't claim that I agonized about it afterwards."

McMILLAN said the novelty of the Manhattan Project was the "new order of magnitude of scientific-military work" which marked the beginning of a new era of government support for scientific research.

However, he said government grants to science began to level off in 1967 and have regularly diminished since then.

McMillan said the Atomic Energy Commission's national laboratories, such as the Lawrence Lab, are "great national assets," and warned lack of government support for scientific research could "erode the whole basis of this highly advanced society."

McMillan, educated at the California Institute of Technology, became director of Lawrence in 1958 after the death of his close friend and colleague E. O. Lawrence.

He shared the 1959 Nobel Prize in Chemistry for the earlier co-discovery of two transuranium elements work which enabled the United States to produce plutonium.

IN 1963 he shared the Aloms for Peace Prize for the independent discovery of the theory of phase stability. The principle involved made possible the construction of a high speed nuclear accelerator called a syncontron.

"In neither of these cases were my discoveries part of a research project," McMillan recalled. "They were almost peripheral to other things I was doing."

He said the theory of phase stability came to him "like a flash of inspiration" one night at Los Alamos.

Although known for his research in physics, McMillan noted that his interests and the work of the Lawrence Laboratory extend into medicine, biology, engineering and other areas.

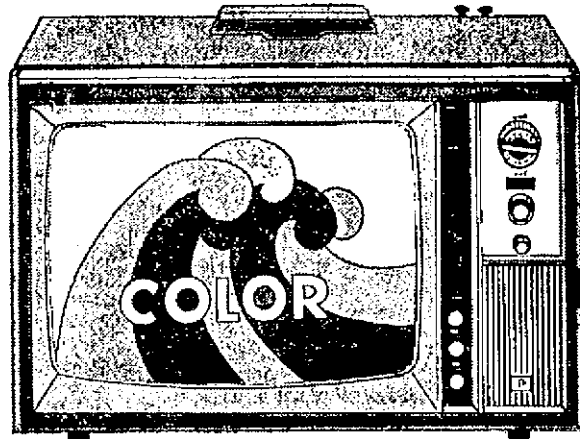

A native Californian, McMillan says he was a conservationist before it became popular.

"I'm horrified at what can happen if we have uncontrolled development and population growth," he said.

SST mock-up torn down

Workmen are shown disassembling the Boeing Co.'s SST mock-up after Marks Morrison, a Nebraska junk dealer, bought it at auction for $31,000. He plans to display the 288-foot model in a museum near Disneyworld, Florida. Designed to cross the Atlantic in 3 hours, the SST will cross the country from Seattle at speeds up to 60 mph, in railroad cars.

SST revival hinted, denied as mock-up is dismantled

By TIM KLASS

SEATTLE (AP) — The poster shows three mug shots of people in their 20s, front and side view, all with long hair, casual dress and uncomfortable expressions. One is bearded.

"These people are known foster parents," the poster proclaims. "They are young, single, nontraditional and have opened their homes to teens 13-17 with similar beliefs and lifestyles."

They've done so under a program initiated by Youth Advocates, a non-profit corporation organized three years ago by young people in Seattle. Since last January, YA has been authorized by the Washington State Department of Social and Health Services to license foster parents.

They say they've found homes for 50-75 youngsters who would otherwise have taken to the streets. But then, some took to the streets again.

"We're doing better than anyone else, which isn't saying much," says Susan Pierce, 22, YA's information coordinator. "The kids do feel free to tell us their problems, and most of our referrals have been self-referrals. We have a very good name in the runaway network."

She said YA began with drop-in crisis intervention centers. Each troubled youth is given an older "advocate" who helps him deal with police, parents, school officials or the courts.

The toughest problem turned out to be teen-agers under 18 who repeatedly run away from white middle-class homes.

Sometimes other parents let them stay awhile with friends. They might move on with older boyfriends or girlfriends. Life becomes a frantic chase from one acquaintance to another, sometimes ending up with strangers who provide food and shelter in exchange for sex.

OFTEN they become involved — or increase their involvement — with drugs. Eventually they get caught or, turn themselves in.

The cycle may repeat itself often as 15 times a year. After awhile they or their parents get desperate.

"They might visit us and 10 other agencies," said Joan Springer, 26, foster care coordinator.

Regular foster care means "back into another father-mother type situation... another authoritarian situation," she said.

"But they've already seen the family situation fall so many times."

If the YA staff and the youngster agree that that's what's needed, however, they seek a foster home through a more established agency — usually Public Assistance.

"We just respect the right of the young person to adopt values of his own," said Cecilia Greenberger, 21. "If they're different from the mainstream that we've got to provide a different sort of environment."

"The people we license have to relate to the youth generation," said Ms. Springer. "They have to have an understanding of young people... and want to support them in developing survival skills."

They also have to meet legal requirements. In exchange for $118 a month, foster parents must be at least 21 years old and provide the youth a room of his own in a residence meeting safety standards.

"They have to take the traditional legal responsibility," says Howard Murphy, another staffer. "But young people, when they're put into foster care, have to take responsibility for themselves. We don't take responsibility for them. The negotiations are between the kid and the foster parents."

"We are not looking for conformity," Ms. Greenberger said. "We're looking for healthy young people."

Brothers die in plane crash

GREAT BEND, Kan. (AP) — The two men who were killed in a plane crash near Great Bend Saturday have been identified as brothers from Colorado.

The pilot was Bernard Walker, 34, of Fort Lupton, and his brother Russell Walker, 27, of Dacona, sheriff's officers said Sunday.

Survivors of Andes air crash face psychiatric problems, doctor says

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Survivors of the Oct. 13 Uruguayan plane crash on a jagged peak in the Andes may suffer serious psychiatric problems because of their 70-day ordeal in the snow-covered mountains, a Chilean air force physician said Sunday.

Dr. Eduardo Sanchez said the 16 survivors of the 46 aboard the plane had been subjected to "intense and prolonged emotional stress" in their struggle for life on a 16,500-foot peak.

"This could provoke serious psychiatric problems in the future," he said.

"Seeing their friends die and fighting for survival on a reduced diet and inside a wrecked fuselage may cause unseen scars that will never heal."

Sanchez was the first physician to examine the 16 young men, who returned to civilization Friday and Saturday after being given up for dead.

HELICOPTERS ferried the group to a hospital in nearby San Fernando for emergency treatment and then flew the survivors to Santiago, 120 miles northwest.

The Uruguayan air force F27 turboprop was chartered by the Old Christian Brothers rugby team in Montevideo for a series of games in Chile.

It vanished 10 weeks ago on a Trans-Andean flight to Santiago from the Argentine city of Mendoza, in the foothills of the mountains.

The dead included the five crew members and all five women passengers.

Fifteen survivors were taken to the elegant Sheraton San Cristobal Hotel on the outskirts of Santiago. They held a noisy, joyous reunion there with families, friends and members of the Chilean military rescue crew.

4 children listed among 39 dead after plane crashes in Norway

OSLO (UPI) — Police Sunday set the death toll in the crash of a Norwegian plane at 39 as an investigation commission began its work at the scene of Norway's worst air disaster since 1961. The dead included four children.

A police spokesman said a woman passenger died of her injuries and that three persons listed as missing earlier were confirmed killed.

The twin-engined Fokker Friendship turbo-prop plane, owned by the Norwegian Braathens S.A.F.E., was carrying 42 passengers and a crew of three when it went down about 16 miles west of Oslo Saturday night.

The condition of one of the remaining six survivors, a woman, was listed as serious, the spokesman said. He said the other survivors were out of danger.

The plane was on a domestic flight from Alesund on Norway's west coast to Oslo with Christmas travelers when it ploughed into a forest in thick fog minutes before its scheduled landing at Fornebu airport at 4:40 p.m.

All passengers were Norwegians, except one, who was a Dane, the airline said.

One of the survivors, Sigfried Thamasse, said in a television interview that everything seemed normal until the crash.

"I heard a terrible bang and lost consciousness. When I woke up I heard people crying and felt that I was very cold," he said from his hospital bed. It took two air force helicopters and a 1,000-man search party six hours to locate the still burning wreckage in the rugged wooded area outside the capital.

More U.S. vetoes expected in U.N. security council

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The setup in the U.N. Security Council in the new year will be tailor-made for more U.S. vetoes.

The U.S. has used the veto twice — once on Rhodesia March 17, 1970, and once on the Middle East last Sept. 19.

When the council's membership changes on New Year's Day, votes against U.S. positions on both issues will be easier to get.

That is the way it looks from a study of the voting patterns of the 15 countries that will be on the council then.

The kind of resolution the U.S. dislikes — such as condemning American chrome imports from boycotted Rhodesia or hitting Israeli reprisal raids without also condemning prior Palestinian guerrilla attacks — will have a better chance of getting the nine votes needed for adoption.

WHENEVER that happens, the U.S. can kill the resolution with the veto. And the Nixon administration has made clear that it will not shrink from using that privilege.

Five nonpermanent members of the council will be finishing two-year terms and five new ones will be taking their places.

The new members will be Kenya for Somalia, Indonesia for Japan, Peru for Argentina, and Australia and Austria for Belgium and Italy.

The new members seem sure to take harder stands not only against the U.S. but also against Israel, Rhodesia, Portugal and South Africa.

The way a country votes on a particular resolution in the General Assembly can be taken as a pretty good indication of the way it will usually — though not necessarily always — vote on a similar resolution in the council.

BY THAT yardstick, Kenya should vote in the council about like Somalia — against Israel's conduct toward the Arabs. Rhodesia's white minority rule, Portugal colonialism, South Africa's race segregation and its refusal to let the United Nations take over South West Africa.

Indonesia and Peru are more likely than Japan and Argentina to vote for anti-Israel, anticolonial and antiapartheid resolutions.

Austria votes about like Belgium and Italy, often abstaining on Middle Eastern and Southern African issues.

Australia abstains from voting for resolutions against Israel but it votes down the line for resolutions against colonialism.

In General Assembly committees before the Australian election, when the Labor Party unseated the ruling Liberal Country coalition, Australia voted against a resolution condemning U.S. imports of Rhodesian chrome and nickel, and abstained from voting on resolutions endorsing liberation movements and urging Britain to call a Rhodesian constitutional conference.

WHEN THE same resolutions came up for final approval in the assembly itself after the election, Australia voted in favor of all three.

In the assembly, the present 15 council members voted 8-4 with 3 abstentions for the resolution against American metal imports from Rhodesia. If they had been voting in the council, that would have been one short of the majority needed to pass it.

The countries that will be on the council next year gave it a passing vote — 11-3 with 1 abstention.

Chinese troupe concerned for audience

CHICAGO (AP) — A spokesman for a Chinese acrobatic troupe whose performance Saturday night was disrupted by tear gas said Sunday that the group's main concern was for the safety of the audience.

"They were really marvelous," said Jan Berris of the National Committee on U.S. China Relations, which is sponsoring the American tour of the Shenyang Acrobatic Troupe.

"Their biggest concern was if anybody in the audience has been hurt," Miss Berris added. "We Americans involved in the troupe were more upset than the performers. They (the Chinese) kept saying, 'It doesn't matter. It doesn't matter.'"

No injuries were reported in the Saturday night incident.

That group, which is the first theatrical troupe from the People's Republic of China to perform in the United States, had just finished its second number when a tear gas canister erupted on the main floor of the Lyric Opera House.

Owner of cafe found slain

FRESNO (UPI) — The owner and operator of a recently opened roadside cafe was found dead over the weekend in a rear store room.

Mable B. Puch, 59, owner of the Bamboo Hut Cafe, died of a head wound inflicted by a hammer, a spokesman for the sheriff's office said.

The victim's body was found by her mother Millicent Leap, 80.

Egypt has misgivings on conflict

Continued deadlock said to outweigh peace breakthrough

By MAURICE GUINDI

CAIRO (UPI) -- Egypt moves into 1973 with more misgivings than hopes about her conflict with Israel.

Egyptian officials say the prospect of continuing deadlock outweighs the chances of a breakthrough toward peace in the coming year. Underlying this view is a badly shaken faith in the two superpowers, the United States and the Soviet Union, who in Cairo's book hold different keys to the problem.

EGYPT believes the United States can, if it wishes, put enough pressure on Israel to extract concessions leading to a peace settlement.

She also believes that the Soviet Union can, if it wishes, supply Egypt with sufficient advanced offensive weapons to enable her to fight a promising battle for recovery of her occupied land or, alternatively, to negotiate from a position of greater strength than at present.

But neither the United States nor the Soviet Union has been willing so far to do what Egypt thinks they should do in the Middle East. And the United Nations has been powerless.

Officials here believe it is extremely unlikely that the Soviet Union will change its mind about offensive arms supplies or that the United Nations will take meaningful action in the crisis. But they do not rule out the possibility of a change in the United States' posture in 1973.

THE LITTLE optimism that exists in Cairo today stems from official and unofficial indications that Egypt received in the closing weeks of 1972 of an impending American diplomatic initiative for indirect Egyptian-Israeli talks.

Chaperoned by the United States, the immediate aim would be to obtain a partial Israeli withdrawal in Sinai, which Israel seized in the 1967 war, and the reopening of the Suez Canal. This would be an interim arrangement forming a first step toward a complete settlement later, in Cairo's view.

Officials say Egypt would give very serious consideration to the proposed American peace move which is widely expected to come early in the new year.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohamed Hassan el-Zayyat made this clear in statements to the press and radio in New York during the U.N. General Assembly debate on the Middle East. The primary condition he posed was the preservation of Egyptian territorial integrity in the end. He went so far as to comment favorably, in reply to a question, on the possibility of Dr. Henry Kissinger, President Nixon's security adviser, serving as a go-between in Egyptian-Israeli talks.

THE BIG question now on Egypt's mind is whether the United States will do a little arm-twisting to disabuse Israel of the idea of keeping the strategic Sharm el-Sheikh area at the southern tip of the Sinai Peninsula and then persuade her that any interim agreement should be an integral first part of an eventual overall settlement.

Officials say that unless Washington does this, its new initiative will collapse just like the one it undertook in 1971.

SUNDAY SALES BRING DRUGSTORE ARRESTS
 HAUPPAUGE, N.Y. (UPI) — Authorities Sunday arrested the managers of five drugstores in a state "blue laws" that restrict Sunday sales. The arrests followed a warning by Suffolk Police Commissioner John L. Barry that police would "fully enforce the law" and the issuance of 75 summonses in Suffolk last Sunday for violation of the state's general business law. The arrests were made at establishments which had received warnings Friday and Saturday that arrests would be made if the "blue laws" were violated. Plainclothesmen made the arrests after they reported purchasing items — watches, a camera and perfume.

'They steal everything' UCLA detective says

Thievery now No. 1 campus security problem

By TERRY RYAN
Associated Press

Campus police say thievery has supplanted student militancy as the No. 1 security problem at colleges and universities across the country.

"They steal everything, even if it is nailed down," said Roberta Doran, detective sergeant at the University of California at Los Angeles. "They take bulletin boards off the walls. They take office equipment that is chained or bolted down."

IN A RECENT survey by the Burns Security Institute, 58 campus police chiefs said they were more concerned with combating thievery than demonstrations and bomb threats.

"Thieft is the major problem nationwide and it is rising," said Herbert T. Vove, editor of the Campus Law Enforcement Journal. "There is no question that it is more of a problem than building takeovers and the like."

A sampling of campus police chiefs by The Associated Press indicated disagreement on whether students or outsiders were responsible for the upsurge in stealing and on how much campus drug use contributes to the problem. Open campuses, coed dormitories and the tendency of students not to lock their dormitory doors were cited as major causes of the thievery.

There are no national statistics on the increase in campus thefts, but reports from around the country indicated the extent of the problem:

—Incidence of larceny have increased from 134 in 1969 to 239 so far this year at Tufts University in Medford, Mass.

—Bicycle thefts at Florida State University in Tallahassee went from 381 in 1968 to 907 last year.

—Personal property worth $103,600 was reported stolen in the first 11 months of last year at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor. During the same period this year, thefts totaling $150,121 were reported.

College officials have responded to the plundering in a variety of ways. Locks were put on the doors of the residence houses in the Harvard Yard this year. Campus police now patrol inside the dormitories at Indiana University. Ultrasonic alarms have been installed in the academic buildings at Stanford University.

Wallets and watches are the ever popular standbys of the campus thief, but stereos and cameras are increasingly popular targets in dormitory rooms. Typewriters and adding machines are stolen from administrative and classroom buildings. The snatching of expensive 10-speed bicycles has reached epidemic proportion at some schools.

ONE ITEM seems immune from theft. Textbooks.

"I don't know when I last heard of someone losing a book," said Earnest Quinton, chief of security at San Jose State College. Most campus police officials blamed outsiders for the rocketing theft rates first noted in 1970. A few, however, said students have always stolen from each other and are just doing more of it now.

Some security officers said drug users who steal to support their habit are responsible for the increase in stealing. Others, arguing on the basis of arrests they have made, said drugs played little part in pilfering on their campuses.

Thefts from academic buildings have been a major problem at a few schools, but dormitory students have borne the brunt of the increase in stealing.

The free access granted everyone on the open campuses and in the coed dormitories of today was cited by many campus security chiefs as a significant factor in the upsurge of thefts.

"WHEN YOU HAVE

doors open around the clock, when you have men and women living in the same dorm, it is no longer easy to tell who belongs in there," said Marvin Herrington, director of public safety at Stanford University. "It is a simple thing for an outsider to get through them now."

There was wide agreement among police officials that the unwillingness of students to lock dormitory room doors is another important factor.

"If we could just get the students to lock their doors, it would reduce wallet and purse thefts practically to zero and cut other thefts by 75 per cent," said Ernest A. Costa, Campus police chief at Brown University in Providence, R.I.

"Nothing grows . . . I don't plant flowers, I just bury seeds!"

Underlying all explanations for the increase in stealing, according to many campus officials, is the persistent notion that the campus is an ivory-towered fortress isolated from the world at large.

"It is naive, but there are many students who feel the campus does provide a sanctuary," said L.B. Kankowski, deputy director of public safety at the College Park campus land. "The students have a tendency to trust everyone. As a result they get taken."

Collegians bring Santa to children

ISLETON — Dan Crawford and his fellow college students don't look much like Santa Claus, but for 250 kids in flood-ravaged Isleton, they'll do just fine.

It all started last July, when a broken levee sent flood waters swirling through this small town about 30 miles south of Sacramento.

News accounts of the disaster caught Crawford's attention and he almost immediately became chairman of DeAnza Evening College's Isleton Project. The idea was to channel about $300 of the college's funds, usually used for a huge campus Yuletide greeting, into helping the children of Isleton flood victims.

"We got in touch with Isleton city treasurer A. R. Amerman and got an estimate of the number of kids who might not be having too much of a Christmas this year," Crawford said in an interview.

FOOTBALL Community College, near De Anza in the Los Altos area, agreed to make it a joint project. The two student bodies raised about $1,200.

And Saturday night, 250 happy children streamed into the Isleton fire house for a big party. They packed off 300 carefully wrapped presents which had been brought almost 100 miles from DeAnza and Football Colleges by trailer.

There were dolls, toy trucks, boxes of Tinkertoys, puzzles and sacks of candy. Monica Marie, 9, whose home was deluged in the flood, was flabbergasted by it all.

"I didn't expect anything like this on this Christmas," she said. "It's so nice of the people that gave us this party."

Said city clerk John Golden: "It's just fantastic the way these college youths have helped this community. It's overwhelming."

Isleton still shows the effects of the flood waters which left behind an oozing sea of mud. Some residents were forced out of their homes and couldn't return for months.

"It's just wonderful to see all our people come back to our town and get together again," Isleton Fire Chief Cecil Tomlin said as he looked at the roomful of happy youngsters.

"It's one of the best Christmases yet," said six-year-old Barry DeCruz.

N.Y. stores fire bombed; politics cited

NEW YORK (UPI) — Police speculated Sunday that there was a political motive behind the setting off of incendiary devices late Saturday and early Sunday at three leading Manhattan department stores.

"It's political," one police source said, declaring that the incidents appeared linked and "we know why" the four devices were planted. There was no elaboration for fear the potential suspects might be tipped off.

The first two devices went off between 5 and 6 p.m. Saturday on the sixth and eighth floors of Bonwit Teller, forcing the evacuation of hundreds of customers.

Bergdorf Goodman was hit by an explosive device at 7:40 p.m., after the fashionable department store had closed for the day. That device went off in a fifth floor fur department.

The fourth device exploded at 2:14 a.m. Sunday at the recently-opened Gimbel's East. The device had been timed to go off at 3 a.m., fire marshals said.

All four incendiary bombs started small fires that caused only minor damage. There were no injuries in any of the incidents.

The devices at Bonwit Teller and Bergdorf Goodman had battery-operated timers attached to explosives wrapped in a cigarette pack while at Gimbel's the incendiary material was placed inside a ping pong ball, authorities said.

Egypt 'sabotage'

CAIRO (UPI) — The Al Akhbar newspaper Sunday accused Mohammed Hassan el Meikal, editor of another newspaper and unofficial spokesman for the governments of President Anwar Sadat and the late Gamal Abdel Nasser, of sabotaging national morale and advocating surrender to Israel.

Fidel slaps U.S. on TV in Moscow

Claims oppression, predicts capitalism
demise in 50 years

MOSCOW (UPI)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro of Cuba said Sunday the United States was guilty of oppression of minorities, particularly blacks, Mexicans and Puerto Ricans and he predicted that all capitalist societies will have disappeared in 50 years.

Castro, who left Moscow further in the day for Havana, made the comments in a interview broadcast on Moscow radio and television. He was here with other world Communist leaders to attend the 50th anniversary celebrations of the Soviet Union.

"IN THE United States, together with a high technological development, there exists poverty and oppression of national minorities," Castro said. "The Negro problem is very acute and unsolved."

"Dozens of millions of Negro citizens are subjected to discrimination, humiliation and brutal treatment. Like the Negro problem, there also exists the problem of the national minority of the Mexican population. Other Latin Americans are also subjected to discrimination."

"We can give an example of Puerto Rico. This Latin American country was occupied by the United States at the end of the last century and this coincided with the U.S. intervention in Cuba. The United States has remained in Puerto Rico and for 70 years, it has been trying to annihilate the Puerto Rican population, to assimilate it."

CASTRO SAID Washington has been trying to annex Puerto Rico, but the Puerto Rican people were resisting.

"The United States, which presents itself as an example of capitalist countries, is suffering from the acute problem of national minorities and we can see the tremendous difference between what is going on in the United States and in the Soviet Union," he said.

"Unequality and discrimination exist in the United States on one hand and equality and brotherhood among nations exist in the Soviet Union on the other."

Castro wished the Soviet Union the same success in the next 50 years which he said it has had in the past 50 and added:

"I do not like to be a prophet, but I would dare to express that by the 100th anniversary of the October Revolution, the world will have great changes, that in 50 years there will be no capitalism and the brotherhood of nations will reach a high level."

Castro signed a new Cuban Soviet economic agreement with Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev Saturday which provides for further Soviet aid to Cuba.

Big labor contracts due in '73

4.7 million union workers covered; controls uncertain
By DONALD FINLEY
WASHINGTON (UPI) —

The Labor Department says that about 4.7 million workers are covered by major contracts that will expire in 1973 or that contain 1973 wage reopening provisions.

While collective bargaining goes on, authority for the wage and price controls that President Nixon imposed 16 months ago will expire unless Congress agrees to extend it beyond April 30, as the administration has requested.

Only 2.8 million workers had contracts expiring or subject to reopening this year, but next year's number compares with the 1970 and 1971 levels of 4.75 million workers.

"Several key industrial sectors will have a significant influence on bargaining, as negotiations will take place in the transportation (mainly railroads and trucking), construction, automobile and farm implement, electrical equipment, apparel, food, rubber and retail trade industries," the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

RETIRING Labor Secretary James Hodgson, a former executive with Lockheed Aircraft, and Nixon's first labor secretary, George Shultz, now Treasury secretary, took a hands-off approach to collective bargaining, letting the unions and management work out their own problems except for providing mediation services when requested.

It's not known what approach Labor Secretary-designate Peter Breman, head of the New York "hard-hat" construction workers, will take.

The Pay Board, after a shaky start that saw it permit some wage settlements far over its 5.5 per cent annual standard, has kept average straight-time wage and benefit increases under 5.5 per cent annually. It indicated it may even tighten the controls by lowering the standard this year.

Wage increases under the controls have kept ahead of rising prices, however. Average weekly earnings, including straight-time and overtime pay, of all rank and file workers rose 6.9 per cent during the first year of the Phase II controls, while consumer prices rose 3.4 per cent, giving workers a 3.5 per cent gain in real wages.

But with corporate profit rising to record highs and the cost of food soaring, union negotiators may put considerable pressure on management to boost wages as much as possible.

THE BUREAU of Labor Statistics said that deferred wage increases — those negotiated in earlier years and due to take effect in 1973 — will go to about 4.9 million workers next year and will average 4.9 per cent or 24.2 cents per hour.

This year 6.7 million workers got deferred increases averaging 6.1 per cent, or 29.2 cents per hour.

New contracts scheduled for negotiations in 1973 include those for 700,000 auto workers employed by General Motors, Ford, Chrysler, and American Motors; 550,000 railroad workers; 500,000 local and over-the-road truck drivers represented by the Teamsters' union; 100,000 rubber workers; 200,000 garment workers; 300,000 electrical equipment manufacturing workers employed mostly by General Electric and Westinghouse; 200,000 meat packing and other food processing workers; nearly 100,000 farm implement manufacturing workers; 60,000 petroleum and chemical and refining workers; and 600,000 construction workers.

Japanese gift-giving pro, cons

On the receiving end isn't all as great as it sounds
By SHIGEYOSHI KIMURA

TOKYO (U) — A recent earthquake toppled these things in a small room of one suburban home:

Forty-two cans of seaweed, a Japanese dining delicacy; 34 bottles of the rice wine called sake, 33 whisky gift sets, 21 cases of beer, 11 boxes of cheese and fruit, nine tailor made shirts, and a store of household products such as soaps, detergents and fabrics.

"It looked like an alpine avalanche," said the wife of a senior Japanese businessman as she set about to restore order. It also pointed up what goes on during Oseibo, the year-end gift season.

DECEMBER brings Christmas to Japan, in its own local fashion, with trees, Santa Claus and carols. For many businessmen, officials, government and office workers and others, it also brings the time of the traditional year-end gift. These are sent to relatives, company superiors, business clients and friends as an expression of thanks for kindnesses, hospitality, business contacts and friendship extended during the year.

The Department Store Association said total sales in Japan's 318 major stores in December will be more than double usual monthly totals. About 85 per cent of the sales are for gifts.

Sounds great, doesn't it?

WELL, one 45-year-old wife, whose husband was promoted recently to a senior position, said: "I am scared with so many gifts. Many of these presents came from suburbanites of my husband. Just receiving them with no return would be bribery. I am afraid. So I decided to buy return gifts. But a government employee like my husband can't afford to buy so many gifts."

She also had other complaints:

"Because of so many gifts of whisky and sake, my husband became a heavy drinker. And that is not all; my son is complaining of the gifts which turned his room into a warehouse."

The wife of a young office worker added her misgivings.

"WE WORRY our head off about what kind of gifts we should send because we must choose the best goods no matter what the price is, to please the receivers. For example, my husband's superior favors only a foreign-made expensive whisky."

In government-owned apartments, where hundreds of families live, one family receives many gifts while another gets none.

The wife of a factory worker complained: "My year-end asked me why we don't receive any gifts... because daddy hasn't any friends?"

A survey conducted by the newspaper Sankei said about half the people it contacted favored the seasonal giving as a good custom, helpful in expressing gratitude. It said 13 to 21 per cent claimed gifts have merit in maintaining good relations with others, while about 30 per cent disapproved of the custom.

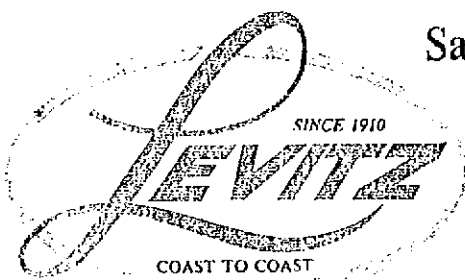

A department store listed the most popular gift this year as canned seaweed, followed by cheese and butter, foreign-made tea and soap. The average cost of each gift was around 3,000 yen, just under $10.

Hirohito dreams of U.S. visit

Already first Japanese ruler to go overseas
By ROBERT CRAWHE

TOKYO (UPI) — Emperor Hirohito rounds out 46 eventful years on Japan's "crysanthemum throne" Christmas Day, amid growing belief that sometime in 1973 President Nixon will welcome him to Washington.

"America is our neighboring country across the Pacific," the 71-year-old monarch remarked to Japanese newsmen last September. "I think that in addition to visiting Europe for purposes of goodwill, I should visit America too."

The openly expressed royal wish to visit America was without precedent. It came only a few days after Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka returned from a summit meeting with Nixon in Honolulu.

Many took it as a signal that Tanaka had brought back an invitation from the American President for Hirohito to pay an official visit to the United States.

IN THE autumn of 1971, Hirohito became the first to travel overseas, visiting nine European countries, and making a six-hour stopover at Anchorage, Alaska. Nixon flew there to greet him.

Hirohito started a world tour in 1924 before he was emperor. He got only as far as Europe before the illness of his father brought him back to Japan to take over as regent.

Hirohito now has been a ceremonial chief-of-state longer than any man in the world, just outdistancing Emperor Meiji of Japan.

Palace spokesmen told UPI that no fuss will be made over his anniversary. There will be no formal ceremony, and not even a family party. They expect the emperor will spend the day working in his office in the Imperial palace compound in downtown Tokyo.

Christmas is not a holiday in Japan, and the fact that it is anniversary of Hirohito's reign has no religious significance in this Buddhist and Shinto country. His father, the Emperor Taisho, simply happened to die on that day in 1926.

TIME has taken its toll of the five-foot, three-inch emperor, who used to wear snappy military uniforms in peacetime days and receive his troops from a white horse. Today the imperial heir is almost gray, and Hirohito's shoulders are stooped. He walks with slow, deliberate steps.

The doctors who attend him say he is in good health for a man of 71. He has never smoked, is a sparing drinker, and still likes long walks for exercise.

Thin, cheery empress Nagako, now 70, is his constant companion, as she has been most of his life. Nagako, who gave Hirohito seven children, will have been married to him 49 years on Jan. 24.

Bethlehem has no room for an inn, spurns changes

By VICTORIA GRAHAM

BETHLEHEM, Ind. 46 — Four people died in Bethlehem this year. One baby was born there. There were no marriages.

"Why wish me a Merry Christmas?" says one 82-year-old resident. "I'm falling apart, just like my house and this town. I've nothing to live for anymore."

Christmas in Bethlehem is a restrained, understated affair. Few colored lights decorate the houses. A pre-Christmas choral concert and Nativity play are held in the white wooden church, flanked by whitewashed out-houses and illuminated by an electric star.

Residents so far have resisted efforts to capitalize on the town's name. Like several other U.S. communities of the same name, however, Bethlehem gets thousands of pieces of holiday mail to postmark each year.

A proposed development plan that would include Christmas festivities has drawn mixed reactions.

One view comes from Frieda Stutesman, 31, who has six young children and works part-time as a traveling cosmetics saleswoman along river settlements. Business isn't good in Bethlehem.

"The people here are dear, but they don't want this town to change until they die. The river moves but Bethlehem stagnates. There's no life or warmth here, even before Christmas. Bethlehem really is like any other small river burg, she said.

The 100-year-old southern Indiana town once was a major shipping port for tobacco and fruit. But the river traffic doesn't stop here any more and the town now has a population for about 80. Most of the inhabitants are over 65.

There is no resident pastor. The township trustee, Argus Selmeier, says it's been "about four years" since the last marriage was performed in the star-topped Bethlehem Community Church.

ONLY A HANDFUL of children remain in the community. The Bethlehem School has been boarded up since 1961 and the few students left are bused about 10 miles to New Washington.

"Our town is declining. The old ones are dying and the young are leaving. If too many go, there won't be a town anymore," says Jack Matthews, 51, the postmaster, grocer, preacher, school bus driver and self-appointed spokesman.

RUSTIC INDIANA town named Bethlehem has more deaths than births and no marriages. Post office is located in food store. Residents take dim view of redevelopment.

"The fight has gone out, the community pride is gone and the people are over the hill."

Rancher developer Solomon Goldstein, who owns 550 wooded acres north of town, has proposed a massive development plan that would include a riverfront amphitheater and a Christmas pageant.

Plans already have been drawn for a $20 million to $30 million community development on the Goldstein property. It would include about 1,000 luxury homes, apartments and condominiums, a hotel, shopping center, golf course, 500-boat marina and about 250 acres of open space, man-made lakes, trails and recreation areas.

Curtis Smith, 72 who was born and reared in Bethlehem doesn't like the idea. "It's peaceful" he said describing the community. "I don't want it to change but remember it like this until the last."

Cecil Roberts 70 a retired tobacco farmer isn't sure. "I don't know about commercialism and subdivisions. I've had a good life here but I won't be in Bethlehem forever and so it really doesn't matter."

Cecil and Ora Berry live in a riverside house they could have sold many times. "But we've always lived here, we love it, where would we go? Our home is here" Berry said as he opened a jar of spiced fragrant rose petals from a garden that bloomed 100 years ago.

THE MAPLE-FRINGED community is a blend of modest white houses, patched shacks, abandoned dwellings, rusted trailers, mossy cisterns.

The wind blows through vacant lots and collapsing barns. There's no town square, no public buildings.

In the lobby of a lehen-encrusted hotel across from a store, three elderly farmers, warmed by a coal burning stove, strip and bind tobacco.

"It looks to me like Bethlehem is dying," says Alvin Hutsell, 72. "My nine children have all left. There's nothing to keep them here, no work. It would be a wonderful thing if people came in and breathed new life into the town."

Bethlehem is too peaceful for Stella Layton, 18, who says she feels as aimless as the town. "I'm lonely, it's too quiet, there's nothing for me to do here."

"I guess I should leave but I don't know when."

Fine art of juggling finances can be hectic

By DON G. CAMPBELL

The fine art of juggling — keeping four or five financial balls in the air at the same time — characterizes the way that most of us try to provide for a comfortable retirement. And it can get pretty frantic.

Q: We are a couple in our early 30s with four young children. For the past few years, on the advice and direction of our insurance agent, we have been borrowing on our insurance policies and investing that money in a mutual fund program with the hope of building a larger income for the future. We are not repaying the loans — only the interest — and have no other real savings. We do have confidence in our agent, but not being the most knowledgeable couple in the investment field, we would be very interested in a reliable second opinion as to whether this is an advisable course of action for us to follow.

A: I assume that what your agent is doing is having you borrow an amount each year that is the equivalent of that year's accrued interest on your ordinary life policy. This has become an extremely popular device in recent years in the face of widespread realization that the return on money left to accumulate on an ordinary life policy is pretty meager compared to the return that is available on it through other investments. There's nothing wrong with this strategy as long as you are convinced that the face amount of the insurance coverage you have is adequate to your needs.

The only thing, really, that bothers me is your comment that you "have no other real savings." You definitely should have, you know, because — in the event of an emergency — you would have no choice but to redeem some of your mutual fund shares. And, depending on market conditions, this might have to be done at a loss. Ordinarily, in the event of an emergency, you would have the cash value of your policy to fall back on, but this cushion is no longer available to you. This, as far as I'm concerned, makes it absolutely imperative that you start building up some liquid savings for the unforeseeable.

Q: I am a single woman, age 42, and wish to invest my life savings of $100,000 so that I won't have to work anymore but live on the income and have absolute safety for my investment. Right now, all my money is in six per cent savings accounts in the bank. What do you suggest?

A: For openers I would suggest that you disabuse yourself of the notion that there's any such thing as "absolute safety" for your investment. What you really mean is "maximum" safety. There are several routes you can go, and I would suggest that you talk them over with your broker. Since your sole objective is income, and not capital appreciation, you might go for a portfolio of good grade corporate bonds (6½ to 7½ per cent a year); one of the mutual funds that confines itself to bonds and preferred stocks; a fund that invests in nothing but U.S. obligations (about seven per cent a year and "maximum" safety); or the income shares of a dual-purpose mutual fund (funds that operate on a 50/50 basis with the holders of the "income" shares receiving all of the dividends on the entire portfolio, but none of the capital appreciation).

One thought: isn't 42 a little young to withdraw so completely? Wouldn't it be a good idea to settle for a little less income and put part of your funds into stocks with some growth potential?

Q: Over the past four or five years I have been investing about $1,000 a year in the stock of a local firm involved in computer software. It's been something of a disaster because I began this investment program when the stock was selling at about $32 — it's all-time high — and now it's somewhere in the $8-to-$9 range. My wife thinks I'm crazy for sticking with this outfit, but my argument is that by averaging down through this sort of regular investment program I can't help but come out ahead.

I figure my average price-per-share for the stock I now hold is about $18 or $19 which, as I see it, puts me well ahead of the game, since the first couple of purchases I made were in the $32-to-$36 range. Isn't this a good, logical way to approach a long-range investment program?

A: You're out of your gourd! Sure, "averaging down" is a good investment strategy if the stock involved is in a well-situated company that is simply undergoing a temporary bout of unpleasantness — either because of weaknesses that have developed internally, or because of a popular disillusionment on the part of the investing public toward the specific company, the industry that it represents, or the stock market generally. It's a good strategy, that is, if there are valid reasons for thinking that the stock's weakness — like a bel-lanche — are, indeed, a passing thing.

But, please bear in mind that it is quite possible to drown in a river that has an "average" depth of 18 inches. In other words, it is dumb, dumb, dumb to keep plowing money into a stock that is steadily falling in price unless you have something more concrete to go on than your blithe assumption that the original (high) price at which you started acquiring it was, indeed, a fair price for it.

Frankly, I don't know what stock you are talking about, but this "investment program" that you mention was inaugurated by you about "four or five years ago," which would take us back to about 1968 or early '69, and that's an ominous sign because this was the giddy, go-go era when practically any company that could keep out of bankruptcy court for four consecutive weeks was viewed as a growth situation, and its stock had no place to go but up.

Since you are such a big fan of "averaging down" the purchase price of a stock, may I point out to you that Penn Central, in 1968, got up to as high as 86½ and that, recently, it was selling for about 3.3? If you had steadfastly kept putting $1,000 a year into Penn Central since 1968 you would, by now, have a most attractive "average price" on the shares you hold. Unfortunately, there are serious doubts in the minds of many investment advisors if 3.3 is a fair price for this trouble-plagued stock.

I would suggest that you stop playing statistical games with yourself and get down to basics. Forget the average — price — per-share and take a look at the company, its management, its product line, and please get some expert opinion on what is plaguing the company and what future potential it may have. These are the only things that really count. Ninety per cent of nothing is still nothing — averages notwithstanding.

Health Questions and Answers . . . PEOPLE, LOVE, AND REALNESS

Q: I'm asking myself the question today about where I am with myself and other people in my life and what I feel is the healthiest thing in the world for me—perhaps you will agree with the answer I feel.

A: I feel, "People needing other people. Is just four little words of a big song. But there is only one people. That's me—Ward."

But the sad funny thing is how each of us run away from our needing people. Even using a song about it to run away. But it hurts so much—at first.

And then it feels so good to find That REAL is LOVE. And so love is waiting for us Twenty times a day Behind all the funny faces We just need to take down our fake face

And let the beauty, power and glory out. We can love so often and so well That the minutes fly and the days are longer.

FOR LOVE IS REAL AND REAL IS LOVE.

It's Christmas morn and throughout the city squeals of laughter and delight echo as youngsters discover what Santa Claus left under their trees.

In preparation for this scene, numerous groups entertained children at pre-Christmas parties, complete with a visit from Jolly Old St. Nick. Or, in the case of the party given by Assisteens of Long Beach Assistance League, a visit from Gumdrops the clown.

Arrangements for the festivities were made by Blair Conley, chairman for Junior Assisteens, and Kathy Looman, chairman for Senior Assisteens.

Members did early shopping for toys and goodies, which they put in stockings to give each of the 65 children attending.

The spirit of giving keynote the season and sharing the fun with kids is what Christmas is all about.

Merry Christmas to all.

Submarine novelist E.L. Beach sees end to all war

NOVELIST and retired Navy Captain Edward L. Beach, who skippered submarine Triton on its famous underwater trip around the world in 1960, has written a sequel, called "Dust on the Sea," to his 1955 bestselling "Run Silent, Run Deep."

By PATRICIA QUINN
Staff Writer

You might think that a man raised in a military family, who spent most of his adult life in the Navy, and who makes his novel's hero sink lifeboats filled with survivors, would come across as an aggressive, rigid militarist.

And maybe that's how this man would have appeared 17 years ago when he wrote that book—"Run Silent, Run Deep," a 1955 bestseller also made into a popular motion picture which occasionally shows up now as a late night television attraction.

But today, Edward L. Beach who has just completed a sequel to that popular fiction, impresses you as a warm, celebrative person, still bent on doing the right thing but not so much as a duty to his country—as reflected in that lifeboat episode—but on the belief that man himself is supreme.

Beach is a graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy who commanded three submarines during World War II and served for four years as naval aide to President Eisenhower. In 1960, six years before retiring as a captain, he skippered the nuclear submarine Triton on its famous trip around the world submerged.

IN HIS NEW WORK, titled "Dust on the Sea," already garnering accolades from reviewers, the author demonstrates not only his knowledge and rapture with undersea ships but also his change in attitude toward war.

"It took me 17 years to come to the same conclusions Richardson (the book's hero) reaches in a few short weeks," the author smiles.

This is Beach's fifth book on submarines. In fact, his first work was called "Submarine!" They are all fictitious accounts, he says, drawn only loosely from his wartime experiences.

The author says his primary reason for writing the new book is to ensure that "what we did in submarines, their use, would be remembered accurately." And that the stereotype of a military man as an egocentric, hawkish person, viewing the war as a means to promotion, is "very wrong. Some men are like this, but it is not true that all military men are this way."

His underlying motive however, was to raise and answer the question of moral ethics. How extensive need a soldier's commitment to war be?

Beach explains that "in the climatic episode of Run Silent, Run Deep, Richardson (the submarine captain and hero of this book also) deliberately destroys the lifeboats of an enemy destroyer he has sunk, because the survivors were anti-submarine experts and would otherwise have been back at work against the U.S. as effectively as they were before. Richardson's mission was to destroy them, but circumstances required him to violate the code of war at sea.

"I THINK MY solution in that first novel was right, and that Richardson did what he should have done; but there is a moral question involved which needs to be looked at clearly in the context of war.

"The basic question is, what are the moral limitations to a soldier's commitment to war? Where does duty end and humanity begin? What kind of man is Richardson, anyway? Does he get a thrill out of sinking a ship? Does he hate his enemies, does he enjoy killing? Does he feel a responsibility to the enemy as well as to his comrades?

"Dust on the Sea" attempts to answer these questions.

Beach is a self-admitted hawk whose son declared himself a conscientious objector in 1969. Although in complete disagreement with his son's decision, the captain was the first to vouch for the boy's honesty at the Draft Board hearing.

He also is a seaman who has become strong friends with a Japanese sailor who was on a ship Beach sank during the war. This friend, the author acknowledges, eventually helped color the captain's feeling toward Japanese people.

Beach explains that during WWII he felt an actual hatred for the enemy, a hatred inspired by that dawn attack by the Japanese on Pearl Harbor. "I didn't hate them so much at the end of the war as I had at the beginning, but I did hate them."

His friendship, which started when that sailor read Beach's account of the sinking of his Japanese ship in "Submarine!" and sent a letter detailing the Japanese side of that story, increased the author's questioning of the necessity to hate the opposing peoples.

"WHEN IT COMES down to an individual basis (as does the ending of Dust on the Sea) then personality is the primary thing," Beach declares. "The enemy has a right to his own viewpoint. We must always remember that man is supreme and that even if we are forced to kill an enemy, we don't have to hate him."

Beach, who is now employed as staff director for the Republican Policy Committee of the U.S. Senate, says "I think Nixon is right that this will be a generation of peace," and adds hopefully, "maybe ten generations of peace."

Emphasizing that he speaks only as a private citizen, Beach goes on to explain his belief that "we have come to the end of war."

World War I, he points out, was regarded at the time as the war to end wars. Then World War II had the same hopes attached to it. But with this country's stockpile of nuclear armaments, he says, "we can imagine that general warfare now can end the world."

"And I think that just as our race is concerned with pollution and population, likewise we are instinctively and unconsciously conceived over war and what can result. I also think we have come to the end of limited war, such as the undeclared war in Vietnam."

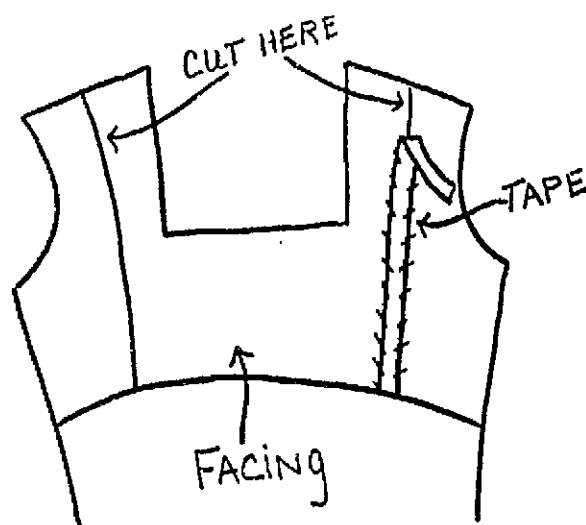

HE SEES THIS country now in a neo-isolationist phase, explaining that "I don't think we will engage in another Korean or Vietnam war; we know we can't take on all the world's problems."

"Instead I expect us to be like the Swedes who go into conflicts as a police force.

"It wouldn't happen tomorrow, of course, but it is conceivable we could turn our troops and so forth over to the United Nations and go in as a peace-keeping force.

"If the Swedes can do it, and not be looked on as a conquering army, then maybe we can too."

SEW WHAT'S NEW

Easy steps for all-in-one facing

By SANDRA KELLY

DEAR SANDRA:

I have tried every method imaginable to put an all-in-one facing into a sleeveless dress — and not have bulk and an unsightly seam at the shoulder. The dress is square-necked and does not have a center-back seam. Do you have a method I could use? — Mrs. Bertha Reed.

DEAR MRS. REED:

Here's the technique that's the answer to your problem. It is a bit unorthodox, but will give you a beautiful flat facing for your holiday neckline, and the shoulder and armhole seams will always be perfect. Take a look below at how it's done.

1. Before you cut your front and back facings, cut each one apart from the center of the shoulder seams to the bottom edge. This will give you two front facing sections and two back sections. When you cut your facings, don't add a seam allowance. We won't be using it in this technique.

2. Now you're ready to begin. Sew the shoulder seams of your dress together and press them open.

3. Next, sew the shoulder seams of your facing sections together and press them open also.

4. Place the facings to the garment right side together. Sew around the armhole. Then sew around the neck edge. Trim all seams, clip, press and then turn the facings to the wrong side.

5. Notice how nice and flat the facing is across the shoulder. And the armhole and neck edge is smooth and continuous. All that remains is to close up the cut edge. These edges meet and can be secured by either whipping them together, or by placing a strip of seam tape or lace over them, and whipping the tape edges to the facing.

I think you're going to enjoy this new method as much as I do. It's great for bulky materials. Of course, there is another way of doing this if you have a center back seam (which you didn't have), but that's a different technique entirely and perhaps we'll cover it another time.

Price tag on memorabilia

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK — My mother used to say, "The minute you throw something away, you need it." Now it seems she might also have said, "The minute you throw something away, it becomes a collector's item."

Had we all listened, we might own a treasure trove.

For what's going on with the items most of us used to consider junk and discard when it came time to clean out attics, closets and basements is hard to believe. Many items are worth money.

These are things from the 1930s and 1940s at that!

For instance, the increasing interest in political Americana has forced prices of many political objects including buttons of the '30s and '40s to relatively high levels.

Hoover, Roosevelt, Landon, Garner and Willie buttons which once fetched only a few dollars now bring $15 to $25. I own a mug which says, "Alf Landon for President" but I fear it's a reproduction.

POLITICAL memorabilia is just one of many categories of items from the recent past which have become collectibles. So says John Mebane, author of several books on collecting and antiques, editor of the Antiques Journal and writer of an antiques column for the Sunday Atlanta Journal and Constitution.

Mebane's latest book "Collecting Nostalgia" (Arlington House, New Rochelle, N.Y.) is called "The First Guide to the Antiques of the 30s and 40s". It's a delightful voyage along memory lane as well as practical guide.

Mebane holds that the alert collector can spot the dark-horse candidates for a sharp rise in value, recognize tomorrow's treasures, and get in on the ground floor of the next antiques boom.

Who'd have thought that "depression glass," inexpensive ware made during the '30s when fine crystal and porcelain were out of the question for most families, would be having a boom among today's collectors?

OR, THAT an old NRA (National Recovery Act) membership poster from the Roosevelt early New Deal days would now be sought?

And if you were lucky enough to acquire a full set of five Dionne Quintuplet spoons, they're worth $35 or more. And other Dionne souvenir items also are valuable.

The list of collectibles in the 367-page book is long and includes Minnie and Mickey Mouse bisque toothbrush holders, Shirley Temple dolls, a Betty Boop watch, first edition of "Gone With The Wind," art deco, several games, Atwater Kent radios, old comic books, depression scrip, World War II ration books, autographs of prominent Nazis from Adolf Hitler to Rudolf Hess, old movie posters, and sheet music.

MEBANE SAYS the new items most likely to retain value and perhaps appreciate in the coming years could be divided into one or more of the following categories:

—They should have been associated intimately with some important historical, social or economic development.

Decor idea

Individual decorating touches help brighten the home. Frame and hang bright scarves or convert unusually patterned towels into wall hangings. Some of the popular patchwork quilts make pretty tapestry-like wall hangings.

—They should have been associated with some new movement, particularly in the field of the arts. Women's lib memorabilia may one day become a collectible.

—They should have been produced in limited quantities so they would have the appeal of relative scarcity.

—They should have been a part of fad or fashion of earlier days now outmoded. This is applicable particularly to jewelry.

—They should have been produced simultaneously with or as an integral part of new trends in entertainment. For instance, the early comic books.

—They should possess some intrinsic value or merit — such things as articles of silver and precious stones or more "trivial" items such as dolls and toys that seem to fascinate all ages.

Bundle up

Winter brings out the maxi coats again, and the eternal boots. Also seen around the town are the layered looks with tank top over shirt or sweater, with blazer and pants added.

A day unlike most other days

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
UPI Writer

HOMEFRONT, U.S.A.
(UPI) — Guaranteed to happen on one or more homefronts Christmas Day:

—A father will nurse skinned knuckles and bruised ego from trying too hard and not succeeding. He is a victim of the lie on a toy box. The box proclaimed: Easy to assemble. Impossible to assemble is how it came out.

—Sometime late Christmas day a child, surrounded by an unbelievable array of new toys, will sit on the floor and scream — "I have nothing to play with."

—Somebody will have too much eggnog, call long distance and talk an hour.

—A wife will have fits because her husband watches the North-South College All-Star Game on television. "Not on Christmas, too," she will screech. He will ignore her.

—IN ANOTHER household a wife will be quietly grateful that there is but one televised football game this Christmas — not like last Christmas when there were two.

—On the fifth helping of eggnog, the person who called long distance will exclaim: "I really hate Christmas!" watch that person. On the sixth helping he'll either get sick or start bawling.

—At gift-exchanging time around the tree one person will smile and lie. "Exactly what I wanted," he or she will lie, pawing a pair of knee socks or mittens that are either too large or too small, the wrong color and of a yarn the person is allergic to.

—In one household the turkey dinner will be postponed until sometime around midnight. The hostess trusted those dials on her stove. She turned the oven to on earlier and waited for the bell to ring a few hours later, signaling all was done. When the bell was overdue ringing she looked. Cold turkey. The oven didn't go on when first she set it.

—SOMEWHERE a Christmas tree will fall down. The mishap will be blamed on some kid playing basketball in the living room. Or else it will be blamed on the person who had too much eggnog.

—A mailman will wonder how long it will take to exchange two dozen ties (not the bow kind he wears exclusively) and many jugs of after-shave lotion — all in the wrong scent.

—A cat, either yours or the friendly neighborhood feline, will poke a Christmas ornament on the tree. It will fall on the toy train tracks and break, causing a stoppage of power to the train in the process of going around the tracks. The train will stop. A child will cry. The cat will be thrown out the nearest door.

—In one household a girl will happily play with a football and her brother will play with a Christmas doll. The mother, active in the women's liberation movement, will cheer the happening. "None of those sex stereotyping playthings in this home," she'll say, passing the football to her daughter.

—AT FOUR in the afternoon all the battery-operated toys will run out of batteries. Dad will embark on a frustrating excursion. When he returns he will report that all stores selling batteries are closed. At least one child will cry.

—Surveying the Christmas tree with the crooked trunk — almost horizontal instead of vertical — a poor soul will say: "Next year I will have to shop for a tree earlier. This getting the last tree on the lot isn't exactly a feast for the eyes." An optimist will remind the complainer: "At least it can't fall over. It's over about as far as it can go."

—An adult with sensitive ear drums will make a note to write the President's consumer affairs adviser, Virginia Knauer, and ask her "how come they don't have noise control for toys?"

DEAR ABBY

Bewitching mother interferes

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are very happily married, and the possible threat to our marriage is his mother. She is a very interfering divorcee with plenty of time on her hands, and I know she has never liked me.

The problem: she claims to be a witch who can put spells on people. She meets with other members of the occult and they hold seances and claim to be able to communicate with spirits of the dead. She has all sorts of paraphernalia related to her witchcraft, and I am scared to death of this woman when she goes into her chants and trances.

I am expecting a child, Abby, and I don't want her in my house unless she acts like a normal person and refrains from going into her witchcraft act.

My husband says it is all a lot of garbage — he doesn't believe in any of it, and I am silly to worry about it. I say she could be a real witch. I leave it to you.

WORRIED IN MASSACHUSETTS

DEAR WORRIED: I don't know if she's a real witch or a phony one, but your fears are real, which is more important. Simply tell her she is welcome to visit if she puts aside the witch kit — otherwise, you will see her in the next world.

DEAR ABBY: Each morning (Monday through Friday) a young neighbor honks the horn at an early hour as he leaves for work. I presume it is intended as a cheery good-bye signal to his wife. This honking disturbs us and others in the neighborhood. We are elderly and not in the best of health. We don't wish to alienate our young neighbors, but how can we let them know this honking disturbs us?

MATTISON STREET, FRESSBURG, N.Y.

DEAR MATTISON STREET: After this hits print, you may not have to.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MY READERS: Have a very merry Christmas. And if you drink, don't drive, so that others may have a merry Christmas, too. Love and peace.

The Aces

on bridge
by
IRA G. CORN JR.
TEAM CAPTAIN

A bridge player has many opportunities to play Santa Claus. The defenders are always waiting with big empty socks and the careless declarer is transformed into a big jolly fellow with a white beard, a red outfit and eight red-nosed reindeer.

In today's game hand declarer slipped in the play and turned into a not-too-jolly Santa.

It was almost time to open the presents and the bidding was swift and accurate. Both South and North had clear-cut decisions and the no-trump game was bid.

West led his fourth-best diamond, which East won with the ace. East considered returning partner's suit; however, he correctly decided against this for good reasons. He could only lead the suit once: declarer most probably had at least one high honor in the suit and three other cards; and, finally, his club ace gave him control to lead diamonds later if that turned out to be best.

East shifted to the heart jack and declarer finessed his queen, and with that play the defenders' socks were filled. West won and returned the suit and all East had to do was to wait patiently with his club ace. Down one.

DECLARER DID not have to give away his contract. On the lead of the heart jack, declarer should have played his ace and refused to finesse. He could then transfer his attention to the club suit.

East would win his ace and continue hearts. However, if declarer played East for heart length (as

PAT'S POINTERS

Tips for closing stitch gaps

By PAT TREXLER

Here's hoping that each and every one of you is enjoying a happy holiday season and that you will have a wonderful and prosperous year in 1973. I would like to also take this opportunity to thank each of you who sent Christmas greetings to me. Each one was greatly appreciated.

Our family is celebrating Christmas and New Year's in a different way this year . . . my husband, Jack, our son Tommy and I are in Hawaii as you read this, hopefully soaking up sunshine. We have never before spent the holidays in our 50th state, but I imagine I will have some interesting things to tell you about how they celebrate Christmas when I return.

DEAR PAT: I am trying to make a visor cap and am running into a problem. With 50 stitches on the needle, I am to work 45 stitches and turn. On the next row, the instructions read, work 40 stitches and turn. You are to continue in this manner working 5 less stitches on each row until 10 remain.

I have tried every way I know and have had friends and even an instructor try it, but no matter what we do, there are holes in the work every time we make the turn.

I know that you cannot answer letters personally, but if you know a solution, please print it in your column. I would be most grateful. MARY D. LYON.

I HOPE you are reading the column today, Mary, for I do have the answer for you. There is a little trick that closes up the holes in working "short rows."

Each time you turn your work in mid-row, place a marker on the needle. When you have finished the last "short row" break off yarn and slip all stitches and markers to one needle in position to knit the next row.

Work across in this fashion: Knit to first marker (remove markers as you come to them). Then, before you do the next stitch, lift the stitch from the row below to the tip of the left needle and knit two together. This works like a charm in closing the holes.

Insurance czars in new roles

No longer lackeys of industry in co<sup>o</sup>sumer revolt
Associated Press

State insurance commissioners, long viewed by some as pawns of the industry they were supposed to regulate, are increasingly emerging as powerful consumer advocates.

Challenging advertising claims, requiring increased benefits and issuing consumer bulletins, commissioners in at least a score of states have served notice on the industry that they are no longer content to preside perfunctorily over hearings on rate increases.

Public pressure has caused the change, said Tom O'Malley, Florida's insurance commissioner.

"INSURANCE regulators historically came from the industry. That made it unlikely they would crack down when needed," said O'Malley.

"There is more pressure now from the public to get people in who will resolve insurance problems with more fairness to the buyer."

O'Malley, an attorney who formerly served on a county board of commissioners, early this year ordered across-the-board, a 25 per cent cut in premiums on credit life insurance policies. He later canceled 50,000 policies because he felt benefits and restrictions were not spelled out in simple language.

Examples of this new consumer awareness can be found across the country.

West Virginia Insurance Commissioner Samuel H. Weese in October ordered Physicians Mutual Insurance Co. to stop soliciting new business in the state. He said its advertising was misleading and deceptive.

Ohio's insurance director, Kenneth E. DeShelter, ordered a crackdown on companies and agents selling policies which he said were misrepresented as stock investments. About 300 agents lost their licenses and $300,000 was returned to policy holders.

Insurance Commissioner Karl Hornerman of Washington appointed an experienced trial lawyer to represent the public at rate hearings.

Insurance company officials and trade association spokesmen deny that state regulators are pushing the industry to provide services it would otherwise not make available to the public.

"THE surge of consumer oriented activity among insurance commissioners is a part of a wave of consumer consciousness affecting the industry as a whole," said William O. Bailey, executive vice president of Blue Line and Casualty Co.

What does it mean to the insurance buying public? For the most part, it means that the person buying insurance has a better chance of knowing what he is getting and in some cases may get more for his money. In a few cases, commissioners have tried to get money back for people who were obviously deceived.

COMMISSIONERS in at least two dozen states have instituted or proposed curbs on companies selling supplemental health insurance. Often advertised in Sunday newspaper supplements, these policies usually claim to provide a certain amount of money each day when a person is hospitalized. Commissioners have complained about fine-print qualifications and taken actions ranging from individual suspensions and fines to advertising restrictions affecting Industry officials have accused Denenberg and other consumer-oriented commissioners of headline hunting or regulating by press release. "You have to add the public pressure to get things done," is Denenberg's response.

Rep-elect Stark
Maverick banker on way to D.C.

WALNUT CREEK (AP) — As president and chairman of a local bank, Rep-elect Anthony D. "Pat" Stark, D-Calif., once told his customers U.S. savings bonds were a bad investment. The federal government subsequently withdrew from Stark's bank the right to sell such bonds.

Now the 41-year-old banker is going to Washington as an elected official and says he hopes to get a seat on the Banking and Currency Committee.

"I WOULD think that I would be most useful and effective there," said Stark, who headed Security National Bank here.

The maverick banker unseated hawkish House veteran George P. Miller in the June primary and in November won the right to represent California's sprawling 8th Congressional District.

Stark, 40 years younger than the man he is replacing, did not wait for his Jan. 3 inauguration to begin working as an elected official. His district office has already handled some 67 cases.

Stark said as a freshman congressman he hopes to be of help to senior house members and to handle cases which reach his office efficiently.

"It doesn't sound like a hell of a lot, but I'd think that it would be a lot accomplished," he said in an interview.

STARK ALSO gained wide notoriety for a huge peace symbol he hung on the bank which he hopes the new owner won't remove.

"I'm sending a newsletter to the bank's customers saying that I hope it will stay," he said about the illuminated symbol which is visible for miles.

"Even if Nixon does end the war... I just hope it stays as a symbol of our folly in the whole thing. It might be a good memorial or reminder."

IN A RECENT INTERVIEW, STARK SAID:

all companies in the field. Blue Cross and Blue Shield plans, long immune from criticism, have been denied rate increases in at least six states this year.

DeShelter, Ohio's insurance director, recently turned down the rate increase requests of three Blue Cross plans. He said Blue Cross had a "cozy relationship" with the legislature it deals with instead of the subscribers it represents.

DeShelter, 43, has been on the job nearly two years. Like some other commissioners, he said he does not feel comfortable being labeled a consumer advocate. Aides point out, however, that he did set up a "hot line" through which an average of 400 consumers a month have registered complaints and asked questions about their insurance policies.

IN OTHER cases, commissioners have shaken the traditional anonymity of their posts in mounting consumer crusades.

Pennsylvania's insurance commissioner, Herbert S. Denenberg, one of the first advocates in the ranks of and most vocal consumer state regulators, appears in marches in demonstrations and issues a flood of press releases.

Denenberg has issued a number of "Shopper's Guides" to hospital costs and automobile and life insurance.

Industry officials have accused Denenberg and other consumer-oriented commissioners of headline hunting or regulating by press release. "You have to add the public pressure to get things done," is Denenberg's response.

Day-care center concept is being adapted to elderly

By LYNNE OLSON
Associated Press

"Before I came here, I felt like I had been thrown away for good," said Minnie Smith. "Now I feel like a person again. I think people really do still care for me."

The 76-year-old widow, her hands wrapped around a cane, was talking about her attendance at an Atlanta day care center for the elderly, one of a growing number throughout the country.

About 50 such centers, many of them in operation less than a year, are located in 20 states and several more are in the planning stages, according to a study being prepared for the federal government's Office of Long Term Care Services.

THE DAY care centers are part of an intensified effort to keep physically and mentally limited senior citizens in the community and out of nursing homes.

Participants include stroke and heart patients, amputees and people with such diseases as arteriosclerosis, multiple sclerosis and Parkinson's disease. Some centers also accept mildly senile persons.

Most of those attending the centers live with family members who work and can't give their elderly relatives the constant care they need. Others live alone.

President Nixon, in a report to the White House Conference on Aging last December, recommended that alternatives be found to placing the elderly in institutions.

The U.S. Administration on Aging recently provided grants to three day care centers, "in order to stimulate and guide the development and expansion of other day care centers."

One of the three facilities is run by Levindale Hebrew Geriatric Center and Hospital, a Baltimore nursing home.

Abraham Kostick, executive director of Levindale, said he started the day care program in July 1970 because of a strong belief that elderly persons should not automatically be shunted into nursing homes when they become disabled.

"YOU LOSE your individuality in a home like this," he said.

"Here we control so much of these people's lives. In the day care center, people can choose what they want to do and can retain their own identities."

"Psychologically, you age very fast in a nursing home," Kostick added. "It's my belief that a day care program can help retard both physical and mental deterioration."

Several of the 34 participants in the center program spend time in the activities workshop, earning money by performing small repetitive chores.

One stout, elderly man was placing large black rubber files in plastic capsules which would be sold in vending machines.

"I had a cataract operation last year and could hardly see," he said. "All I did for the next eight months was sit in a chair. But now I'm working and working hard."

He pointed to a box filled with capsules. "Look, I did all that in one hour. The work isn't that interesting, but I get money for it. It's enough to buy my grandchildren birthday and Christmas presents."

IN THE ARTS and crafts room, a dozen women, several in wheel chairs, were making afghans, plastic flowers and cloth dolls.

A frail 87-year-old woman sat at an easel in the corner, dabbing her brush carefully at a painting of a mountain.

"My painting is a lifesaver," she said. "I think I would just about go out of my mind if I couldn't come here and do it. I don't have anything else to do."

Margery Cohen, the center's social worker, said: "We do everything we can to preserve and strengthen the participants' feeling of self-worth and usefulness. We try to restore their old roles as friends, group members and workers."

"Those who don't want to be active at the center can sit in the day care lounge, listening to records, playing checkers, talking or just dozing."

Special activities are often planned, such as picnics, parties, shopping excursions and group discussions. Two hot meals are provided each day.

Adapting to the center isn't always easy for the elderly.

"When they first come, there's resistance," Mrs. Cohen said.

"It's something new and frightening. It takes them about four weeks to feel at home."

THE FAMILIES are generally very appreciative," she added.

"It's a godsend for them, a great weight lifted."

"They want to keep their relative at home but at the same time they want to be allowed to lead their own lives without having to worry constantly about him. In many cases, it's lessened resentment toward the older person and relieved tension in the home."

The cost for the day care program per person is $12 a day; compared to $28 a day for nursing home care at Levindale. Participants are asked to pay as much as they can.

The Levindale program is funded by participant fees, the government grant and a contribution from the nursing home, Kostick said.

Other day care centers receive federal money from state agencies under Title Three of the Older

Crime behavior, heredity linked in prison study

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UPI) — To examine the possibility that a tendency toward antisocial criminal behavior may be inherited, Dr. Raymond Crowe ran checks on the children of 41 female criminals.

All had been given up for adoption by their mothers before they were 18 months old. This provided some, though not complete, assurance that any behavior patterns acquired from the mothers had been physically inherited in maternal genes rather than from the influences of maternal examples in childhood.

The mothers were inmates of the Iowa State Women's Reformatory or the Iowa State Training School for Girls between 1926 and 1956. Only four had been confined for misdemeanors; the others had been convicted of felonies such as forgery, larceny, prostitution and breaking and entering.

They had yielded 52 babies for adoption, 27 boys and 25 girls. Crowe identified them in official adoption records. Those also provided his "matched controls" — 52 babies whose mothers had no known criminal record and were of the same sex and age and put out for adoption at the same times.

Crowe assumed all 104 had had very similar up-bringsings by adoptive parents. From state police records he identified those of the 104 who had trouble with the law as teen-agers or young adults.

Eight of the offspring of criminal mothers had been arrested 18 times. Only two of the "controls" had been arrested, each one only once. The difference was highly significant by the statistical measure although because of the small numbers it didn't prove anything.

Seven of the eight had been convicted of such offenses as forgery, larceny, "lascivious acts," obtaining money under false pretenses, issuing false checks, and juvenile delinquency. Five of the eight had served prison terms.

Crowe also checked them and "controls" for traffic violations because antisocial behavior can sometimes be deduced from very bad driving records. Eleven had been convicted 19 times for speeding. Seven of the controls had been convicted eight times.

Comparisons were not significant statistically. But they "supported the trend" toward more antisocial behavior by the offspring of female criminals than by the controls, Crowe said.

This "trend" he found impressive. Half of the offenders were females and this, Crowe said, "was quite unexpected in view of the well established finding that criminal offenses are considerably rarer among females than among males."

He is on the faculty of the University of Iowa School of Medicine in Iowa City and reported to "archives of general psychiatry," a publication of the American Medical Association.

American Act; some get funds from the federal model cities program; and some are funded totally by local contributions.

Only one state — Hawaii — funds and licenses day care centers for the elderly.

Several day care centers for the elderly have been in operation up to four years, but a lack of public awareness has made it difficult for some to recruit participants, the Office of Long Term Care Services study said.

ONE OF THE pioneers was the Atlanta Senior Citizens Day Care Center, founded in February 1970 and funded by model cities.

The 44 participants, most of them on welfare and Social Security, come from the model cities neighborhood in Atlanta. There is no charge for those who attend.

"These people are very poor," said Ruth Perry, director of the center. "They've worked as maids, construction laborers and in the cotton fields. They've had no opportunities in their lives, but to work like dogs."

"They couldn't afford nursing homes even if they wanted to go. Before they came, several of them felt the only thing for them to do was stay home and die."

The activities, include games, physical therapy, movies and crafts. Among the favorites is an exercise class.

"When I came here, I was bent way over and couldn't straighten up," Minnie Smith said. "Now I stand pert and strut all around."

Mary Harkness, 91, leaned over and said: "If I didn't come here, it would be the last of me. I'd be so lonesome, lying in bed and looking at four walls."

MRS. PERRY said she had noticed often dramatic changes in the attitudes of many who come to the center.

"One 87-year-old woman was in a wheel chair when she first came," she said. "A couple of months later, she was walking with a walker and talking."

"The changes take place because they're around people and they get interested in things to do. They're not alone and stuck in a room somewhere."

Courts say no; reporters go to jail saying yes

Do newsmen have legal right to protect sources?

By LOUISE COFF
Associated Press

Should a newsman have a special right to refuse to testify before a grand jury or judge?

The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled no, but the debate goes on.

Four newsmen have gone to jail in recent months, sentenced for contempt of court when they refused to answer questions about their stories.

ALMOST two dozen bills providing some form of protection for newsmen have been introduced in Congress. U.S. Sen. Lowell P. Weiker, R-Conn. says he plans to introduce still another next year.

At issue is whether the First Amendment to the Constitution which guarantees freedom of speech gives newsmen a special immunity from disclosing confidential sources or information.

The Supreme Court ruled 5 to 4 in June that "the Constitution does not . . . exempt the newsmen from performing the citizen's normal duty of appearing and furnishing information relevant to the grand jury's task." The court said, however, that legislative bodies could enact laws to give newsmen protection.

The first newsman jailed after the court ruling was Peter Bridge who served 21 days in October for refusing to answer some of a grand jury's questions about a story he wrote for the now defunct Evening News of Newark involving the Newark, N.J., Housing Authority.

Bridge, 36, claimed that five of the questions asked by the grand jury in its investigations of an alleged bribe offered to one of the commissioners went beyond the scope of his article and would compromise his freedom of speech.

THE GRAND jury did not find evidence in its investigation to merit a bribery indictment and Bridge was freed the day before the jury's term expired.

New Jersey law allows newsmen to withhold confidential sources from grand juries, but Superior Court Judge H. Curtis Meador ruled that Bridge waived that immunity by quoting the source of his information.

The New Jersey legislature has given final approval to a bill that would have protected Bridge. The measure, described by its sponsors as the strongest of its kind in the nation, provides that any person involved in the gathering of news would not have to disclose any information about the new story or how it was obtained to any court, grand jury or other investigative body.

William Farr, now a Los Angeles Times reporter, was jailed Nov. 16 for 3½ hours, released pending appeal and sent back to prison again Nov. 27 for his refusal to disclose the source of a story he wrote for the Los Angeles Herald Examiner during the Charles Manson murder trial.

Farr has said that one or more of the six attorneys in the case allowed him to look at a statement from a prospective witness which contained details used in the story.

EACH OF the six attorneys has sworn he was not the source and the judge in the case has ordered Farr to reveal who allowed him to look at the witness' statement. The judge has said he wants to punish whichever attorney violated his order prohibiting public statements by persons involved in the trial.

Farr, 37, was sentenced to an indefinite term and is still in jail. His attorney has filed an appeal with the U.S. District Court.

Harry Thornton, a Chattanooga, Tenn., television personality, was jailed for several hours Dec. 5 after he was found guilty of contempt of court for refusing to reveal the name of a telephone caller whose remarks were broadcast on his WDEF TV show. Thornton was ordered freed pending the outcome of an appeal, with further proceedings scheduled for Jan. 2. The caller described himself as a grand juror and said an investigation of a former city judge had been a whitewash.

Joseph Weiler, a reporter with the Memphis, Tenn., Commercial Appeal, had been charged with contempt by a state Senate committee and ordered to appear to show why he should not be held in contempt for failing to name the sources of his stories on alleged child abuse at Arlington Hospital and School for the Mentally Retarded. The charges were dropped Dec. 8 after the state attorney general ruled the commit-

The Man Who Sold Hot Dogs:

An I,P-T Parable

There once was a man who lived by the side of the road and sold hot dogs. In fact, he sold very good hot dogs. He put up signs on the highway telling people how good his hot dogs tasted. He stood by the side of the road and called out, "Buy a hot dog, Mister?"

And people bought his hot dogs. They bought so many hot dogs, the man increased his meat and bun orders. He bought a bigger stove, too, so he could meet his customers' demands. And finally, he brought his son home from college to help out in the family business.

But something happened. His son said, "Father, don't you watch television or read the papers? Don't you know there's a big recession going on? The European situation is terrible. The domestic crisis is even worse!"

And the father thought, "Well, my son's a smart boy. He's been to college. He ought to know what he's talking about."

So the man cut down on his meat and bun orders, took down the signs he had put up on the highway, and no longer bothered to stand by the side of the road to sell his hot dogs.

And his sales fell almost overnight. "You're right, son," said the father. "We certainly are in the middle of a serious recession."

tee had no authority to act because it ceased to exist legally with the Nov. 7 general election.

The Supreme Court decision involved three cases:

— The refusal by Paul M. Branzburg, an investigative reporter for the Louisville Courier Journal, to give information to grand juries in Kentucky investigating illegal drugs and "the hippie community."

— The refusal by Paul Pappas, a spokesman for WTEV, New Bedford, Mass., to testify about what and whom he saw at a Black Panther party headquarters.

— The refusal of Earl Caldwell, a New York Times reporter, to testify before a grand jury in San Francisco investigating the black Panthers. Caldwell had been convicted of civil contempt in the case in 1970.

None of the three were jailed. In the Caldwell and Pappas cases the terms of the grand juries involved had expired and Branzburg had moved from the state.

At a recent panel discussion in California, Caldwell said, "The issue in my case was very simple — whether I could function as a reporter, or whether I would have to be a government agent or spy."

In another incident involving the press and the courts, John Lawrence, Washington bureau chief for the Los Angeles Times, was jailed for two hours for contempt of court for refusing to hand over taped interviews with a witness in the Watergate bugging case.

The Times Wednesday turned over the tapes to the court after the witness, Alfred C. Baldwin III, told officers of the court he had no objection to such a move.

The Times' surrendering of the tapes paved the way for the contempt charge against Lawrence to be dropped.

Lawyers or seven men indicted in the break-in and bugging of Democratic National Headquarters in the Watergate case had demanded access to the tapes for use in defense.

Lawrence had been ordered to jail by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica. The spokesman was ordered freed by an appeals court pending preparation of an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The tapes had been recorded by two other Times newsmen during an interview with Baldwin, a former FBI agent. A report of that interview was published in the Times.

Sirica apologized for having cited Lawrence for contempt.

Before Baldwin authorized release of the tapes, Lawrence said:

"Our policy has always been to oppose subpoenas and we will certainly oppose this one. The stand is based primarily on the First Amendment's free press guarantee."

And in still another Los Angeles case, KFWB radio newsmen Jim Mitchell has a temporary reprieve from an order to produce tapes of interviews he conducted in a probe of alleged bail-bond abuse by judges.

Spokesman for the station told the I.P.T. Sunday that the Los Angeles County District Attorney's office has told Mitchell that he won't have to turn over his tapes—at least for the time being. He had been subpoenaed by the County Grand Jury to produce the tapes.

The D.A.'s office said it would continue its investigation of the case and Mitchell still may be subject to call, the station spokesman said. Mitchell did turn over those portions of the tapes he put on the air.

According to the station spokesman, KFWB general manager Art Schreiber has said he would continue to support his newsmen against such so-called fishing expeditions.

JOHN LAWRENCE
Freed in Washington

Mitchell is continuing in his regular assignment, the spokesman added.

There have been several moves on the national level to protect newsmen's rights. The board of directors of the American Society of Newspaper Editors has announced its support of a federal "shield" law to "grant unqualified protection to the press in the gathering and processing of new for public dissemination."

A DISTINCTIVE feature of Weicker's bill is that it would provide newsmen an "absolute" immunity from forced disclosure before grand juries, legislative committees and government agencies and a limited immunity before open courts trying major criminal cases.

He said he had drafted the measure to overcome the objections to the more than 20 other bills introduced in the last Congress.

Weicker said his bill was not a "newsman's privilege" measure, "because it's not for newsmen, it's for the general public. We do not need to protect newsmen. Rather we must protect a constitutional right we all have in the free flow of news."

Yearning, waiting over for PW's family

By PAT LEISNER

ORLANDO Fla. (AP) — The child sat at the typewriter and pecked out a little poem. She called it "I Wish I knew."

"On the skies are blue and the fields are green, there'll be some never to be seen."

"Now I know how sad it is, to wait and wait and wait and wait, and to send his package never knowing if it'll be his."

"Now I know how sad you would be too, if you never knew."

Leslie Ford, 10, typed those lines last spring after packages sent to her father in a North Vietnamese prisoner-of-war camp started coming back unopened.

Every three months since Navy Cmdr. Randolph Ford's plane was shot down in 1968, his wife, Frankie, Leslie, and sons Danny, 13, and Curtis, 6, made up a package and sent it to him.

The Defense Department had listed the 37-year-old pilot as a prisoner of war.

The Pentagon knew he survived the crash because after he went down he radioed other American fliers, "Don't come in. Enemy fire too close."

But there was no explanation of why he never wrote, or why his packages started coming back unopened.

When Leslie visited her grandmother, Marlan Ford, in Dunedin, Fla., last spring, she asked if she could use a typewriter. A few minutes later, she handed her grandmother the poem.

Marion Ford said that as she fought to hold back the tears, her granddaughter looked at her and said, "Well, wouldn't it be better to know?"

On Sept. 30, 1972, a chaplain from the Naval Training Station at Orlando visited Mrs. Ford and told her that American POWs released by Hanoi a few days before reported that Cmdr. Randolph Ford had died of his wounds nine days after capture.

CHRISTMAS IS BRIGHT

Bringing Christmas alive, two of the six winning Christmas displays awarded prizes in the annual Long Beach Jaycees Christmas Lighting Contest are seen at their brightest.

The top photograph is of the home of William Moore at 2018 Pasadena Ave., Long Beach, winner of the most novel decoration. The entire front of the home is ablaze with Christmas decorations. Each night, adding his own special touch, Moore becomes Santa Claus — sitting in an overstuffed chair on the front porch to greet young children (as seen in the photograph to the right.)

L.B. to gain $858,603 in state tax equalizations

By LOU GODFREY
Staff Writer

The city of Long Beach will receive $858,603.44 in the December distribution of local sales and use tax moneys collected by the State Board of Equalization.

That figure is exceeded by only one other municipality in the county, the city of Los Angeles, which will receive $7,166,295.87. The share for the county is $1,570,161.15.

The funds are part of a total of $80,110,838 statewide distribution, which represents cleanup payments for the third quarter of 1972 after making three monthly advances to the cities and counties, and the first advance payment for the fourth quarter of 1972, received from October prepayments by taxpayers.

Most of the funds come from the Bradley-Burns 1 per cent local sales and use-tax payments of $50,339,617 to the cities, and $10,351,640 to the counties; and the 14 per cent local sales and use-tax payment to counties for the county local transportation fund totaling $16,261,281. The present 5-per-cent sales tax will rise to 6 per cent effective June 1, 1973, upon the governor's signing of Senate Bill 90, passed by the 1972 Legislature.

THAT INCREASE will not result in more revenue for cities and counties; instead, the increase will be reflected only in the state's portion of the sales and use taxes, which will go up from 3 1/4 per cent to 4 1/4 per cent.

Other Los Angeles County cities will receive: Artesia, $30,513.37; Bellflower, $130,918.95; Carson, $104,786.34; Cerritos, $115,341.71; Downey, $292,136.50; Hawaiian Gardens, $21,523.30; Lakewood, $239,288; Lynwood, $98,013.55; Norwalk, $201,914; Palos Verdes Estates, $2,286.26; Paramount, $105,142.18; Pico Rivera, $112,293.70; Rolling Hills, $200.60; Rolling Hills Estates, $56,789.52; Santa Fe Springs, $281,532.45; Signal Hill, $91,492.75; Torrance, $641,973.04.

Orange County will receive $264,612.31. Cities in that county will receive:

Anaheim, $740,416.04; Brea, $32,865.08; Buena Park, $249,713.11; Costa Mesa, $146,114.91; Cypress, $26,120.78; Fountain Valley, $101,203.74; Fullerton, $115,754.29; Garden Grove, $258,806.24; Huntington Beach, $360,451.44; Irvine, $115,881.28; Laguna Beach, $51,484.69; La Habra, $124,009.91; La Palma, $14,389.76; Los Alamitos, $50,372.76; Newport Beach, $247,765.43; Orange, $376,219.03; Placentia, $42,083.06; San Clemente, $63,114.08; San Juan Capistrano, $33,383.20; Santa Ana, $598,882.02; Seal Beach, $35,147.89; Stanton, $75,351.09; Tustin, $107,990.63; Villa Park, $3,078.74; Westminster, $172,021.09; Yorba Linda, $21,881.95.

Doctor's queries Heroic heart rescue hit

By BEN ZINER
Medical-Science Editor

A Seal Beach physician said today the medical profession should take another look at heroic resuscitation efforts for heart patients.

Dr. Herbert H. Shey, in a letter to the Journal of the American Medical Association, warned that it's time to appraise the implications of the "new heroism in medicine."

Shey, 63, described the attempts to help the apparently dead or near-dead heart victim as "instant lifesaving" but said the long-term benefits appear to be less than impressive.

He said that coronary-care units and firemen trained to revive faltering hearts are "springing up all over the county."

Cardiac resuscitation has become an enthusiastic practice, he said, but it poses a number of serious medical, legal and philosophical considerations.

Some of the questions raised:

—Should a supposedly dead person be revived without his permission? (It takes a patient's "informed consent" to remove his toenail, Shey contends.)

—Should everybody in cardiac arrest get the full treatment, or should there be limitations such as age?

—Are well meaning attendants to be encouraged in applying resuscitation measures to a nonagenarian "vegetable" as is frequently seen in nursing homes?

A temporary expedient for those who wish to reserve for themselves the dignity of dying is to carry a special card, Shey said.

Shey, in an interview with the Independent Press-Telegram, said he has carried the following card in his wallet for the past two months:

"To the attending physician or paramedic: In the event I appear to be dead or near-dead from a heart condition, I do NOT wish to be resuscitated by heroic means (particularly cardiac conversion!)."

This kind of notice, Shey said, will save the unconscious patient from having his life prolonged against his will. Yet it will not preclude measures that may be indicated for other life-threatening conditions, such as blood loss and shock.

Shey said it may take years to compile valid data for evaluation, such as comparisons of hospital deaths and discharges of patients with the disease before and after introduction of these new lifesaving procedures.

The overall death rate in hospitals should have fallen considerably in the past 10 years, but there's no proof of it, Shey said.

Public invited free to Winter Water Games

Lifeguards from Long Beach and Huntington Beach will join guards from five other city and county teams in competition for which they train year-round — the 11th annual Winter Water Games, opening at 11 a.m. Thursday at Cabrillo Beach.

The contest, which includes events in four surf-and-shore categories demanding mastery of lifesaving techniques, is expected to draw more than 50 competitors from as far as Santa Barbara and San Diego, according to Cabrillo Beach officials.

The competition includes the five-man run-swim-run relay, the five-man dory relay, the five-man paddle relay, and the four-man dummy tow.

The dummy tow event was described by officials as the most exciting race. In it, lifeguards try their hand at an Australian rescue method, with one team member, in harness, swimming to a buoy and then being pulled back to shore by his three teammates. Each team member must make the swim, and be towed back, before the race is complete.

Two non-scoring events also are scheduled, said organizers. In the surf-ski race, they said, entrants must surf two laps around a buoy course. In the Myron F. Cox Senior Beach Lifeguard Swim, entrants — over 30 and without wetsuits — race freestyle over a 400-yard course.

Admission to the games is free, said organizers, and the public invited.

1 of 5 work for government in L.B.

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

Of the 139,523 employed persons in Long Beach at the time of the 1970 census, one out of every five were employed by some branch of government, the U. S. Bureau of the Census has reported in another of a series of "statistical profiles."

There were 26,665 government workers, or 19.1 per cent of the total labor force, the bureau said.

This included 7,687 working for the federal government, 3,641 for the state and 15,337 working for what the bureau lumped together as "local government." This presumably included city and county, as well as numerous special districts.

The City of Long Beach had about 4,518 full-time and 218 part-time employees in the 1969-70 fiscal year.

Three-fourths of the city's total labor force worked for some private employer, and about 6.5 per cent were self-employed, the census report said.

The bureau said the total Long Beach labor force at the time of the 1970 census was 162,981 persons, or 58 per cent of all persons 16 years of age and older. This included 14,096 members of the armed forces.

The civilian labor force included the 139,523 employed persons and 9,362 who were unemployed. The city's unemployment rate was 6.3 per cent, as compared to 6.2 per cent for Los Angeles County as a whole, the survey said.

Women constituted 39.9 per cent of the city's civilian labor force. Of the 59,416 women in the labor force, 3,890, or 6.5 per cent, were unemployed in April, 1970.

Blacks comprised 4.2 per cent of the civilian labor force and, of these, 737, or 11.8 per cent, were unemployed. Persons of Spanish surname or speaking Spanish made up 7.1 per cent of the civilian labor force, and 882, or 8.4 per cent, were unemployed.

The largest percentage of Long Beach workers, 30,343 or 21.7 per cent, were in clerical or kindred jobs. The second largest group, 24,876 or 17.8 per cent, were in professional, technical or kindred jobs.

There were only 4,991 laborers, and this was only 3.6 per cent of the total, the report said.

Manufacturing, wholesale and retail trade, and professional services were the three major industries. The bureau said 33,799 Long Beach workers, or 24.2 per cent of the total, worked in manufacturing.

Wholesale and retail trade involved 29,938, or 21.5 per cent, while professional and related services accounted for 27,812, or 20 per cent.

La Habra CC mounts drive for relief for quake victims

By KRIS DULANEY
Staff Writer

Dale Isenberg and his fellow La Habra Chamber of Commerce members will spend Christmas Day collecting donations of food, clothing and blood to aid the victims of the massive earthquake that struck the Nicaraguan capital of Managua Saturday.

Isenberg, executive vice president of the chamber, says he would like to be in Nicaragua, personally helping the Central Americans, but instead he and other chamber members will mount a relief drive in their community.

Isenberg will spend his holiday in the chamber offices at 135 W. La Habra Blvd., accepting donations "as long as people will bring them."

In addition, the chamber has arranged for La Habra Community Hospital, Idaho Street and Lambert Road, to accept blood donations throughout the day.

Isenberg says he and the 45,000 citizens of the Orange County community identify very closely with the tragedy in Central America, and "that's why we're going to do all we can to help."

Three years ago, the people of La Habra officially adopted Esteli, Nicaragua, a city of approximately 45,000, 60 miles northeast of Managua, as their international sister city.

And, during that time, many of the chamber's 350 members have made an annual good-will trek to Esteli, visiting other Nicaraguan communities along the way.

Calling the Central American neighbors he has met "very friendly and hospitable," Isenberg says there is no way to verbalize the empathy he feels for his Nicaraguan "brothers."

BUT WHAT he says he can't put into words, he has put into action.

Shortly after hearing of the tragedy, Isenberg began enlisting the aid of local residents, chamber members and even supermarkets.

Community reaction and response to the project, he says, "has been very positive." Supermarkets have already offered donations of canned foods and dry staples, and Isenberg is "hoping for more."

Quick money, from I.P.T. ad

Putting extra money in people's pockets is a habit with Independent Press-Telegram classified ads. And Jack Elder, 118 Stanford Ave., Seal Beach, will testify to this since he was able to borrow $5,000 to finance income property through an I.P.T. classified.

Put quick money in your pocket by using I.P.T. classified ads to sell, rent or buy. Call HUC 2-5959 today.

The chamber official adds that people will staff the chamber offices "through today and into the coming weeks," accepting donations, issuing thank yous and conducting tours.

Isenberg said the building now occupied by the chamber "was once the office of a young lawyer named Richard Nixon."

Chamber members are currently restoring the portion of the building that Nixon used "to its original state," and have had the site declared a California Historical Monument.

"When people come by to drop off food and clothing, we'll be happy to give them a short tour of the monument," Isenberg declared.

Returning his thoughts to Nicaragua, Isenberg said all donations will be airlifted to Managua "as soon as possible," adding the chamber is making arrangements with the military to have the supplies flown to Central America.

"It's not much," Isenberg concluded, "but it's just about all we can do. It may be a holiday, but those people need our help and since we can't be there, we think we're doing the next best thing."

Elusive star of peace

Overshadowing everything else this Christmas is the war in Indochina. It has been a war of agonizing length that has devastated Vietnam, divided America and clouded all our Christmases and all our days.

It is especially painful this year, for only two months ago the negotiators for both Hanoi and Washington appeared to be brief hours away from agreement.

Then the chief American negotiator, Dr. Henry Kissinger, said the North Vietnamese premiere "seemed to be, with respect to one or two points, under a misapprehension as to what the agreement contained." Dr. Kissinger returned to Paris to clear up a few "linguistic problems."

They did not clear up. Dr. Kissinger concluded that perhaps they were not minor questions of language but major questions of substance. Still, the negotiations proceeded to a point where, Dr. Kissinger said, "all of us thought that we were within a day or two of completing the arrangements."

At that point, he said, Hanoi began to withdraw its approval of one section after another of the agreement.

If the North Vietnamese and Dr. Kissinger both had second thoughts about their October results, even the first thoughts in Saigon were largely negative. And peace eludes everyone.

IS IT A psychological problem? Dr. Kissinger thinks it might be. "The people of Vietnam, North and South, have fought for so long that the risks and perils of war, however difficult, seem sometimes more bearable to them than the uncertainties and the risks and perils of peace," Dr. Kissinger explained.

"Sadly enough, the same problem has sometimes seemed to bedevil American leaders all these long years. It may be a factor today."

Dr. Kissinger insists it is not. If it is not, or if it can be overcome, Saigon's objections will not prevent peace. Dr. Kissinger has assured us. "If an agreement is reached that we consider just," he told a news conference, "no other party will have a veto over our actions."

That leaves Hanoi. "The only thing that is lacking," Dr. Kissinger er said, "is one decision in Hanoi: to settle the remaining issues in terms that two weeks previously they had already agreed to."

One report says that the basic issue Hanoi has raised, and to which the United States refuses to accede, is a demand that South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu release 40,000 political prisoners. Whether the issue can be compromised, we do not know. But it does not seem an unreasonable subject for negotiations.

If this is not the sticking point, however, something else may well be, simply because Hanoi fears peace. It is less likely, but possible, that American negotiators also fear peace because they think it will be followed too swiftly by a Communist takeover of all Vietnam. It is certain that this is a fear of President Thieu's, and it is possible that he will not accede to any achievable peace agreement at all.

In that case, the question, as one newsman put it to Dr. Kissinger, is this: "Can a useful agreement be made operative without Saigon's signature?"

DR. KISSINGER'S answer: "This is a question that has not yet had to be faced and which we hope will not have to be faced."

So the fury of the war grows, and absent Saigon's assent even a peace agreement may not mean peace for Vietnam. The hope for peace is ironically less bright at Christmas than it was a few weeks ago.

Chances seemed fair that no American lives would be endangered by war at Christmas and that perhaps no other lives need be, either. There was hope that the prisoners of war would be home or on their way home from North Vietnam.

That bright promise has not been realized, but the fundamental bases for it remain. North and South Vietnam cannot by themselves maintain a war that no longer serves an important purpose for the great powers.

We need not, therefore, be glum this holiday. We can celebrate in good cheer the spirit of Christmas. We can pray that its effects will be felt in Indochina and throughout the world in 1973.

Scriptures form vital manual

For Christians, life's finest gift is the birth of Jesus which Arnold Toynbee calls history's most important event.

Dr. Rene Dubos, bacteriologist, said recently that scientists calculate it is unlikely that life resembling man with his free will exists anywhere but on earth.

Considering the incalculable value of each soul, it is awe inspiring that man has the Scriptures which Jesus venerated and lived by.

The New Testament records His reverence for the Commandments and the law as well as for Isaiah and the other prophets. On the Cross, His prayer was from a beloved Psalm.

When a lawyer asked how to inherit eternal life, Jesus said he must love God with all his heart, soul and mind, and "thy neighbor as thyself."

These answers, with the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount containing the Beatitudes, form a manual for living, revealing God's love for man.

This unmerited love sustains the lonely, sorrowful, poor, ill, and imprisoned. Jesus has admonished us to alleviate this suffering and has promised "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these . . . ye have done it unto me."

The Scriptures ask "What is a man profited if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" If we do not read the Scriptures, we may not ask this question.

The German poet, Rilke, said, "Live the questions . . . perhaps, some day you will find the answers."

In Russia, and other European Communist nations, the Bible cannot be purchased. Citing a news photograph of Nobel Laureate Solzhenitsyn crossing himself at a funeral, Malcolm Muggeridge, British Christian and author, said, "Many Russians are secretly devoted to spiritual truths."

Muggeridge said unless our society recoils from sensualism, we are rushing towards spiritual darkness and the destruction of political and economic freedom. Solzhenitsyn asserts that truth, beauty, and goodness are not empty formulas, and that great literature helps preserve the national soul, containing facets of God's design.

George Steiner, Cambridge University, wrote recently, "Sonority rooted in the Bible and Shakespeare has served as the code of political order at home and of confidence abroad. Its swift recession from English public modes and education marks a general crisis."

Dr. Rollo May, psychotherapist and author, asserts that today's anti-culture obsessions show language disintegration and our society's death.

Our Christmas wish is that we may "don the armor of light," remembering Jesus' words "I am the resurrection and the life. He that believeth in me though he be dead, yet shall he live."

More states are adopting lotteries

Faced with taxpayer revolts against higher income, sales and property taxes, an increasing number of states are resorting to lotteries as a "painless" way of raising money.

Maryland voters approved a state lottery in a recent referendum. That makes eight states which have climbed on the lottery bandwagon. New Hampshire was the first.

NEW HAMPSHIRE'S lottery was launched in 1964 with tickets priced at 50 cents each, and weekly drawings for prizes. About half the take from ticket sales is parceled out among winners. The other half helps finance the state school system.

With various modifications, the New Hampshire system subsequently was adopted by New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Michigan. Now Maryland.

In at least a dozen other states, lottery proposals are in various stages of planning or legislative study, and it's a good bet that several of them will be getting into the gambling business soon.

Although lotteries are not a magic cure-all for the crisis in state finances, they can bring in substantial sums of money. New York State has raked in a profit of about $170 million on its lottery since it began five years ago.

New Jersey took in $100 million for its schools during the first 18 months of its state lottery. It expects to increase the take considerably next year because it has begun having lottery drawings on a daily basis.

Opponents of the fast-growing trend toward official lotteries assert that these operations differ very little from the illegal numbers racket. The tickets are relatively cheap, the payoff is relatively small, and they say a large percentage of the ticket buyers are poor people who can ill afford to waste even 50 cents a week on a long-shot dream of getting rich overnight.

Louis

Proponents of lotteries reply that they are simply tapping, for wholesome social purposes such as education, money that would otherwise be siphoned off by underworld gambling syndicates through the numbers racket.

BY LEGALIZING betting that large numbers of people seem determined to do anyway, proponents argue, state lotteries reduce the income and power of organized crime and eliminate a major source of police corruption.

It is doubtful whether these pro-and-con arguments really decide the lottery issue in any state.

The big thing that makes lotteries attractive to state officials is that they offer a way of increasing revenue without raising taxes. And a lot of taxpayers favor them for the same reason, even though they personally might never buy a lottery ticket.

The erratic course of mortal man

SCRABBLE, Va. — A few minutes past 8 o'clock on Monday morning, while Frank McGee was running the Today show in New York, a black calf was born in Mr. Burke's field across the ravine. Later that same morning, we saw a redpoll of Charlie's Bar & Grill. Tuesday afternoon the astronauts came home. Here in the mountains, we marked on Friday the shortest day of the year.

Does it all hang together? Let me try. This is cattle country, Black Angus country, and the birth of a calf is nothing that one calls the Rappahannock News to report. Neither was there anything exceptional about Monday morning. It was cold when I went outside at 7:15, to bring in some firewood and to hoist a flag on the no. 2 pole, a north wind snatched at the banner, and the flag flapped like a great wild bird in my hands.

On the ridge across the ravine, in black silhouette against the sullen sky, the cow lay in labor. She was stretched on her right side, belly heaving, her dark head straining against the ground. I put the kindling on the hearth. My wife was at the glass door, watching the cow. "I think we're having a calf," she said.

Up in New York City, a thousand light years to the east, Frank McGee and Barbara Walters were chatting about the morning news, U.S. bombers had resumed their raids above the DMZ. A father of four had died in Ulster. The cow got heavily to her feet, stumbled a step or two, lay down again. The astronauts were headed home.

AT 8:15 or thereabouts, the calf was born. On the frozen hill the afterbirth produced a milky steam. It was a small calf, black as Bibles, black as Space. It lay for a minute or so, being licked; then it tried its front legs, and discovered they worked, and tried its back legs, and discovered they worked too. The calf discovered milk, and began to nurse. Half an hour later, when I glanced that way again, the cow and newborn calf had ambled off.

A little before noon, when I went to the kitchen to fetch a forgotten book, my wife was looking intently at the feeder that swings from the chestnut oak. "New customer," she said. Sure enough: There at Charlie's Bar & Grill, ordinarily patronized by sparrows, juncos, cardinals, bluejays and evening grosbeaks, was a small stranger — red-capped, rose-breasted, yellow-beaked, black-masked. To the bird book!

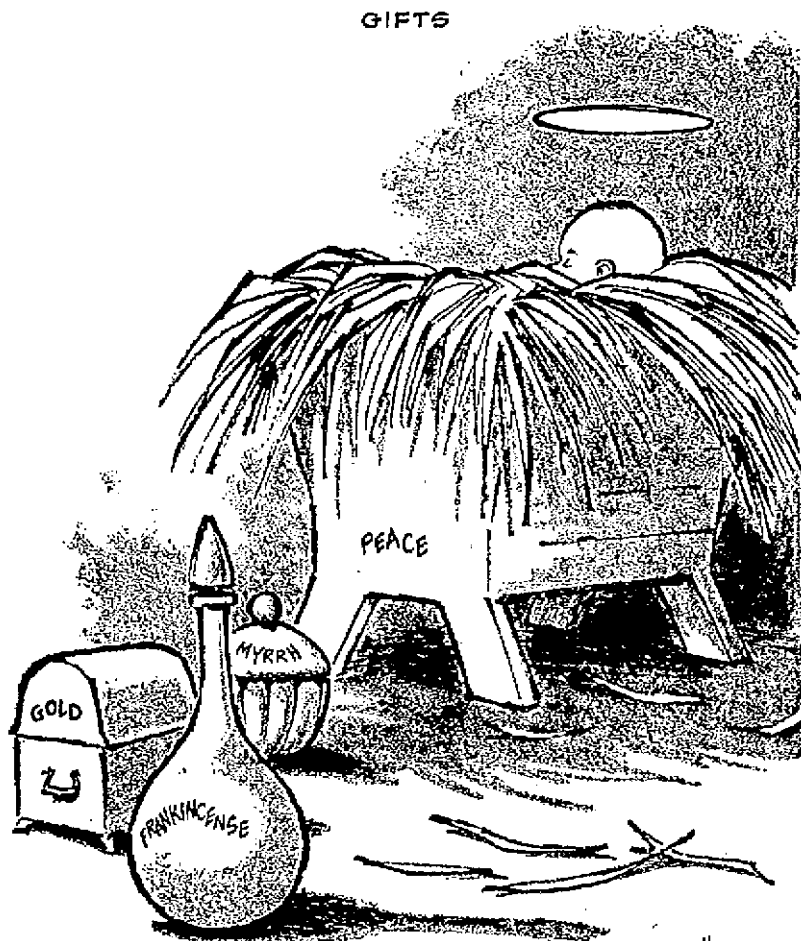

"The Common Redpoll breeds in the Northern Hemisphere, from the tundra south; in North America to s. Newfoundland, n.c. Quebec, n. Manitoba, and n. British Columbia . . . In winter irregularly south to North Carolina, n. Oklahoma, Colorado, and n. California."

It had flown a long way, this most uncommon redpoll, and would fly a long way back again, with God knows what computer in its tiny head. On Tuesday afternoon, the astronauts came home, bringing the red-orange evidence they sought: Some eons back, out of the dead depths, a fumarole had vented, freezing a tear in the eye of the moon. On Friday, the sun rose at 7:19 and set at 4:38. I worked on the mail.

THE MAIL brought a letter from a friend in Kansas, a teacher gone recently into business. He was concerned at the demands of his new work. "I hope that I won't wake up one day," he wrote, "and find I've missed the point."

That is all I am groping to say in this disjointed Christmas column. What is the point? The point is to search for understanding of the wild sublime design. By "wild," I mean to suggest the unchecked, unsaddled course of mortal man, his good and ill; peasants slain and worlds explored, live orphans and dead moons. Wild is man, but yet sublime; and so is the grand design.

I write to my friend in Kansas, stumbling over a word or two, and speak of a newsman's necessary bondage to Washington and New York. "There," I say, "is where the action is. But here in the hills — ah, here in the hills is the point."

Gray hopes to keep FBI job; Nixon noncommittal

WASHINGTON — The Federal Bureau of Investigation, molded in the image of the late J. Edgar Hoover, has been thrown into a tizzy by his successor, Louis Patrick Gray III.

Hoover surrounded himself with staid, veteran assistants who kept the FBI on a steady course. Gray has brought in three sharp but inexperienced, modish, young aides who are known inside the FBI as the "Mod Squad."

Hoover personally directed the FBI from his Washington sanctum sanctorum. Gray is away so much that he has been nicknamed "Two-Day Gray" around FBI headquarters.

Like most noncabinet officials, Hoover almost always flew in commercial planes. Gray uses the Air Force as if it were his personal airline. He and his wife have flown all over the country to inspect field offices and keep speaking engagements. Since his appointment last May, he has traveled an estimated 60,000 miles at an estimated cost to the taxpayers of well over $100,000.

by

Hoover scrupulously kept out of partisan politics, although he was not above slipping political tidbits to the incumbent president. Gray made no bones about his support for President Nixon during his travels around the country during the election campaign.

HOOVER KEPT the FBI under an iron discipline, dictating how his agents dressed and how long they wore their sideburns. Gray now permits colored shirts, modish clothes and lengthened sideburns. Gray is also recruiting women for the first time and more blacks as agents. His rule is more relaxed but less certain.

Many of the old-timers, unable to adjust to Gray's management, have quietly resigned from the FBI. Some won't be missed. But in recent weeks, four of the most vital and vigorous middle-aged FBI officials have given notice.

The top fraud sleuth, Charles Bolz, is taking a job at the Housing and Urban Development Department. The irreplaceable head of the FBI's crime information center, Don Roderick, is retiring. The FBI's ace cryptanalyst, I. W. Newpher, and its budget expert, Daniel Brennan, are also going.

All four insisted to my associate Les Whitten that Gray's tenure has nothing to do with their departure. But they could have stayed if they wished.

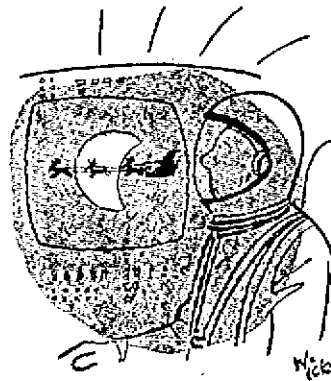

At the White House, President Nixon is deliberating whether to retain Gray or select someone else to head the FBI. The President promised Gray only that his name would be "considered" as the permanent FBI director.

OUR SOURCES inside the FBI say they would prefer someone of national stature, such as Supreme Court Justice Byron "Whizzer" White or the former crack number three man at the FBI, William Sullivan.

But Pat Gray, who is a more compassionate man than his pugnacious features might indicate, is eager to stay on. And he has an inside track with Richard Nixon.

FOOTNOTE: A spokesman, explaining Gray's frequent use of Air Force planes, said the decision was made to avoid the embarrassment of the FBI director possibly turning up one day on a hijacked airliner. "And if he'd gone scheduled airlines, he wouldn't even have been around enough to call him 'Two-Day Gray,'" added the aide. The FBI reimburses the Air Force for the cost of using the planes.

Medicine and you

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

A hormone cream that penetrates the scalp has been able to stimulate hair growth in about 72 per cent of balding men, a doctor reports.

The cream contains estradiol and oxandrolone. The two hormones work together to stimulate the growth of dormant hair follicles.

Dr. Edward Settel of New York City reported to the American Academy of Family Physicians that his cream works where others have failed because it is incorporated in a microemulsion. As a consequence the substance can penetrate the skin.

Dr. Settel said he learned about microemulsions from the chemist who developed them for the space industry, which needed them to lubricate miniaturized parts of space vehicles.

At critical temperatures and pressures, chemical reagents can reduce any fat, grease or oil to particles smaller than the encephalitis virus.

In 65 of 90 men who used application of the cream twice a day for at least six months, minimal to moderate hair growth was achieved.

Of 22 patients 21 to 30 years old, there was moderate to good growth in 13. That means the hair was thick enough to comb. Another seven patients had minimal growth. Two had no growth.

In 11 of 36 subjects between 31 and 40 there was moderate to good growth. This range of hair growth was also achieved in 11 of 36 persons between 41 and 50; five of 21 between 51 and 59; and one of 11 between 60 and 70.

Many persons reported that the cream dramatically retards excessive hair loss.

The doctor says that success depends on the number of viable hair follicles possessed by the patient. The cream does not work on atrophied hair follicles.

The cream has been approved by the Food and Drug Administration for human evaluation.

Dr. Settel says the cream was discovered by accident. He was searching for a geriatric cream for bed sores and other skin ulcers. First patient treated was a nursing home patient with a one-inch scalp ulcer. The patient had been bald for 40 years.

The cream healed the sore in 10 days, but the patient scratched it open again because of itching. The sore was treated again. Same thing. The doctors then added hydrocortisone cream to ease the itching. The sore then healed rapidly.

Then, three weeks later, a little patch of hair about one inch long and a half inch wide appeared.

That started the hair-growing research.

Dr. Settel says that with a magnifying glass and bright light it is possible to see the approximate percentage of restorable hair follicles that a person has.

A report on the research appears in Family Practice News, a newspaper for physicians.

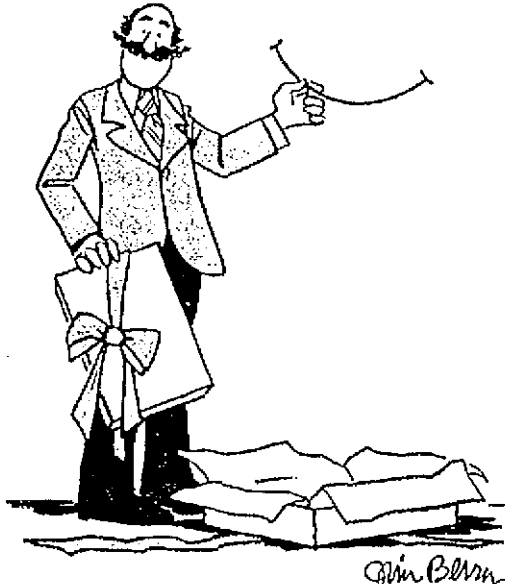

Striking remissions of long-standing psoriasis, a scaly skin disease, have been achieved by injections of the drug lidocaine in the area of skin involvement.

Dr. Henry Harris Perlman of Philadelphia, reporting in Archives of Dermatology, says his use of this agent for this disease was prompted by a patient's report of a month-long remission of psoriasis after a foot operation under spinal anesthesia.

Additional research with the drug in the treatment of psoriasis is now under way, the doctor says.

GEORGE ROBESON

Step One: Ignore Step Two if Inapplicable

IT WAS THE TIME for finding out that "Tab A" does not fit into "Slot B," nor was it designed to, and thousands of fathers all over this area were discovering that sad fact at the last minute. They had discovered it last year, too, at the same last minute, but they never learn.

I had it made. I was assembling a low-slung, plastic body trike called a Big Wheel, and it's a cinch. It's made by Marx, and I wanted to thank the company for the clearest instructions I've ever stumbled through.

Even a moron can put this thing together in half a hour. I am living testimony to that. Marx even adds instructions on the repair and replacement of wheels, in case something goes wrong — and then adds a couple of parts to the usual paper sackful of nuts and bolts and pieces of plastic, just in case that repair must be done.

And the instruction sheet tops it all off with safety instructions for the kid who rides the trike. It is headed, "Attention Outdoor Riders." I can't imagine that any parent would allow the child to ride this thing indoors. One of the parts is designed to destroy whatever good relations might have existed in the neighborhood. It is a "motor sound" gadget that sounds like the notched thread-spool kids sometimes rake across a window pane on Halloween, but this racket goes on as long as the kid is riding up and down the street. It is, however, easily removed — another kindly consideration provided by the manufacturer.

SO, ASSUMING THAT all riders are outdoor riders, the company advises the kids to wear shoes or sneakers while driving the neighbors nuts with the Big Wheel "because you'll have a better grip with your feet." What they mean is, the kid won't hurt so much when his foot slips off a pedal and he runs over his toes on a sharp turn.

"Do stay on the sidewalks," the instruction sheet says, "and if you must cross the street, get off and walk, looking up and down first." I think it's a great idea to put that in the instructions, but I have a kid who would follow it to the letter and "look up and down," without glancing at the roadway at all. The wincer should have been more explicit.

"Don't give 'hitchhikers' a ride," the sheet says. "Your trike was engineered for one rider."

I CAN IMAGE little Steve Robeson pedaling down the sidewalk, looking up and then down and then up again, and braking to a slow-clatter halt as he spots one of those nomadic hippie families with the baby and big dog and offering them a lift to Big Sur.

At least I had better luck with my construction project than a friend of mine, who was to assemble an electric barbecue. Americans have become accustomed to following the instruction sheet as a preacher follows the Bible, and this one told him that no sack was to be opened "until you are told to."

The only sack he found in his big cardboard box was labeled "G," which indicates that sacks A, B, C, D, E and F are missing. As well as two more sacks because the instructions for opening sacks when told to went up to Sack "I."

He called the Sears store in Buena Park where he had purchased the thing. The clerk tried to find another boxful of barbecue sacks, but couldn't — and then came up with a way-out-in-left-field idea: "Have you tried opening the sack labeled 'G'?" he asked. No, my friend hadn't, but would break the rules just this one time.

AND HE FOUND all the other sacks packed inside the G-bag. Which should teach us that our slavish obedience to instruction sheets is pointless, unless the words "or it will blow up in your face" are added.

Clearing the air on clean air

WASHINGTON — It is obviously insane to chop auto travel in Southern California by 86 per cent in an effort to reach what may be unobtainable clean air standards.

People wouldn't be able to get to work, to hospitals, to school or to the store.

Yet that is the one major proposal put forth to meet a Jan. 15 court-ordered deadline to clean up Los Angeles skies.

The court order resulted from a federal suit filed by the cities of Riverside and San Bernardino. Those cities merely asked that local, state and federal air pollution authorities obey the Clean Air Act of 1970.

Everyone knows, of course, that federal court orders aren't very important and aren't enforced — just ask all those kids nationwide now riding the bus to school every morning.

Yet the insanity of the gasoline rationing plan is easily matched by the stupidity, greed and sometimes criminal carelessness of government, industry and of the people of the Los Angeles basin.

As a result Los Angeles skies are so dirty that they are dangerous to health. So the cities of Riverside and San Bernardino were forced to go to court to attempt to enforce their right to clean air.

Thus, the "crunch," as William Ruckelshaus, head of the Federal Environmental Protection Agency, put it. The federal clean air standard is .08 parts of oxidant per million parts of air, a standard to be exceeded not more than once per year.

It was exceeded on 220 days last year in the Los Angeles basin.

Gil Bailey

Conditions were so bad that at one point last summer the Federal Environmental Protection Agency was ready to take over local state air pollution control agencies and to order immediate gasoline rationing.

There are plentiful examples of the stupidity which has led to the current crisis, including:

— The refusal of Los Angeles County to admit its smog can drift across county borders, a controversy, perhaps, finally ended by tests which show that, for example, oxides of nitrogen from Long Beach power plants, can and do end up in Riverside;

— Plans to construct more power plants with less than the most modern controls, although those plants emit oxides of nitrogen which combine with auto produced smog;

— The failure of anyone, including the people of Los Angeles, to construct an adequate rapid and mass transit system, ignoring the examples of the San Francisco Bay area and Washington, D.C.;

— The failure of county, state and federal agencies to prepare a workable plan to sharply reduce air pollution.

It may be that the federal standards cannot be met but that cleaner air can be achieved for the basin. There are a number of obvious steps. Some already proposed by study groups at Cal Tech and at the University of California at Riverside.

These steps include:

— Immediate start on a rapid and mass transit system so that auto use can be reduced;

— Prohibition of construction of more pollution sources;

— Mandatory inspection of all autos, with required tuneups as is the law in many states;

— Restrictions on traffic flow on high smog days;

— A ban on construction which would produce more traffic flow in high smog areas.

At present the alternatives are all or nothing and neither alternative is acceptable. No one who has the responsibility has wanted to take it and develop the necessary compromise.

Now it is up to the court.

Reflections upon religion for the reader to ponder

For Christmas Day, I've culled a collection of sayings we would do well to reflect on. These epigrams and aphorisms tell us more about the spirit of Christmas than most of the sermons and sentimental catchwords that clutter up the day.

"RELIGION is world loyalty."

— Alfred North Whitehead.

"MOST MEN'S anger about religion is as if two men should quarrel for a lady they neither of them care for."

— Lord Halifax.

"WHAT CANNOT BE followed out in day-to-day practice cannot be called religion."

— Gandhi.

"ALL THE different religions are only so many religious dialects."

— Lichtenberg.

"WE ARE FOR religion against the religious."

— Victor Hugo.

"THERE IS ONLY one religion, though there are a hundred versions of it."

— Bernard Shaw.

"IRRELIGIOUS people are more religious than they know themselves, and religious people less so than they think."

— Franz Grillparzer.

"MEN NEVER DO evil so completely and cheerfully as when they do it from religious conviction."

— Pascal.

"THERE ARE many people who think that Sunday is a sponge to wipe out all the sins of the weeks."

— Henry Ward Beecher.

"NO TRULY great man, from Jesus Christ down, ever founded a sect."

— Thomas Carlyle.

"MEN WILL wrangle for religion; write for it; fight for it; die for it; anything but — live for it."

— C. C. Colton.

"EVERY STOIC was a Stoic; but in Christianity, where is the Christian?"

— Emerson.

"WE HAVE JUST enough religion to make us hate one another but not enough to make us love one another."

— Dean Swift.

"MOST PEOPLE believe that the Christian commandments are intentionally a little too severe — like setting a clock half an hour ahead to make sure of not being late in the morning."

— Kierkegaard.

"PEOPLE IN GENERAL are equally horrified at hearing the Christian religion doubted, and at seeing it practised."

— Samuel Butler.

"IT WERE BETTER to be of no church than to be bitter for any."

— William Penn.

"THE GREATEST service that could be rendered the Christian peoples would be to convert them to Christianity."

— Oscar Wilde.

"IF GOD LIVED on earth, people would break his windows."

— Yiddish proverb.

Today's Books

THE CONCISE OXFORD DICTIONARY OF OPERA. By Harold Rosenzweig and John Warrack. Oxford Univ. Press, $3.50 paperback.

The Oxford dictionaries and "Companions" (ranging from music and art to English and American literature) form as good a series of reference works as one could hope for. The new dictionary on opera gives us over 3,000 entries, under which we find singers, composers, synopses of the operas, conductors, librettists, first lines of many arias, details of first performances, and technical terms from coloratura to verismo. — N.

CHICANO LITERATURE: Text and Context. Edited by Antonio Castaneda Shular, Tomas Ybarra-Frausto and Joseph Sommers. Prentice-Hall, $7.95 cloth, $3.95 paperback.

The Chicano tradition is long, and its literature ranges over centuries. This priceless anthology (it's bilingual) contains writings not only by Aztecs and Spaniards (including a nun) in colonial Mexico, but corridos and folk tales of the Chicanos in this country, and works of poets, novelists, migratory workers, and penitentiary prisoners, among many other illustrations of the Chicano tradition. — N.

Fishy tidbits bait students

Maritime Editor

Some flounders are light-eyed. Some are left-eyed. Unlike people, there are fewer right-eyed flounders.

Shaped like a stepped-on wad of gum on Belmont Pier, the bottom-dwelling flounder has both its eyes on one side of its head so said won't get in them.

Ocean fish wear a slinky overcoat — stream and lake dwellers don't.

And seagulls use a unique "tele-thing" communications system to alert other birds that "somebody's poppin' for lunch."

These and many other tidbits of knowledge about the oceanic environment were gained last week by 98 students enrolled in a special four-day "crash" course in oceanography sponsored by the University of Southern California.

Following three days of classroom sessions, half of the Oceanographic Workshop I class went to sea aboard the 65-foot floating classroom, the FURY II, out of Balboa Bay. Students ranged in age from teenagers to senior citizens.

At the helm, skipper John Haas suddenly picked up the microphone and shouted, "There she blows!" Wheeling the craft around, Haas followed the surface slicks created by a migrating gray whale enroute to spawning waters at Seommon's Lagoon in Baja California.

LATER, anchored above the Huntington Beach Piers, the students were instructed to grab a live anchovy from the bait tank and hold it aloft at arm's length, allowing its tail to flip back and forth. The action signalled the single seagull in view that lunch was being served in the main dining room.

Within seconds a half-hundred gulls appeared, as if produced from a magician's top hat to join the feast.

Preservation of Pacific Coast Club supported

The Pacific Coast Club at 850 E. Ocean Blvd. has a "classical charm" that would be worthwhile preserving, Long Beach City Planning Commissioner Weckford Morgan believes.

He responded to a question about the building raised by a local resident.

He was joined in his appeal to save the old structure by Commissioner W. Robert Pierce who agreed that the building had a unique architectural style.

Morgan said he was not sure the club can be successfully developed and Pierce noted that the position of clubs throughout the nation is "not good now."

The club itself is distinct.

Planning Director Ernest Mayer Jr. said the city would offer "some flexibility" in helping a developer with the "right kind of proposal" to save the structure.

The gulls, zeroing in like jet fighters, would snatch the anchovies tossed into the air, while others more daring would dive downward to pluck the small fish from the fingers of the slightly amazed students.

Ron Linsky, director of the university's Sea Grant Program and the Marine Science Extension Program, later divided the students into teams to conduct experiments.

TESTS were made to determine if the ocean was salty, and if so, how salty. Fish caught in a small-mesh net were identified according to species (the net also yielded a piece of aluminum fuselage from a World War II plane). The students also tested ocean water for dissolved oxygen content, learned how to use ocean charts to navigate and performed other assignments.

Mike Moore of Seal Beach, a graduate student at Long Beach State University, explained that ocean fish are slimy and have scales to prevent the loss of the fish's slightly salty body fluids to the more salty waters of the sea.

Among those aboard were Nancy Halk, 3038 Silvery Ave., a student at Long Beach City College; Garry Brown, 31 Rivo Alto Canal, a sophomore at USC; and Denny Atkinson, 6802 Woodruff Ave., Lakewood, a teacher at Cahar High School, Cerritos.

Many of the students expressed high praise for the course, which will be followed by three more sessions, each good for two units of college credit.

LINSKY also has planned a weekend study session at Catalina Island, a four-day cruise and a seven-day cruise among the Channel Islands. While students in last week's class ranged in age from a 15-year-old to a gentleman in his 70s, the more extended classes will be limited to college-age men and women.

Information concerning future classes can be obtained from Linsky at the Marine Science Extension Program at the university in Los Angeles.

Shepard named presiding judge

Kuey P. Shepard has been elected presiding judge of the Municipal Court Compton Judicial District for 1973.

Judge Shepard, a native of Jefferson, Texas, is a graduate of Long Beach State College and the UCLA School of Law. He was admitted to the bar in 1961. He was appointed to the five-judge district by Gov. Reagan in 1971. He served as juvenile court referee of the Superior Court of Los Angeles County from 1965 to 1968 when he was appointed commissioner of the superior court.

He and his wife Elaine and their two children live in Harbor City.

Pupils to see whales

Children of fourth-grade age and older will have a unique chance to study the ocean and its largest inhabitants beginning Jan. 2 when the Cabrillo Beach Marine Museum begins offering whale-watching boat trips off Point Fermin.

Groups of up to 120 students, with teachers and some parents, will be able to sign up for the half-day cruises through John Olguin, director of the museum, or other staff members there.

The cruises, in the 85-foot sport-fishing boat Liberty, will take students into the San Pedro Channel where, every year from December through February, an estimated 10,000 gray whales pass south toward their breeding grounds off Baja California.

From March through May, the whales return through the channel to their summer feeding areas in the Bering Sea.

Olguin, also director of the American Cetacean Society, explained that before students take the boat excursions, a free lecture is delivered to them in their classrooms on whales, dolphins and other large sea life.

Whale-watching tours have in the past encountered dolphins, pilot whales or "black fish," porpoises, a variety of sea birds and occasionally seals or sea lions.

Between the classroom lecture and the cruise, said Olguin, "students will learn about the last remnants of the once-great herds of whales and will better understand related problems of marine life."

The cruises, he said, will be offered Monday through Friday from Jan. 2 to through April 1. During that time, he estimated, up to 10,000 students could be able to take the cruise.

Jointly sponsoring the new program are the museum, the Cetacean Society, the San Pedro Sport Fishing Pier and the Los Angeles City Recreation and Parks Department.

Olguin added that similar cruises around San Pedro Channel aboard the Liberty, skippered by Jim Rowdy, are offered to the general public through the San Pedro Fishing Pier.

Judges pick 14 of their own to '73 committee

Judges of the Los Angeles County Superior Court have elected 14 of their number to serve on the 1973 Executive Committee of the court.

According to Presiding Judge Charles T. Loring, the Executive Committee acts on behalf of all the judges of the court on policy matters and meets monthly.

The elected 1973 Presiding Judge Alfred J. McCourtney will serve as chairman and ex-officio member of the committee. Two more ex-officio members include Judge Robert

A. Wenke, who has also been elected 1973 assistant presiding judge, and Judge James G. Kolts, re-appointed supervising judge of the court's Criminal Division for 1973.

New radio rules for boats, ships

New federal regulations requiring certain ships and boats to carry bridge-to-bridge radio telephones go into effect Jan. 1, the Coast Guard reported.

Ships subject to the act will have to be equipped with at least one single channel receiver capable of receiving on 156.65 Megahertz, the Coast Guard said. Vessels with multi-channel capability will be required to have an additional receiver to guard the bridge-to-bridge frequency.

The Coast Guard said ships subject to the new rules include those power-driven vessels weighing more than 300 gross tons while navigating; those for hire weighing more than 100 gross tons and carrying at least one passenger while navigating; and every dredge and floating plant engaged in or near a channel or fairway in operations likely to restrict or affect navigation of other vessels.

The rules apply only when the vessel is operating in the navigable waters of the United States, the Coast Guard said.

Further information on the new requirements is available from the Coast Guard at 19 Pine Ave., Long Beach.

Auto burglarized

Harold Ehdlich, of 4025 Shaw St., told Long Beach police Sunday that while his car was parked in the 6900 block of Long Beach Boulevard, burglars pried a window and took clothing and camera equipment valued at $914.

Incompetent cheats Probers bag Medi-Cal cons

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

Last January, Medi-Cal hired new investigators and sent its strengthened team of 55 detectives out to check on honesty in the state-federal program of health care for the poor.

The investigators probably expected some people to be making mistakes and some to be running "con" games. They probably didn't expect to find amateur con artists who made mistakes too—yet they did.

Take the case of the industrious Beverly Hills psychiatrist who claimed he treated 144 destitute persons, spending an hour with each one, and asked Medi-Cal to pay the bill. Perhaps there are 144 impoverished people in Beverly Hills. But the psychiatrist also claimed to have crammed the 144 hours of treatment into 48 hours' time.

He was convicted of defrauding Medi-Cal.

A Sherman Oaks dentist got the same penalty for extracting three teeth from a woman, then charging Medi-Cal for 19.

Another conviction was handed out to a Northern California man who claimed he needed $3,000 in welfare and Medi-Cal services — while he was fishing in Alaska.

SOME OF THE inept cheating turned up by the investigators was on a grand scale.

The administrator and an accountant of a Whittier convalescent hospital catering to Medi-Cal patients billed the program for $3 million. The money all went to five companies for services needed by the hospital's poor Medi-Cal subscribers they claimed.

Investigators found that none of the five companies existed. The administrator and the accountant now are on a sort of Medi-Cal "retirement" program—in prison.

CREDIT FOR THE most imaginative attempt to bilk the program probably goes to a Sacramento County woman. Honestly enough, she reported her truck driver-husband as an absent father, and she received $4,000 in welfare cash grants plus $1,500 in Medi-Cal services.

On the dishonest side, she failed to mention that her husband was only absent three or four days a week while driving truck, earning $25,000 a year.

She—like an Alameda County man who rented his Medi-Cal card out at $10-per-use—was convicted of defrauding the medical program and ordered to repay all benefits.

Medi-Cal Director Dwight Gedulig said this week that while his investigators tripled the number of cases of fraud-checks this year, with a consequent rise in convictions, the detectives probably face another busy year.

Some of the inept cheaters may be back for another try, like another Northern California man convicted of defrauding Medi-Cal and welfare of $9,500. He repaid the money in court—and then asked if he could be reinstated in Medi-Cal programs.

Donations needed for needy summer camp

It is Christmas Day, but a handful of students and administrators at Fullerton State University already are laying plans for a fund-raising drive to benefit a summer camp for underprivileged children.

Camp Titan, a three-year-old creation of the university's Associated Students, has provided more than 400 Orange County children with a week's outdoor experience in the San Bernardino Mountains since its inception, said student leaders.

"We hope to take 110 children with us this summer," said Camp Titan Director Roy Gonzales, "but to finance the one-week camp we will have to raise $4,900 in community donations.

TV, stereo stolen

Burglars forced a rear door at the home of Jean Wells, 816 Ohio Ave., and took a television set and stereo valued at $379, Long Beach police said Sunday.

"We've relied heavily on community support in the past," he added, "but this year we will need it more than ever. Costs of the camp rental, food and support staff are always going up, so this year's camp will be the most expensive to date."

Gonzales said costs of the camp for next summer are expected to reach $4,500. The university's Associated Students offered the first contribution to the 1973 camp fund, donating $200.

Counseling the young campers will be 20 Fullerton State students, serving as volunteers in supervisory areas, said Gonzales.

The camp director said youngsters are selected for the camp through referrals from North Orange County elementary schools, churches, community groups and welfare agencies.

Donations to the camp fund may be mailed to the Associated Students at Fullerton State University, 92634, Gonzales said.

Alley-for alley trade planned to allow for public parking lot

The city attorney's office has been asked by Long Beach councilmen to prepare a resolution of intention to vacate the east-west alley between Liberty Court and Atlantic Avenue in the block north of Ocean Boulevard.

The vacation was requested by Fidelity Federal Plaza, owner of the property between Ocean Boulevard and the alley. Officials of the firm propose to dedicate an adjacent existing private alley to public use in place of the one to be closed.

City Manager John R. Mansell said the two alleys exist side-by-side, separated only by pipe posts supporting a chain. Fidelity Federal has demolished an apartment building immediately north of the alley, and proposes the exchange of alleys so it can include the vacated alley within a proposed public parking lot.

Mansell said the Planning Commission heard the application Dec. 7 and recommended the vacation.

Gives Prompt, Temporary Relief from Such Burning Itch and Pain in Many Cases.

The burning itch and pain caused by infection and inflammation in hemorrhoidal tissues can cause much suffering. But there is an exclusive formulation that in many cases gives prompt relief for hours from this itch and pain so that the sufferer is more comfortable again. It also actually helps shrink swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by inflammation and infection.

Tests by doctors on hundreds of patients in New York City, Washington, D.C. and at a Midwest Medical Center reported similar successful results in many cases. This is the same medication you can buy at any drug counter under the name Preparation H.

Conflicts that mar Yule can be handled

By JOHN SHEEHAN
Staff Writer

The Christmas season is marked by greater emotional stress and more acts of violence than any other time of the year, according to California's director of health.

While this strange paradox is well known to mental health professionals, police and others who deal with the public in crisis situations, said Dr. J. M. Stubblebine, it's only momentary and can be dealt with if the victim is willing to ask for help.

Commenting on this "Christmas neuroses," Stubblebine explained that "the Christmas season seems to result in intensification of conflicts, in a reawakening of sibling rivalries and competition for parental favor.

"It is a time when emotions are loosed and memories come flooding back, a time of happiness for many, but a time of deep sorrow for others."

For those who find themselves in emotional distress this holiday season, the doctor offered some words of hope.

"These feelings and problems are not uncommon. Everyone has them to some extent."

"If your problems seem too great to bear, remember there are literally thousands of people near at hand to offer you comfort and support through the rough times.

"The one thing a sad should not do at this time is to surrender to despondency," he emphasized.

He said one of the greatest tragedies "of our times is the number of people desperately needing support and reassurance, but afraid to ask."

Others are standing by willing to give of themselves, he noted, but they are hesitant to offer.

He advised that if neither friends nor family are nearby, help can be sought from the clergy, regardless of denomination.

"We often forget that these men and women are specially trained to help others through life's crises. It is their mission and goal. You don't have to be a member of any particular congregation to ask for and receive comfort and solace."

Next, he suggested, contact a local mental health facility. Services are available in all California communities with experienced professionals to determine and deliver whatever assistance is required.

"This does not mean," Stubblebine said, "that you will be hospitalized, nor is there any stigma attached to requesting and receiving help. Except in cases of extreme agitation or distress, the assistance is available without hospitalization of any kind."

"The important thing to remember," he concluded, "is that you are not alone. There is help from many sources and it is available for the asking."

Red Cross slates free instruction

Free classes in first aid, advanced first aid and water safety instruction will be offered to Long Beach area residents by the Red Cross during the months of January and February.

Beginning Jan. 8, a course in standard first aid will be offered at the Bloomfield School, 12120 E. Carson St., Hawaiian Gardens. The class will meet on Mondays from 7-10 p.m. at the ABC Adult School Room.

A second course in elementary first aid will begin Jan. 10 in the Cerritos Room of the North Community YMCA, 3759 Orange Ave. The class will meet from 7-10 p.m. Wednesdays.

Beginning Jan. 13, the first aid course will be offered Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. at the Long Beach Red Cross center, 319 W. Broadway.

The advanced first aid course will begin Feb. 7 at Will Rogers Junior High School, 865 Monrovia, with classes to be held Wednesdays from 7-10 p.m.

Beginning on Feb. 20, the water safety instructor's course will meet Tuesdays and Thursdays, 7-10 p.m. at Millikan High School, 280 Snowden Ave.

Registration for all of the classes, which are open to the general public, will be held during the first session of each class.

In addition to the aid and water safety courses, the Red Cross has slated a course in case work for members of the armed forces, their families and veterans.

Persons interested in doing volunteer social work may enroll in the class, which will be held, beginning Jan. 9, at the Red Cross Service Center, 1130 S. Vermont Ave., Los Angeles.

The class will meet on Tuesdays and Wednesdays from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., and, according to Barbara Hart, director of services to military families, "transportation will be arranged for Long Beach area residents. If enough persons from the area are interested in the class."

A four-week period of on-the-job training will follow completion of the course, with the case aids assigned to help clients fill out forms to obtain government benefits, forward emergency communications and provide reports to the military regarding emergency leaves and transfers.

A black man, a Jew, an Italian True Hollywood Christmas story

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — This is a true Hollywood Christmas story about a black man, a Jew and an Italian singer which would be too sentimental for movies or television.

The black man is Godfrey Cambridge. The Jew is attorney Martin Perlberger. The Italian singer is Francis Albert Sinatra.

And it came to pass this way:

Last April, Cambridge, a delightfully funny and emotional man, had completed his movie, "Come Back Charleston Blue," during which he had simultaneously worked on soliciting funds to finance an antinarcotics film for school children. He was also working with HEW for rehabilitation of prisoners and appearing in night clubs.

THE burden of work ex-

FRANK SINATRA

hausted the comedian-actor. He became a compulsive eater and fell ill. He weighed 300 pounds.

Cambridge entered a hospital and was, in fact, near death.

Attorney Perlberger, a friend, visited Cambridge and told him he wasn't getting the proper treatment.

Sinatra's help was enlisted.

"If it weren't for the two of them I'd be dead today," Cambridge said from the Motion Picture Country Home. "I owe my life to them."

"Frank won't like me telling this, but he forced me to leave the hospital and come out here. He said no matter what the cost or where I had to go he would see I got the finest doctors in the world."

The big black man wept at the memory of the fierce determination last May of Perlberger and Sinatra to see that he survived.

Perlberger visited Cambridge frequently, offering advice and friendship. Sinatra's furious energy brought specialists to Godfrey's side.

"THEY discovered I needed certain medications and that I was suffering complete exhaustion," Cambridge said. "So I've been in the hospital ever since."

"Frank stopped by and brought me a bunch of legal-sized tablets, an electric pencil sharpener and dozens of pencils. He said, 'Now start writing, your life story.'"

"Well I have and it is going to be published. Martin Perlberger helped me in a hundred ways. Whenever I needed a friend, someone to talk with, I could always count on Martin."

Money was short for Cambridge. His two friends took care of that, too.

During the long months of recovery from his debilitating illness, which caused his body to retain vast amounts of water, Cambridge dieted and is now down to 175 pounds.

"I was guilt-ridden before," he explained. "I ate to compensate for the exhaustion. I wanted to give my time to help black, Chicano and other causes."

"The best diet pill is fear. Suddenly you can't function properly and your health breaks down."

Then I listened to the advice of Martin and Frank. And now on Christmas I know I'll survive. I'll be leaving the country home on New Year's."

Christmas began last spring for Godfrey Cambridge. It became reality today. The black man, the Jew and the Italian singer put it together.

Switch in mothers

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Anne Lockhart, 14-year-old daughter of actress June Lockhart, will play Joan Crawford's daughter in "Dear Joan: We're Going to Scare You to Death!"

Jackie described as dependent on daughter; murders recalled

NEW YORK — Jacqueline Onassis is described in the January issue of McCall's as enjoying such emotional rapport with her 15-year-old daughter Caroline that she has become dependent upon her.

The Kennedy assassinations are said to be partly responsible for this inordinate closeness. The profile of the Kennedy children was written by Stephen Birmingham, a friend of the family. In it, Birmingham claims that Mrs. Onassis and her daughter are "like one soul." He says that the mother can be irked with John but never with Caroline. He attributes this, in part, to the impact the murder of her father had on Caroline.

He says that Caroline was "deeply affected, even traumatized by the murder of her father, her uncle Robert and the death of her infant brother Patrick. These tragedies and the affect of constant exposure and publicity despite her mother's efforts have helped make her serious and introspective. She adored her father, which may help account for the reserve she displays in her attitude toward her stepfather.

"It's not that she dislikes Onassis, just that their characters don't match."

The writer praises John, saying the boy gets along very well with Onassis. He adds that his relatives think the young Kennedy is a trifle bratty — cocky, arrogant, too full of his own importance for his own good.

John is popular with his schoolmates at Collegiate where he gets average to better-than-average grades, though he is not the serious student his sister is, and, says Birmingham, "there have been times when his shenanigans have been disruptive in the classroom."

Birmingham tells of the difficulties of raising the two most famous children in the world to be "normal kids." He refers to a kidnap threat last summer which stopped John from attending camp. A less serious but common problem is concern over the children's friends, often limited to the admittedly large Kennedy, McDonnell-Murray clans.

If, as Birmingham says, Jacqueline Onassis' determination that super-security would enable her children to lead normal lives has backfired making them instead "public curiosities," she is not about to change her mind or remove the security screen.

Races polarized George Jackson's death still hang over Quentin

By EARL CALDWELL
New York Times Service

TAMAL — Almost 16 months have passed, but still the impact of the killings that took place here on Aug. 21, 1971, hangs heavily over the complex of ugly aging buildings that make up San Quentin Prison.

"As long as it stands it will never be the same," Associate Warden James W. Parks says. "It will never get over the shock of that day."

What happened at San Quentin that Saturday afternoon is still a matter of dispute. But six persons were killed. Three were guards whose throats were cut and whose bodies were found in a cell.

TWO WHITE inmates were found with the guards. Their throats were also cut. Also killed was George Jackson, a black convict who was one of the most controversial prisoners ever to serve time in a California prison.

In the official version of what took place, Stephen Bingham, a young white lawyer from a prominent Eastern family, smuggled a gun into the prison during a visit and slipped it to Jackson.

It was said that the gun was to have been used in a planned escape attempt. But the guards discovered the weapon prematurely, leading to an impromptu escape effort, the officials said, and the six killings resulted.

There are those who doubt that account of what happened, but they agree with Warden Parks when he says that San Quentin will never be the same again.

The changes are many. Some of them are so noticeable that they are conspicuous even to outsiders. They see more guards. They see that the prisoners are more closely supervised, that they can no longer roam about on the grounds or congregate even in small numbers. They see that attorney-prisoner visits are monitored now and that while the guards carry no weapons, they are equipped with radio-operated warning devices.

BUT THERE have been other changes, so subtle that only those who live behind the walls are aware that they have taken place. They notice that the guards are more militant. They notice that black inmates are not as quick to raise a clenched-fist salute. And they also notice that the polarization of the races is almost complete.

Inside the prison, in the language that they use when one prisoner makes an attack on another, they call it a hit. That is what the warden's office worries about most now.

"When we have a hit, the first thing we try to find out now is not who did it but if the color of the man running was the same as the man who is down," Warden Parks says.

"If the man down is black and the man running is black, we're all right. But if the man down is black and the one running was white, then we know we're in for trouble. We know that we'll have a killing before the day is over. That's how it is now."

San Quentin is an old prison, the oldest of the 13 major correctional institutions in California. It was built in 1852.

Through the years San Quentin has gained a reputation as one of the nation's toughest prisons. Once it had behind its walls 6,000 convicts. And in its 120-year history, 194 executions took place in its gas chamber.

BUT THE Supreme Court has outlawed the death penalty and so death row is no more. Since Gov. Ronald Reagan announced plans to close down the old prison, the inmate population dropped a few months ago to fewer than 1,500, but the population climbed back to more than 1,700 earlier this month and it is still rising.

Two 400-inmate maximum-security facilities are planned, one in Northern California and the other in the southern part of the state. But planning has been interrupted by those who question that concept, slowing up the dispersal of San Quentin's inmates to other institutions. Thus the prison is growing again, but its growth is marked with what Warden Parks calls the "new type of prisoner," and that, too, is a cause of concern among those who run San Quentin.

Warden Parks makes it clear that he is talking mostly about an attitude.

"It used to be," he explained, "that when we got a man, he recognized that he had done something wrong and he accepted coming here as punishment."

"BUT IT'S not that way any more. Now we get what they call political prisoners. They say that it's society's fault that they are here. It doesn't make any difference whether they were caught robbing or stealing or assaulting someone or what. Nothing makes any difference."

"They say that they are political prisoners and they have this revolutionary ethic. Some of them would just as soon kill a guard if he turned his back on them."

Most of those who consider themselves political prisoners are the nonwhite inmates, Warden Parks said. Of the current prison population, he estimates that 37 per cent are black and 16 per cent Chicano.

Woman suspect in slaying gives up; two hunted

Claudia Mae Bowen, 24, sought by Anaheim police since a man was killed in a robbery Dec. 9, surrendered herself to Baldwin Park police and has been booked into the Orange County Jail on a murder count.

Still sought are Johnny Ray Williams, 33, and Robert Sidilo, 29, both of El Monte. They are listed as suspects in the same robbery-murder.

Frank Anthony Herman, 24, of 2225 W. Broadway, was slain during a fight after two men and a woman forced their way into his home and tried to rob him. Terry James Garcia, 25, was wounded in the fracas; he had been stabbed in the abdomen.

Miss Bowen told police only that she "just wanted to give up" because she was "tired of hiding."

Burglars get stereo

tycoon Folger dies

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — James Ahearn Folger III, who worked his way up from clerk to president of the coffee company founded by his grandfather, has died at 72.

The civic leader and business tycoon died Friday at Childrens hospital here after being admitted with a heart condition.

Folger's niece, Abigail Folger, was killed in the August, 1969 Manson slayings in Los Angeles.

Folger Coffee Co., founded in 1850, was sold to Procter & Gamble Co. about nine years ago. Folger remained as chairman of the board, retiring in 1966.

HE WAS also a board member at Wells Fargo Bank, Caterpillar Tractor Co. and the E. D. Bullard Co.

Educated at Yale University where he graduated Phi Beta Kappa in 1922, Folger went to work in his grandfather's company as a clerk, became a salesman, managed the advertising department and in 1936 was named president.

In 1927 he helped found the San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce and later helped organize the Bay Area Council.

Folger was vice president of the local War Production Board during World War II. He also served as an officer with the Bureau of Governmental Research and the National Association of Manufacturers.

He was born Oct. 5, 1903, in France while his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Folger II, were on a continental tour.

Survivors include his widow Jane Carrigan Folger; three daughters; a brother, Peter of Woodside, Calif., and a sister, Mrs. Joseph A. Donahoe of Menlo Park, Calif.

3 prisoners escape from Tehachapi

TEHACHAPI (UPI) — Three inmates at the California correctional institution at Tehachapi escaped early Sunday by climbing a fence and stealing a truck.

The men went over the fence about 12:30 a.m., a spokesman for the Kern County sheriff's office said. They apparently headed north toward Bakersfield, he said.

He identified the inmates as Pablo Hernandez, 24, San Joaquin County, serving time for rehabilitation purposes; Thomas Johnston, 27, Sacramento County, also for rehabilitation work; and Manuel Garcia, 36, Kern County, serving time for forgery and sale of narcotics.

Body found in lot with head wound

The badly decomposed body of a man was found Sunday in a vacant lot near the intersection of Victoria and Wilmington avenues in Carson. Preliminary autopsy findings indicate the victim was shot to death.

Firestone sheriff's deputies said the body, found by passersby, was tentatively identified as that of Michael G. Miller, 28, of 26019 Oak St., Lomita. Deputies said identification was made from personal effects found on the body.

Homicide investigators said early post-mortem examination results indicate the man died of a gunshot wound in the head. Detectives said the body may have been dumped in the vacant lot.

A family Christmas party in Compton ended tragically early Sunday when a 38-year-old man was shot fatally following an argument with his cousin, police reported.

Compton detective Terry Ebert identified the dead did not know where the victim lived. In addition, police said, they have been unable to learn who lives in the house at 416 Cedar St. where the slaying occurred.

But, Ebert said, the dozen persons attending the party were all related to one another.

A suspect in the slaying, 31-year-old James Robertson, whose address also was unknown, apparently was wrestling with Reed shortly before the shooting.

Police said there had been "a great deal of drinking" at the party, but were unable to learn the circumstances of the argument because "all of the witnesses have been extremely reluctant to tell us anything."

A 15-month-old child drowned Sunday in a backyard swimming pool in Monterey Park, authorities said.

The victim was Felix Sanchez Jr., who was being cared for by a relative while his parents were Christmas shopping.

Brother shot down

A Christmas Eve argument between two brothers in the Firestone area early Sunday resulted in the shooting of one brother and the arrest of the other on suspicion of murder, sheriff's deputies reported.

The dead man, as Louis Luke, 23, of 1255 E. 99th St. Booked on suspicion of murder was his brother, Roy 22 of the same address.

Investigators said an argument erupted in the home about 2:30 a.m.

'Skins give Allen a present

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Washington Redskins' "Over the Hill Gang" supported Billy Kilmer's flawless quarterbacking by choking off Green Bay's devastating running game to crush the Packers 16-3 Sunday and make coach George Allen's Christmas Eve present his first playoff victory. Kilmer, almost booed off the field earlier in the season and shaken up early in the game, fired a 32-yard touchdown pass to Roy Jefferson in the second period and that's all the defense needed to give the title-hungry Washington fans their first playoff win in 30 years. The Redskins now will be home Sunday in the National Football Conference title game against the Dallas Cowboys for a Super Bowl berth. A celebrity-studded Washington record crowd of 53,140 roared "Defense, Defense" as Allen's rebuilt defensive unit held the Packers to only one first down in the second period while protecting a 10-3 lead. Curt Knight, who also was booed early in the year for missing on his placekicks, then added two fourth-period field goals to put the game out of reach. It was a sweet victory for Allen, the controversial Washington coach who savors slogans like "Life is winning," and had lost his three previous playoff games as a head coach with the 1967 and 1969 Rams and last year's Redskins. It was a typical game for Kilmer as he passed just enough to keep the defense honest and handed off to Larry Brown, who carried 25 times for 101 yards. Brown left the game late in the second period with a strained knee, but came back to play the entire second half. The Redskins didn't even get a first down in the first period and trailed 3-0 with 5:41 left in the second quarter when Green Bay rookie Chester Marcol, whose 47-yard field goal attempt hit the cross bar earlier in the period, boot-ed a 17-yarder. Herb Mui-Key returned the ensuing kickoff to the Washington 40 and Kilmer then directed a 60-yard drive in six plays. His scoring pass to Jefferson was the only Washington TD but it was the only one the Redskins needed. Kilmer, who hit on seven of 14 passes for 100 yards, started the drive with a nine-yard pass to Jefferson. Charlie Harraway made his first two carries of the game and advanced the ball to the Packer 41. (Continued Page S-4, Col. 1)

LOEL SCHRADER Pondexter vs. Brown ---A 'super' standoff

The faithful gathered at Cal Poly Pomona last Thursday night to witness a prep basketball spectacle that may have had no equal in recent years. Facing each other in the semifinals of the San Dimas Tournament of Champions were two super college prospects, 6-8, 235-pound Clifton Pondexter of San Joaquin Memorial High in Fresno and 6-10, 215-pound Lewis Brown of Verbum Dei.

Pondexter and Brown didn't disappoint their followers, which included Jerry Tarkanian of Long Beach State and his assistants, Tony Morocco and Dwight Jones, and assistants Gary Cunningham and Frank Arnold of UCLA. The Fresno flash scored 28 points and had eight rebounds. He is tremendously strong, deceptively quick and a leaper of almost unbelievable proportions. The Verbum Dei center also is strong, handles the basketball as well as many guards and has a soft shooting touch that many of the big men in the professional game would like to have. Brown scored 19 points and had 13 rebounds, six in the third quarter when his team pulled away to a comfortable lead. The question being asked by those who weren't there was: "Who won the individual battle?" Well, both of the youngsters won. They won admirers among the purists, those who have the ability to look ahead two or three years and perceive what Pondexter and Brown could do for a college basketball team. "They would fit perfectly together," said Tarkanian, shaking his head after having watched two super prospects in one evening. "If you had both of them, you would be 89 per cent along the way to a national championship."

No argument, coach. CUFF STUFF: UCLA is giving Pondexter a big rush. The Bruins are badly in need of another big man to team with 7-1 Bill Walton, 7-0 Ralph Drellinger, 6-8 Dave Meyers and the prep star they are saying they have the inside track on, 6-11 Richard Washington of Benson Tech in Portland. . . UCLA also is sending a telegram after each of his games to 6-8 Ulce Payne of Ringold High in Donora, Pa. . . Win Hansen of the Long Beach Arena deserves bouquets for the way he has turned the building into a great place in which to hold basketball games. The playing floor has been moved toward the East end by several yards, floor seats surround the court and extend upward to permanent balcony seating, and a huge curtain has been added at the West end as background for shooting. All of this has produced a warm, friendly atmosphere and should be a tremendous boost to Long Beach State basketball. . . Lewis Brown of Verbum Dei and Jimmy Spillane of Palos Verdes High were spectators for the 48ers' 104-62 victory over Long Island University in the International City Classic. . . Coach George McQuarn of Verbum Dei reports that his 6-8 sophomore, David Greenwald, already has returned to practice after undergoing knee surgery. "I think he'll be ready to play right after the first of the year," says McQuarn. Bad news for Verbum Dei opponents. The Eagles looked great during the summer when Greenwood and Brown were dominating the boards. . . McQuarn is greatly impressed with a 5-11 guard, Ivory Tackward, who may not be a major college prospect but is a defensive demon. "He just destroys himself on defense," smiles the Verbum Dei coach. . . Jim Padgett, who was fired as basketball coach at California last spring, has rebounded quickly. His Nevada Reno team is 5-2 and drew 6,000 fans for a game last week. Padgett's 6-8 freshman son, Pete, is one of the Reno stars. . . Former Long Beach State basketball player Chuck Terry tells about his first experience against Dave DeBuschere of the New York Knickerbockers. "He faked right, then left, and ran right over the top of me," says Terry, now playing for the Milwaukee Bucks. Welcome to the NBA, Chuck.

Miami makes its 15-0

MIAMI 68 — "The best thing for us," said Miami's Larry Csonka, "was to get behind. It got very quiet and somebody said, 'If we're gonna get anything done, now's the time to do it.' It got done." The Dolphins, heavy favorites to beat Cleveland, had to come from one point back in the fourth quarter to down the Browns 20-14 Sunday in their National Football League playoff game. The victory carried Miami into the American Football Conference championship game next Sunday against the Steelers in Pittsburgh and kept their record perfect at 15-0. The Browns were brutal in shutting down the Dolphins' high-powered offense until about eight minutes remained in the game. Then Earl Morrall's passing and Mercury Morris' running started things for Miami and Jim Kiick finished matters, plowing over from eight yards out behind the blocking of tackle Norm Evans and guard Bob Kuechenberg for the winning score with 4 minutes and 54 seconds to go. "I'm glad I had the opportunity to redeem myself," said Kiick, who had spent the season in Morris' shadow. The Browns weren't really finished, through, until linebacker Doug Swift made Miami's fifth interception off quarterback Mike Phipps — a drive-killing pickoff in the closing seconds deep in Miami territory. "It was a big thrill, a big financial thrill," said Swift. "They were rushing, and Phipps just threw it at my head." Miami got on the scoreboard quickly in the first period when reserve safety Charles Babb blocked a Don Cockcroft punt on the Cleveland 17, picked it up at the seven and scamp-ered untouched into the end zone. The Miami lead widened to 10-0 on Garo Yepremian's 40-yard field goal. After a scoreless second

Sam Cunningham: When he takes a dive, score goes up

SAM CUNNINGHAM
World class diver

By LOEL SCHRADER
Staff Writer

Sam Cunningham of USC and Randy Gradishar of Ohio State have met before — on amiable terms.

Their next encounter in the Rose Bowl might not be so friendly.

Gradishar and the Buckeyes gained national acclaim and a trip to Pasadena with three stirring defensive stands against Michigan in a 14-11 win for Ohio State.

But no one has been able to stop Cunningham, 218-pound fullback from Santa Barbara, on short-yardage situations in which the USC senior dives for first downs and touchdowns like a cannon ball.

"He's remarkable," says USC coach John McKay of Cunningham. "You watch him some time — I'll bet he flies five yards through the air when he gets a good takeoff."

Cunningham points out that the dive for short yardage doesn't work well for him when he's stationed at the fullback or "up" back in USC's I-formation.

"You need that extra two or three yards to build up speed and gather yourself for the dive," the all-America senior says. "I think I've only been stopped once in the last two years when the coach has put me in at the tailback position."

The Trojans will not try to disguise what they are going to do when they face Gradishar, an all-America linebacker whom Cunningham met two weeks ago at a banquet in Miami, Fla.

"Everybody knows we are going to let Sam dive, but they don't know exactly which spot he'll go to," notes McKay.

Cunningham admits that his dives carry physical risks.

"So far, I've been lucky enough not to get hurt, but it can get rugged," says Cunningham. "I usually land on my arms. It's bad if you land on your shoulders."

Cunningham grins. "There are times when I don't need to dive. Usually, I'm following a block by Manfred Moore. Sometimes I'm in the air and I say, 'Wow there's a hole.' But, by then it's too late."

The Trojan fullback notes one difference in the defenses against his dive.

"It used to be that I'd come down into the arms of the guys on the other team," he says. "But lately, they've just been letting me hit the ground. I liked it better the other way."

Cunningham, performing as a tailback most of the time, led the Trojans in rushing in 1971 before sustaining a knee injury that required surgery. He has spent this past season at fullback, except for the occasions when he has been positioned at tailback for the dives.

He has carried the ball only 91 times for 311 yards and nine touchdowns.

"Sure, I'd like to carry the ball more," he admits. "But the fullback in the USC offense is really a third guard. The fullback's main job is to block for the tailback."

"As long as we're winning, I'm happy. That's what is different about this Trojan team. The players aren't selfish. They want to play for the total team effort instead of personal glory."

"In other years, most seniors became conscious of possible pro careers. Not this one. It's in our minds, but it is not consuming us."

Cunningham disputes contentions that the Trojans have become cocky after building an 11-0 record and achieving a national championship, United Press International style.

"This is a very confident team," he says. "In order to win, you have to be confident. Take the game at Oregon when it was 0-0 at half and we were fumbling all over the place."

"The past teams I played on would have collapsed. This one just kept plugging along and things started going our way."

Cunningham turns deeply serious. "We'll be ready for the Rose Bowl. Everybody on the team wants to prove we are the national champions. If we lose, it won't happen because we are cocky or aren't ready."

The Trojans aren't going to take a dive, except for Sam Cunningham.

SANTA CLAUS: A 256-POUND BUCKEYE!!

PASADENA (Special) — Chuck Bonlea, a 256-pound senior offensive guard for the Ohio State Buckeyes, came to Southern California for the express purpose of facing USC in the Rose Bowl on New Year's day.

But he played a different role Sunday night — that of Santa Claus — during a special Christmas eve party for the Buckeye team at the Huntington-Sheraton Hotel.

Early in the day Ohio State coach Woody Hayes sent his team through a full morning practice session. Over at USC, the Trojans enjoyed their second consecutive day of grace. Both teams will celebrate Christmas today before returning to full drills on Tuesday.

Irish 'win' praise

UCLA victim No. 51

Associated Press

Notre Dame's basketball team was praised by UCLA. It also — ho, hum — was beaten.

"Notre Dame threw up a good zone," said UCLA coach John Wooden after his top-ranked Bruins patiently shot over it for an easy 82-56 victory Saturday night that extended their winning streak to 51 games.

Notre Dame, the last team to beat UCLA — Jan. 23, 1971 — never threatened this time as UCLA ran its season's record to 6-0 going into a first-round game against Drake in the Sugar Bowl Classic at New Orleans Friday night.

Drake, unranked in The Associated Press poll, trounced North Dakota State 106-70 Saturday night to boost its record to 5-1.

IN OTHER games involving members of the Top Ten, third-ranked Marquette whipped Iowa 69-61; No. 4 North Carolina State topped Georgia 97-83; sixth-ranked Long Beach State routed Loyola 105-77 in the finals of the International City Classic and No. 7 Florida State trounced Northwestern 91-73.

Among the Second Ten, No. 11 Penn took Temple 59-44. No. 12 Vanderbilt downed Boston College 78-62; 16th-ranked Oral Roberts walloped Texas A&M 117-99; No. 17 Kansas State beat Arizona 85-69; No. 18 Providence overwhelmed DePaul 107-80 and 20th-ranked Santa Clara stopped the University of Pacific 84-68.

TWO unranked teams who scored solid victories were Oklahoma City and Kentucky. Oklahoma City edged Texas 79-77 on Marvin Rich's basket with 14 seconds left while Kentucky nipped Kansas 77-71.

Alabama won its fifth game in six tries by shading Dayton 77-76 in the final of the Dayton Classic and Southern Illinois won the Roadrunner Invitational with a 72-71 victory over New Mexico State when Joe Meriweather scored all seven of SIU's points in overtime.

Elsewhere, Harvard defeated Yale 79-72 and Syracuse drubbed Connecticut 104-73 in the Connecticut Classic doubleheader; Jacksonville topped Furman 86-66; Memphis State edged Arkansas 87-86; Louisville took Utah 84-67; Canisius clobbered Wake Forest 92-71; Tulsa got by Cincinnati 92-86 in overtime and Fordham whipped California 83-70 as sophomore Kevin Moriarty came off the bench and scored 20 points in the second half.

Sixth MVP for Ratleff

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

Ed Ratleff should consider going into the trophy business.

Long Beach State's 6-foot-6 all-America senior wouldn't have any trouble with an immediate inventory. Ratleff collected his sixth piece of most valuable player hardware in three years as a 49er Saturday night when he led his team to its fourth consecutive International City Classic title.

The greatest scorer in Long Beach history, Ratleff was MVP in the Classic as a sophomore, junior and senior. As a junior, he shared the Bayou Classic's MVP trophy with former high school teammate Dwight Lamar, the nation's leading scorer for Southwest Louisiana.

This season Ratleff has earned the International City Classic award as well as similar honors in the Daffodil and Nassau Classics.

He will be seeking trophy No. 4 for December this week when the 49ers compete in perhaps the best holiday tournament in the nation — the All-College in Oklahoma City.

The 49ers, who will spend 16 of December's final 25 days out of town, leave Tuesday for Oklahoma and open the tourney Wednesday night against a surprisingly tough team from Mississippi.

"A lot of people think Mississippi is one of the easier games on our schedule," reports 49er coach Jerry Tarkanian, "because Mississippi usually doesn't have much of a team. But they do have a good team this year — they'll be one of the toughest teams we play all season."

"They have a good seven-footer and a former Indiana prep player of the year. They have lost only once — at Vanderbilt by two points — which is an indication they have a very fine team."

LONG BEACH STATE all-America Ed Ratleff scored 20 points, collected seven rebounds and eight assists Saturday night in leading his team to 105-77 win over Loyola in finals of fourth International City Classic.

Are Monsoons due for 'long' season if Artesia rebounds?

By GARY ELLIS
Staff Writer

Jack Long of Mayfair high summed up the Suburban League basketball race when he said, "The league will be much stronger. I think we'll be representative but it's going to be tough for us to duplicate last year's performance."

The Monsoons were unbeaten in league play last season. This year Artesia should make things tough for Mayfair's domination.

"It should be a real close league, at least more so than last year," said Long.

The Monsoon junior varsity and sophomore teams were undefeated last year and tournaments and pre-league games should mature several players for this year. But Long is counting on two senior forwards, Randy Frager and Dave Morehouse when the league begins. Both are 6-3 and will receive assistance from the backcourt play of Mark Pederson, whom Long calls "an unselfish player."

Gordon Ackerman's Artesia Pioneers placed second to Mayfair last season and he believes, "we have a good ballclub. We don't have any big kids (referring to super center Al Fruhwirth, now at Cerritos College), but we'll be quick. I imagine ourselves and Mayfair will be fighting for the title," said Ackerman. "But you never can tell what will happen."

The Pioneers will stress passing and Steve Wilson should be the key. Tim Fruhwirth (younger brother of Al), Roy Tuttle, Rod Connole and Danny Almanza should carry the attack.

Gahr High was only 7-18 last year and 2-8 in league but Tom Pryor is counting on the Gladiators to be vastly improved. The key to the Gahr team is center Mike McCullom, a 6-7 center and one of the biggest men in the league.

"McCullom looks like he'll do a pretty good job for us," said Pryor. Ron Van Slooth, a 6-3, 210-pound forward and all-league football player, will lend strength under the boards and Sonny Tiger, a transfer from Poly, will help out on the front line. "Tiger's a good shooter and ball handler," said Pryor. "It looks like Mayfair and Artesia are the two toughest teams in the league but we'll look better than in the past," promised Pryor.

Neff High has the only new coach in the league, Joe Russell, a former Jerry Tarkanian player, who is hoping that the Trojan football players make a quick adjustment to basketball. Neff was only 2-18 last season.

"I really feel I have the nucleus of a good ball club from the people we have here," said Russell. Neff is counting on David Lizardi and Bruce Luber, two seniors, 6-9 junior Paul Haugen and a pair of sophomores Phil Flenge and Richard Lazard.

Bob Lougee's Glenn team has shown progress last year after a winless 1970-71 season. Last year the Eagles were 3-7 and 5-18 overall. "We have four juniors and a senior that will be starting. We're pretty small but pretty quick."

Mike Van Holland, a 6-5 center, should be the key to the team. "How we do depends on Van Holland," said Lougee. Forward Jim Rouff has been doing a real good job on the backboards for us."

Cerritos High entered the CIF I-A playoffs last year as a free lance team but Ian Desborough is not predicting another playoff spot for this year's team.

"We only have juniors but I feel the kids are very capable. We do lack a senior to build the club around, though," he said.

Mike Shortridge was the team's MVP last season and the 6-4 center should figure to have another fine season. Phil Lubina and Randy Howell are 6-3 forwards. "We didn't lose any kids but we're not that big," admitted Desborough.

"Mayfair has to be considered the best team in the league although Gahr has its best squad they have ever had. Artesia is super. Those three teams are probably the class of the league," summed up Desborough.

SURRENDER? NOT FRANCO AND HIS ARMY
Steelers' running back Franco Harris is mobbed by his army of fans after scoring last-second touchdown to beat Oakland in playoffs Saturday. Who said Pittsburgh would surrender to favored Raiders?
—UPI Photo

'It was a miracle,' claims Bradshaw

PITTSBURGH — Franco Harris recalls groaning "Oh, no" as the ball was knocked away from teammate Frenchy Fuqua and popped into the air.

However, more than 50,000 Pittsburgh Steeler fans shrieked "Oh, yes!" when Harris grabbed the ball off his shoetops and raced 42 yards for a touchdown.

The score came with five seconds left in Pittsburgh's 13-7 playoff win over Oakland Saturday and boosted the Steelers into Sunday's American Football Conference title game against Miami.

"God was with us," Fuqua said afterward in the jubilant Steeler locker room.

"Unbelievable. Somebody has liked us well enough all season to let things go our way," coach Chuck Noll added with a broad grin.

"A miracle sent from heaven" echoed quarterback Terry Bradshaw.

The desperation play began when Bradshaw dropped back to pass on fourth-and-10 from the Steelers 40-yard line with the last seconds ticking away.

"I started to scramble then I saw Frenchy," Bradshaw recalled. "I tried to drill it to him but I didn't see what happened after that."

What happened was that Raider defensive back Jack Tatum slammed the ball away from Fuqua and into the air. It ricocheted about 10 yards backward and into the hands of Harris who made the catch and raced into the end zone.

As Harris ran down the sideline members of the "Franco's Italian Army" fan club stormed out of the stands and onto the field.

"I looked up and there was Franco taking that Italian Army down the sideline," Bradshaw said. "The first thing I did was look for flags. I didn't see any and then I just ran down the field happy and yelling like everybody else."

Neilson, Olsen bag Helms award

Sandra Neilson and Metlin Olsen, opposites in the world of sports, were selected Sunday as the 1979 Southern California Co-Athletes of the Year by the United Savings Helms Athletic Foundation.

The 17-year-old Miss Neilson, from El Monte, won the 100-meter freestyle in the Olympic Games and then anchored two relay teams to victory to win three gold medals.

Her 100-meter time set an Olympic Games record at 58.59 seconds, and both relay times were world records.

Physically towering over the lassie, Olsen has completed his 11th year in pro football and probably his best. At 6-foot-5 and 270 pounds, the Logan Utah, native has repeatedly been a member of the Pro-Bowl team and is a member of the all-time Rams NFL team.

Jinx stalks 49ers

'Win just slipped away,' says Brodie

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — "There was no way to lose it but somehow it slipped away."

John Brodie, veteran quarterback of the San Francisco 49ers, turned philosopher over the weekend to sum up one of the most disappointing games of his career — a last-minute 30-28 playoff loss to the Dallas Cowboys before a dejected sellout crowd of 61,214 Saturday at Candlestick Park.

San Francisco had been leading 28-16 when substitute quarterback Roger Staubach rallied the Cowboys with two touchdowns in the final two minutes.

The Staubach heroics ended the 49er season in the same manner in which the 1970 and 1971 seasons ended — losing to Dallas.

"We moved the ball well enough to win," said 49er coach Dick Nolan. "But a couple of key situations did us in. There was the kick-off fumble and that holding penalty."

HE REFERRED to Preston Riley falling on Dallas' inside kick with San Francisco leading 28-21 with 1:30 remaining and then coughing it up. Mel Renfro of the Cowboys recovered the fumble at mid-field and Dallas moved for the winning score, a 10-yard pass from Staubach to Ron Sellers, with 52 seconds left.

Then, with the 49ers driving for a possible field goal which would have won it, offensive tackle Cas Banaszek was detected holding to nullify a 23-yard pass from Brodie to Riley at the Dallas 32.

"It was just a situation that happened," mumbled Nolan in referring to the holding penalty.

Brodie played well enough to win. He hit 12 of 22 passes for 150 yards and directed the 49ers on three touchdown drives that culminated with Larry Schriber scoring each time from the one. Two fumble recoveries and a pass interception set up the three TDs.

Vic Washington scored the other 49ers' touchdown by taking the opening kick-off and going 97 yards behind key blocks by Ed Beard and John Watson.

"I GIVE them (the Cowboys) credit," said Brodie, "but I can't believe it. We had it. There was no way to lose it but somehow it slipped away."

The San Francisco defense played about as well as it had in any one game this season except for the last-minute breakdown. The defense forced five turnovers and sacked Staubach four times, but it wasn't enough.

NEW YORK — In the raucous streets, Frenchy's Foreign Legion honked at Bradshaw's Brigade, Gerela's Gorrillas hailed Ham's Hussars and foot soldiers in Franco's Italian army waved red, white and green flags.

Back in the bowels of Three Rivers Stadium, Frenchy Fuqua's muttonchop whiskers twitched rapturously. Art Rooney's cigar was lit. The first post-season football game in Pittsburgh history was over, and not since Braddock was ambushed at Fort Duquesne had the town known a day like this.

Forty years ago little Arthur Rooney, 135-pound playing coach of The Alajuste Radius, The Hope Harveys and The James P. Rooneys, paid $2,500 for a franchise in the National Football League. Never in all the cold autumns since then had the Steelers got the whiff of a championship of any kind, and now here they were: half-champions of the American Conference with a date to play again Sunday for the conference title and a chance to earn $25,000 a man in Super Bowl VII.

Of all the 478 games they had played before last Saturday, none was more gaudily theatrical than the 13-7 conquest of the Oakland Raiders that brought them to this plateau.

FIVE SECONDS THIS SIDE of defeat, the victory was accomplished on a busted play in which the Oakland defense performed flawlessly.

With fourth down 10 yards to go, on the Pittsburgh 40-yard line, 22 seconds remaining on the clock, Oakland on top by 7-0, and a horde of predators clawing for Terry Bradshaw's eyeballs, the Steelers' scrambling quarterback threw a pass that Oakland's accomplished safety man, Jack Tatum, deflected out of Frenchy Fuqua's reach.

The play was designed to gain about 18-yards — enough to get the ball into field goal range for Roy Gerela — and Fuqua became the target only because the defense wouldn't let the primary receiver, Barry Pearson, get downfield.

Blocked by Tatum around the Raider's 35-yard line, the ball flew back about seven yards to Franco Harris, the rookie runner fielded it at his knees and crossed the goal line 42 yards away with the clock showing five seconds to play.

"We'll take those little crumbs," said Chuck Noll the Pittsburgh coach. He tone was devout.

THE STEELERS REACHED THEIR dressing room in a daze. Fuqua, who had been knocked down in a collision with Tatum, had thought the pass was incomplete.

"When I got up I saw Franco at about the 5-yard line."

"I didn't see the ball bounce away," Bradshaw said.

"I just saw Franco take off. I thought, 'man! I musta hit him right on the numbers!' I've played football since the second grade and nothing like that ever happened. It'll never happen again. To think it happened here in Pittsburgh in a playoff!"

"We're putting the play in tomorrow," Noll promised.

Before Fred Swearingen, the referee, ruled the touchdown official he checked with Art McNally, the NFL supervisor of officials, who had watched the televised replay in the press box and confirmed Swearingen's observation that a defensive player (Tatum) had indeed touched the ball and the pass had not gone illegally from Bradshaw to Fuqua to Harris.

Jim Kensil, the league's executive director hastily denied that the decision had been made in the press box for fear such a precedent would be cited forevermore by coaches and players demanding that officials consult the instant replay before rendering judgments. However, Noll, who had huddled on the field with all the officials and John Madden, the Raiders' protesting coach, already had reported that the referee had agreed "to check upstairs. I didn't know how."

HIGHLIGHTING THE MELODRAMA of the finish was the primeval stolidness of the defensive struggle that preceded it. For 58 minutes the teams played anediluvian football.

After a scoreless first half, witnesses were saying, "It took the Steelers 40 years to get here, and they're setting the game back 80." Somewhere in the gray nothingness overhead, Dr. Jock Sutherland must have been watching with a smile of benign approval. When that four Scot, that rock of conservatism coached the Steelers he considered the forward pass a crime against nature.

Harking back to the days of the Minnesota shift and the flying wedge, the Steelers smothered Oakland's attack so effectively that a 6-0 lead on two field goals by Gerela seemed safe until, with a minute and 13 seconds left, Ken Stabler slipped around end for a 30-yard touchdown run and George Blanda's conversion put Oakland in front, 7-6.

Now Noll remembered that on fourth-and-two on Oakland's 31 in the first half, he had ordered a line plunge that failed instead of a place-kick by Gerela. The three points he might have got but didn't would have meant a 9-7 lead now. "If I'd had a third leg I would have kicked myself," he confessed. With a kicker like Gerela around, that would have been another mistake.

Allen: 'We know what we have to do'

We'll be ready for Dallas-Kilmer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Quarterback Bill Kilmer of the Washington Redskins had just beaten the Green Bay Packers, but the Dallas Cowboys were on his mind.

"It's gonna be a helluva ballgame," said Kilmer after the Redskins defeated Green Bay 16-3 Sunday to win the opportunity to meet the world champion Dallas Cowboys next weekend for the National Conference title.

"We're ready for Dallas," said Kilmer. "We know the Cowboys, and they know us. I don't look for a lot of shocks. We've just got to out-bait them."

The Dallas-Washington clash Dec. 31 may be a brutally physical one because of the game two weeks ago, when the Cowboys defeated the Redskins 31-24 after which bitter words were exchanged between the teams over the so-called crack-back blocking against Washington linebacker Jack Pardee.

The Cowboys, of course, called it good offense, while the Redskins said it was illegal.

"We know them," said a happy coach George Allen Sunday.

"We played them twice this year. We know what we have to do. They know what we can do.

"We felt all along that we would have to play Dallas," said Allen, whose club downed the Cowboys 24-20 at midseason.

On Green Bay, Allen used a five-man defensive line that he said was necessary to stop the Packers rushing game. The Pack was held to only 78 yards on the ground.

"We used it in the first game against them a couple of times and it didn't do too well," Allen said, referring to the Redskins 21-16 victory Nov. 26. "We worked on it this week and we felt that it could help us in this game."

Allen said he thought the key to the victory was the kickoff return of rookie Herb Mul-Key in the second quarter that put the Redskins on their own 40-yard line after Green Bay had taken a 3-0 lead on a field goal.

"That gave us the impetus," Allen said with a slight smile.

Six plays after the return, Kilmer hit wide receiver Roy Jefferson for a 32-yard touchdown pass.

"It was a play action play," said Jefferson. "They were double-teaming on the weak side. I went back to the huddle and told Billy about it and he called the play. I just went inside and that was the touchdown."

Except for guard John Wilbur, who sat out the game with a kidney ailment, the Redskins seem to be in good shape as Kilmer, shaken up early in the game, and Brown were able to make it back.

Brown, who had missed the previous two games with injuries, said, "I'm about 90 per cent now. But you've got to play hurt, this is the playoffs."

Packer linebacker Fred Carr said, "Brown did a helluva job. He played in pain. We gave him some licks, but he got up every time."

It was the first Packer loss in a playoff game since 1960. The club had won nine in a row under Vince Lombardi before losing this one in Devine's first playoff game as a pro coach.

Redskins decision Packers

Brown carried for four yards and a first down but limped off the field.

After Haraway got five more to the Green Bay 32, Kilmer faked a handoff and the good play action enabled Jefferson to get a step on rookie cornerback Willie Buchanan. Kilmer led Jefferson perfectly for the 32-yard TD with 2:06 left in the half as the crowd, that included presidential advisor Henry Kissinger, exploded in appreciation.

The Skins' defense then pinned Green Bay back on its own 17 and Ron Wilby's punt was downed on the Packer 41. Four plays later, Knight kicked a 42-yarder for his first of three field goals with 33 seconds left before intermission. His two in the final period were from 35 and 46 yards.

The Redskins defense then just shut down the Green Bay offense in the second half. Pat Fischer, the cornerback, and Chris Hanburger, the middle linebacker were outstanding as Green Bay rushed for only 78 yards.

John Brockington, who lost a total of three yards in five carries in the second half, gained only nine yards in 13 carries for the game and MacArthur Lane had only 56 yards in 14 carries.

Kilmer, who started the first three Washington games, lost his job to Sonny Jurgensen and regained it when Jurgensen was injured in the seventh game, was shaken up in the first period when Aiden Roche slammed into him as he tossed a third down incomplete pass.

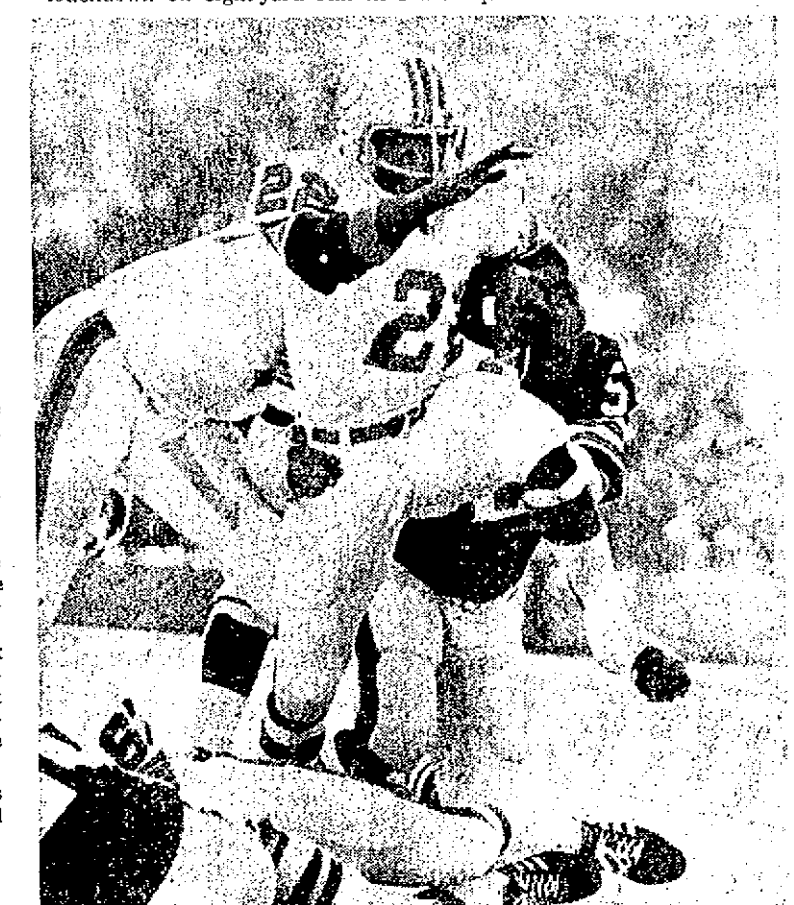

Reserve quarterback Sam Wyche started warming up on the sidelines but Kilmer recovered and returned to action for the next series.

Knight's three field goals tied an NFC playoff record set Saturday by Dallas' Tony Fritsch.

TALENTED TRADEOFFS

JIM KICK, above, and Mercury Morris, below, have alternated at running back this season for Miami Dolphins, sometimes to frustration of both. Both, however, had their moments Sunday in Dolphins' playoff win over Cleveland, especially Kiick, who scored winning touchdown on eight-yard run in fourth quarter.

'Blocked punt disastrous' -- Skorich

MIAMI (AP) — A blocked punt, a play which Cleveland Browns coach Nick Skorich said shouldn't have happened, helped give the Miami Dolphins their 20-14 victory Sunday in an American Football Conference playoff game.

"I think our blockers got confused," said Skorich. "They missed their blocking assignments and that was disastrous. It was an easy seven points."

Charles Babb blocked the Don Cockroft punt on the Cleveland's 17-yard line in the first quarter, picked it up at the seven and ran the ball in.

"It was like running a 100-yard dash," said Babb, a reserve safety who lines up on the line of scrimmage with nine other Dolphins. "The ball hit my elbow, then I fell on it. I was in a daze and didn't know what to do.

"Curtis Johnson picked me up and threw me into the end zone," said Babb, a rookie from Memphis State. "It's the first time I've scored since my junior year in college."

"You should not make that mistake in a playoff game," said Skorich. "We always insist when we line up for a punt that we count off-know who is blocking who. The caller (Jim Houston) hollered out 10 men."

"Lloyd Mumphord, Curtis Johnson and I were going in to pressure the kicker," said Babb. "I went in first, Lloyd said he was right behind me and could have got it, too. I didn't hit anybody going in."

The Browns rallied from their 10-0 halftime deficit to take a 14-13 lead in fourth quarter, but the Dolphins seized it up in the closing minutes with an 80-yard touchdown drive climaxed by an eight-yard burst up the middle by Jim Kiick.

"That was the one they had to have," said Browns' linebacker Dale Lindsey, calling it the mark of a great team. "When the chips were down, we just couldn't stop them."

Miami coach Don Shula said, "Everything was laid out in front of us with eight minutes to go. We had to score a touchdown and we did what we had to do.

This exemplifies the year."

The Browns were considered as much as a two-touchdown underdog against the unbeaten Dolphins. Five interceptions of passes thrown by quarterback Mike Phipps kept the Browns from pulling one of the great upsets of all time.

"I think it was a matter of a young quarterback throwing a little erratic at times," said Skorich of Phipps. "We knew he was making mistakes — big pressure game problems — but we knew he was capable of making the big play for us."

The man Cleveland traded away came back to haunt the Browns.

Saying afterward, "We had to win this one," slender wide receiver Paul Warfield who starred for Cleveland for six years, led the way in the Dolphins 80-yard drive in the closing minutes of the game.

Warfield caught a 35-year pass in the drive then drew a pass interference call when Browns' linebacker Bill Andrews knocked him down in the end zone.

Warfield came to Miami in 1970 in a trade that Cleveland owner Art Modell has had to live down ever since. In addition to his clutch effort in the final quarter, he provided the only fireworks that unbeaten Miami could generate with its touted running game, picking up 41 yards in two, end-around carries.

Dolphins hold off Browns

for 18 yards to the Miami 44.

Several plays later, Phipps was victimized by Miami's fourth interception but Dick Anderson, returning the ball, fumbled it right back to the Browns with Hooker recovering on the Miami 30.

After Ken Brown's three-yard run, Phipps found Hooker wide open on the two-yard line and the Cleveland receiver easily stepped into the left corner of the end zone, putting Cleveland ahead by a point with 8:11 to go.

Then came Miami's winning march.

A Morrall-to-Paul Warfield pass gained 15 yards to the Miami 35, and Mercury Morris ran twice for 10 more. Then Warfield snared Morrall's 35-yard toss behind Cleveland cornerback Ben Davis at the Browns 20.

One play later, Warfield was decked by linebacker Bill Andrews on the eight, resulting in an interference penalty against Cleveland. On the next play Kiick slammed over for the TD.

Morrall, passing conservatively, completed six of 13 passes for 88 yards, without an interception, while Phipps completed just nine of 23 for 131.

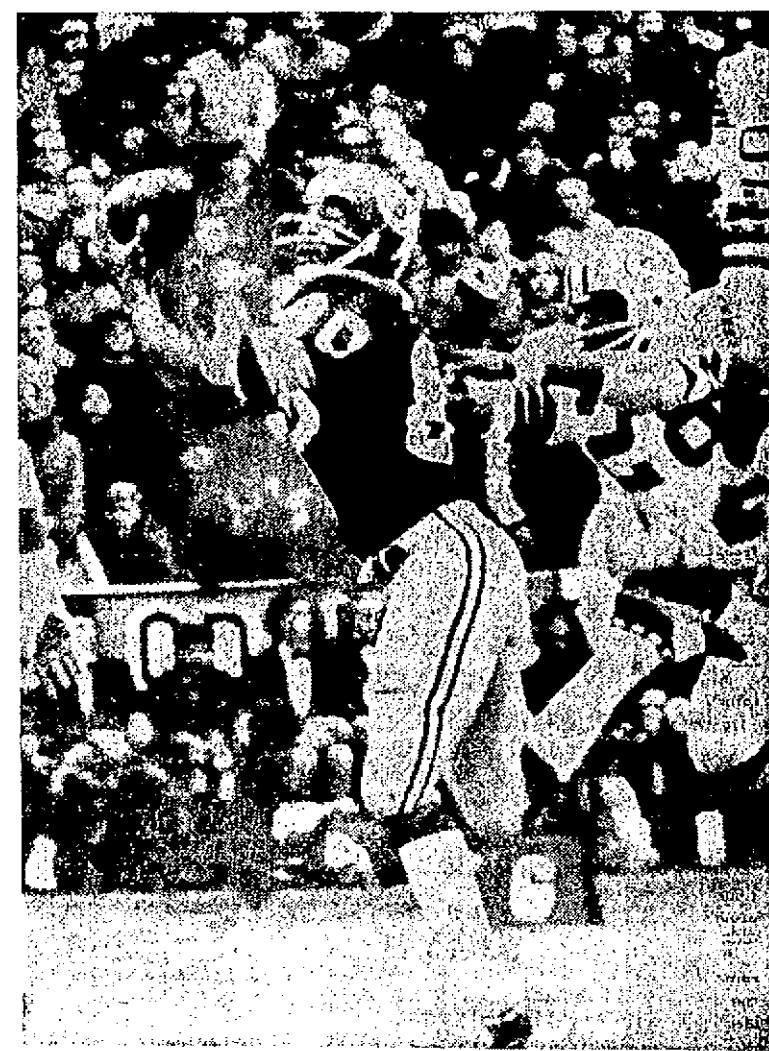

Scott ripped through the Miami defense for 94 yards while Leroy Kelly was held to just 11 yards on four rushes.

Morris led the Dolphin ground gainers with 72 yards while Kiick had 50, all but one of them in the second half.

Warfield, who gained 41 yards on a pair of end-around runs, added 50 yards on two receptions for the Dolphins.

Finally, a happy Xmas for Pardee

By MILTON RICHMAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The look in the boy's eyes was one of more than pure enchantment.

Sublime adoration would be much closer. Nobody in the world could possibly tell this freckled 14-year-old, sitting quietly in the Washington Redskins' quarters Sunday following their 16-3 playoff victory over the Green Bay Packers, that the sweaty, sparse-haired man cutting the tape off his hands in front of him was over the hill.

Nobody can ever tell any boy that about his father.

Especially on Christmas Eve.

YET THE fact remains that Jack Pardee, the 38-year-old Washington linebacker with 15 years experience in the NFL, is one of the members of what the Redskins affectionately call their "Over The Hill Gang."

Fourteen-year-old Steve Pardee sat no more than five feet away as newsmen congregated around his father and didn't say a thing. He didn't really have to. His eyes said it all for him.

"This is the first happy Christmas I can remember in a long time," his father was telling the reporters. "I remember us losing the playoff last year at this time against San Francisco."

"That one was on December 26th. We lost one on December 24th and another one on December 23rd when I was with the Rams. All of 'em were on the road. Then you'd come home, see the Christmas tree there and everybody'd be so sad and unhappy."

Jack Pardee peeled off some more of the tape.

"The game I really remember was in Milwaukee in 1967," he went on. "It was a week before that famous 'Ice Bowl' game, and Green Bay beat us (Rams) to get to Dallas. The day we played them was just as cold, only we didn't get the publicity."

SUNDAY'S contest here with the Packers was Pardee's fourth post-season ball game in the past six years and only the first one in which he came out a winner.

It was hard to say who was happier, Jack Pardee, or the eldest of his five children Steve, wearing a grey sweatshirt with "The Redskins" stenciled on it.

"I'm speechless," said slender, red-headed Steve Pardee, who plays defensive tackle for the Flint Hill Falcons prep school team in nearby Fairfax, Va., despite the fact he weighs only 135 pounds.

"I think we're going to go to the Super Bowl," the boy said, when one of the reporters went over and asked him what he thought of the Redskins' ball club.

"Larry Brown, Billy Kilmer and Roy Jefferson were absolutely great out there today, and I'm still so excited I can hardly speak."

CHRIS Hanburger and little Pat Fischer, who put a crimp in so many of the Packers' sweeps, were more spectacular, perhaps, than Jack Pardee Sunday but Pardee played his customary efficient game, meaning Green Bay got nowhere with him.

One of the writers asked Pardee whether this would be his last year.

"Oh, I dunno," said the 6-foot-2, 225-pound native of Exira, Iowa. "Right now the only thing I'm thinking about is our next ball game with Dallas."

Young Steve Pardee had grown silent again. He kept looking at his father all the time and sometime later one of the reporters who had been speaking with Jack Pardee went over and asked the boy what he thought of his dad.

Steve Pardee didn't have to think that one over.

"I love him very much," he said.

You could tell that merely by looking.

SPORTS CHATTER: An independent college basketball power in the South will be placed on probation when the NCAA Council meets in January. The school has been charged with recruiting violations. . . UCLA is an overwhelming favorite to win its seventh successive national collegiate basketball championship, but the pattern for teams with dreams of unseating the Bruins is beginning to emerge. Pittsburgh was the first to use it Friday night when UCLA scored an 89-73 victory over the Panthers. Pitt virtually double-teamed Brain center Bill Walton, and let Larry Hollyfield and Tommy Curtis shoot uncontested from 15 feet and out. Hollyfield is a streak player who could have a bad night and give UCLA opponents a chance to stay in the game. John Wooden spotted the strategy and substituted Pete Trgovich for Hollyfield early. Look for Trgovich to see more and more action as the season progresses. Curtis is just an average shooter, but is valuable to the Bruins, particularly when they are being pressured in the backcourt. It might be an interesting season, after all.

Sharks can enjoy Christmas after ending winless string

BOSTON (UPI) — The Sharks can enjoy Christmas Day at home with their families and friends today, now that a six-game winless streak is over.

The Sharks won their first World Hockey Assn. game in two weeks Sunday when they blasted 42 shots at New England goalie Al Smith and scored a 5-3 victory over the Eastern Division leaders in Boston.

Gary Veneruzzo and Mike Byers each scored twice for the Sharks as L.A. increased its Western Division record to 16-17-4, third to Winnipeg and Minnesota.

New England, 21-14-1, got three goals from Larry Pleau, who now has 23 for the season. Veneruzzo's two goals gave him 22.

The Sharks had lost three and tied three in their six games prior to the Sunday afternoon triumph over the Whalers. The Sharks then flew home from Boston game as a five-game road trip came to a close.

George Gardner had a relatively easy day in L.A.'s nets with 21 saves. Smith stopped 37 for the Whalers.

The Sharks' next match is against Minnesota at the Long Beach Arena on Thursday.

12 gp in Palos Verdes Handicap

S'Anita season opens on Tuesday

Grey Papa, holder of the American six-furlong record of 1:07 1/5, and six other speedsters who have run six-furlongs in "eight and change," were among a dozen horses entered for Tuesday's running of the Palos Verdes Handicap, and the classy field could threaten the Santa Anita track mark of 1:08 1/5 as well as the stakes record of 1:08 2/5.

Trainer Hector Palma and owner-trainer John Economou pulled the entry slips and the "pills" that determined post positions for the Palos Verdes, and Dominant Star drew the rail for the race which Tuesday will be having the richest running of its 21-year history. With 12 starters the gross purse will be $36,000 with the winner to receive $23,500. A 12-horse field would be the biggest in the Palos Verdes since 1961.

The race is the opening-day feature of what promises to be Santa Anita's most lucrative thoroughbred season in its 36-year history. Before the 75-day meeting ends on April 7, a total of 45 stakes races will have been run and more than $2,215,000 in prize money dispensed.

The Palos Verdes mark of 1:08 2/5 was set by Cyrano nine years ago, and that clocking stood as the track record until Page ran 1:08 1/5 in January, 1971. Reb's Policy and Flighting later equaled that standard.

Grey Papa, who drew the No. 4 post position, carried owner-trainer Ron Hoffman's colors to a 1:07 1/5 victory at Longacres to break the American mark held by Zip Pocket and Vale Of Tears.

Second fastest six-furlong horse among the Palos Verdes entrants is Dominant Star who took the Bing Crosby Handicap at Del Mar in 1:08, one-fifth slower than Crazy Kid's track record and former American record.

Credited with 1:08 2/5 wins are Single Agent, Palos Verdes highweight at 122 pounds, and Crusading. Single Agent recorded his fastest time in an allowance race at Santa Anita last season, and Crusading posted his good clocking at Hollywood Park.

New Prospect hit that mark when he beat Solar Salute in the Oceanside Handicap at Del Mar, and Kennedy Road did it in an allowance race at Hollywood Park.

King Of Cricket, who needed only a

1:11 clocking to take the Palos Verdes last year on a muddy track, has tallied in 1:08 4/5 three times including an Oak Tree allowance race in which he beat Grey Papa.

Although he's never broken the 1:09 barrier, North Sea ran a strong six-furlongs to stop the timer in 1:09 2/5 last June at Belmont Park. Fast Fellow, Prove Out, winner of a mile race at Aqueduct in 1:34 2/5, Jersey Derby winner Smiling Jack and the hard-hitting Sir Dagonet complete the field for the Palos Verdes.

The 75-day schedule also includes six races for $100,000 or more, including the newly-enriched $100,000-added San Luis Rey Stakes.

The $100,000-added Charles H. Strub Stakes, the first of the six-figure events, will be run Feb. 10 for 4-year-olds. Following will be the invitational $100,000 Santa Margarita on March 3, the $170,000 Santa Anita Handicap on March 10, the $100,000-added Santa Anita Derby on March 31 and the $125,000 San Juan Capistrano closing day feature, a marathon on the grass.

This Christmas is beautiful, also in N.Y.C.

NEW YORK — The Christmas season has been remarkably beautiful this year in New York — with lights and trees decorating the new bank buildings, of which there are a great many here in Moneyville.

And there are unexpected Santa Clauses and sleighs on the fronts of some of the new office buildings (some of which are unrented) and it all smacks of a lot of dollars being spent by somebody to dress up the city and make it as festive-looking as say, Fort Wayne, Ind., where my mother lives. In all those cities they have Christmas trees on the lawns, but on Manhattan Island, who's got a lawn?

It reminded me again of my boyhood when we tried to surprise everybody with the presents we gave them.

My dad would always try to bribe me to tell him the secret of what my mother was buying for him.

Once he knew that I (about 9 or 10) wanted a B-B gun more than anything else in the world.

"I'll get you a B-B gun for Christmas if you'll tell me what Mother's giving me for Christmas," he said.

I blush now to think that I succumbed to bribery in the most shameless fashion and whispered to her that she was getting him a fur cap with ear tabs.

I can even still see my mother's disappointment in her son who'd squealed the big secret. For my dad blurted out to her that he knew, he knew, he knew — "It's a fur cap!"

Oh, we had a lot of cheap fun in those days on the farm. My dad borrowed my B-B gun and used to use it to shoot our "hired hand," whose name was Big Foot Stoner, in the derriere when he was bending over slopping the hogs.

We would go to Grandpa's in those days for Christmas and we children would look forward to the presents from Grandpa and Grandma.

One year we got into the house and barely started eating up the popcorn, when Grandpa brought out a suitcase full of our presents.

As we stood around panting with excitement and suspense, Grandpa tried to get the suitcase open — and couldn't.

"Oh, Mollie," he said to Grandma, because there were grandmas named Molly in those days, "we lost the key! We'll never be able to give them their presents."

As we kids started to bawl, Grandpa discovered, with a twinkle, that he hadn't lost the key after all... that the suitcase wasn't even locked. And the presents came out and we had a very, very merry Christmas... a long, long time ago.

Today's Best Laugh: "Christmas comes but once a year — thank God..."

Wish I'd Said That: "The ideal Christmas gift was money but the trouble was you couldn't charge it" — Bill Vaughan.

Remembered Quote: By their fruitcakes ye shall know them...

Earl's Pearls: The postmen want to abolish Christmas Eve and Christmas Week, and put it in effect all year!

A final thought about Christmas is always that there was somebody you were afraid not to give a present to and it scared you all the way to New Year's when you found it didn't scare you anymore... That's earl, brother.

DENNIS THE MENACE

By Hank Ketchum

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON Forecast for Tuesday

Your birthday today: Most of the year is taken up with preparation for the upward movement of the last few months. Relationships may change levels of intensity. Today's natives accept few as close friends, but are hospitable to anybody with good manners.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Now comes a half-week for closing out the year and nearly all are in a rush, too much to do, too little time in which to do it.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Energy is available, along with a backlog of routine and half-finished work to use it up. Travel, should be done with caution.

Gemini (May 21-June 21): Whatever you are giving out now comes back to you considerably enlarged, but of the same kind. Face your efforts to avoid fatigue.

Cancer (June 22-July 22): This is a good time to consider your health and other matters of personal welfare, what to do to protect what you have.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Material success is promised in the fine maneuvers of your career effort. Get on with what is most important to you.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You may get so involved with settling details of family matters that you miss out on some business advantages. Never mind.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Confidential arrangements made now can become significant, hard to change later. Evening hours bring some confusion.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Make the best of your spurt of interest, excitement. Lingering too long on one spot does not pay — make the rounds.

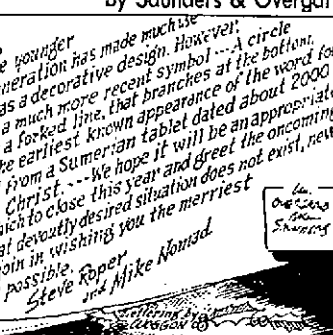

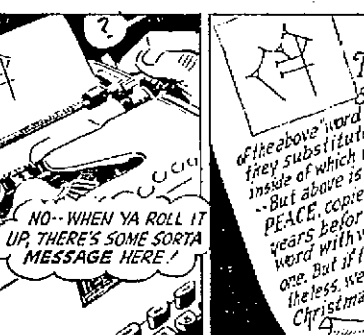

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 20): Good when business, exchanges, mild speculation, and minute bargains, at the probable expense of social amenities.

Capricorn (Dec. 21-Jan. 19): Changes are here, nothing to do but adjust and cope with them. You may find others shedding long-accustomed burdens.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Indications are that most areas of your material affairs need review, technical corrections here and there, a few changes.

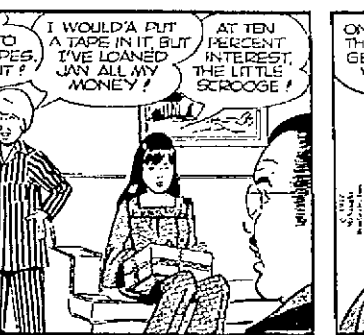

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Just when you are settling old differences, you can get new ones started with needless comments, explanations nobody asks for.

You can master a foreign language easily and quickly.

All it takes is $1.50
and 5 coupons.

The Learn-A-Language Program—

Foreign travel can be a lot more fun if you know the language.

Who It's for:

Students—Here's a great way to supplement your course instruction with out-of-school language practice. Get intensive, easily understood help in vocabulary, pronunciation, grammar, and sentence building.

Travelers—You'll be able to converse with the people you meet while on vacation or business. A sure way to increase the enjoyment of your trip.

Children—Young people have a wonderful facility for new sounds. Learn-A-Language is an ideal way to broaden your children's outlook, equip them for later language instruction, and give them a lot of fun.

Teachers—Time and again language labs have proven their worth. If your school is not equipped with an audio facility or you'd like to offer your students extra practice, Learn-A-Language is an excellent way.

How It Works:

Learn-A-Language is based on methods used by the U.S. Army for mass language training—methods you can now take advantage of at your own pace and in the convenience of your own home. You'll hear expert teachers conversing in their native tongue . . . while listening to their pronunciation you look at the special manual provided with each record.

The first booklet in each language relates the sounds being taught to English speech sounds, making it quick and easy to learn. There are well-spaced pauses in the record for the student to imitate the teacher. While hearing the words, you read along in your manual, thus getting the double impact of combined sight and sound learning approach.

How to get started:

Clip a Learn-A-Language coupon from the Independent Press-Telegram each day for 5 consecutive days. Coupons appear daily. Attach all 5 (they must be consecutively numbered, but you may start with number 2, 3, or any number) to the Master Order Form printed on this page. There's a bonus coupon on Sunday which you can use for any numbered coupon you may have missed. Only one bonus coupon can be used for each record. Send with $1.50, check or money order, to the address indicated on the order form. DO NOT SEND STAMPS. BE SURE TO INDICATE THE LANGUAGE OF YOUR CHOICE. THERE ARE FOUR RECORDS FOR EACH LANGUAGE. CHOOSE FROM THE FOLLOWING:

SPANISH RUSSIAN FRENCH HEBREW
GERMAN JAPANESE ITALIAN SWAHILI
ENGLISH FOR SPANISH
SPEAKING PEOPLE

BETTER SPEECH
(an all English series for improving your command of the English language).

Learn a new language in just a few weeks. Only $1.50 and 5 Independent Press-Telegram coupons, consecutively numbered, for each record. Four records complete one course. Order one record a week until you have a full set.

TeleVues

Tube also puts Christmas first

TV-Radio Editor

The sound of happy youngsters — and maybe even some squabbling ones — may drown out anything that television can offer in many homes today.

But for those viewers who are interested, the tube will bring Christmas programs of all kinds — church services, carols, cartoons and other specials — from early morning on.

The holiday programs are far too numerous for me to attempt to list in a column. If you're interested, check the logs.

VIEWERS WHO have had their fill of Christmas music and who enjoy rock and roll may wish to tune in "The Big Record," an hour-long special starting at 6 p.m. on Channel 5.

Hosted by Sam Riddle, the special will feature rock hits of the year done by the original artists. Appearing will be Seals & Rotts ("Summer Breeze"), Chi Coltrane ("Thunder and Light-and Pow"), Billy Paul ("Me and Mrs. Jones"), The Who ("Joined Together"), Tower of Power ("You're Still a Young Man") and David Bowie ("Jean Genie").

ning"), Climax ("Presious

Also performing will be the Staple Singers ("I'll Take You There"), Loggins & Messina ("Your Mama Don't Dance"), Curtis Mayfield ("Superfly") and Rich Springfield ("What Would the Child Think?").

LIKE TO TAKE IN an opening night at the theater or a nightclub? You can do both tonight — and without leaving your home.

"Opening Night: U.S.A.," an hour-long special starting at 8 on Ch. 2 (preempting "Gun-smoke"), will take you to opening night performances of Debbie Reynolds, Sammy Davis Jr., Milton Berle and the 5th Dimension in four different cities.

Ed McMahon, the host, will provide introductory comments for each show and interview the stars after their performances in the taped special.

From Toronto, Miss Reynolds sings and dances in "Irene," a revival of the 1919 New York musical hit that comes to Broadway next month. Featured are the musical numbers "Alice Blue Gown" and "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows," sung by Debbie, "The Last Part of Every Party," performed by the singers and dancers, and "What Do You Want to Make Those Eyes at Me For?"

From Harrah's in Lake Tahoe, Davis brings down the house with "Birth of the Blues," "The Lady Is a Tramp" and "Mister Bojangles."

From the Desert Inn in Las Vegas, Berle dishes up his special blend of one-liners and burlesque routines.

And from the Boston Music Hall, the 5th Dimension sings a medley of its all-time hits plus a variety of new music. Included are "Aquarius/Let the Sunshine In" and "Day by Day."

The 5th Dimension is made up of Billy Davis Jr., Lamonte McLemore, Ron Townson, Marilyn McCoo and Florence La Rue Gordon. The group has accumulated 11 Gold Records to date. Its hit "Up, Up and Away" won four Grammy Awards.

CHANNEL 8, cable television in Long Beach, is presenting half-hour Yule specials featuring the musical talents of children in Lowell, Kettering, Naples, Mann, Fremont and Lee elementary schools today, Wednesday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday at 5:30 p.m. And, on Tuesday and Thursday at 7 p.m. Ch. 8 will air "Christmas at Wilson," featuring the orchestra and choruses of Wilson High.

TOLSTOY'S novel "War and Peace" will be read in its entirety on KPFC radio (90.7 FM) from today through Sunday. The program will begin daily at 9:30 a.m. and continue until midnight, with appropriate musical interludes. Today, the marathon begins with Prokofiev's opera "War and Peace," and the reading begins at 2 p.m.

From RCA, the maker of more than one million Solid State color TV sets with the strongest color TV guarantee in RCA history.

BASIC WARRANTY PROVISIONS FOR RCA XL-100 100% SOLID STATE COLOR TV

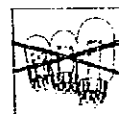

If anything goes wrong with your new XL-100 set within a year from the day you buy it—and it's RCA's fault—RCA will pay your service agency its regular labor charge to fix it and make available new or, at RCA's option, rebuilt replacements for defective parts. Use any service shop you wish. If your set's a portable, take it in. On larger sets, your servicemen will come to your home. Present your warranty registration card and RCA pays his repair bill. If your picture tube becomes defective during the first two years RCA will exchange it for a rebuilt tube. (RCA pays installation during first year—you pay for it in the second year.) RCA's warranty covers every set defect. It doesn't cover set installation, foreign use, antenna systems or adjustments of customer controls.

XL-100 means 100% Solid State construction and Solid State means no chassis tubes to break down before the touchdown! Only RCA offers you XL-100 Solid State Color is the most advanced you can get. And RCA builds more, sells more, offers more than anyone in America!

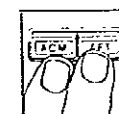

All chassis tubes—a major cause of TV repairs—are out. Solid state components are in. They're cooler, operating, designed to last longer.

Twelve exclusive RCA plug-in AccuChild modules control most set functions. They're designed to keep cool, last longer, and be easy to service.

HOW TO SPOT THE PLAYS

Look for the man who takes his stance apart from the other backs. He's probably the wide receiver getting ready to receive a pass. Often the isolated TV camera stays on him so you get a chance to see him run his patterns.

Watch for the onside kick — a short "wobbler" just over the midfield stripe. It's sometimes used late in the game by a team that's behind and hopes to recover the ball quickly that way. Usually the kicker of an "onside" will give himself away by letting up just before he gets to the ball, trying to kick it with the side of his foot.

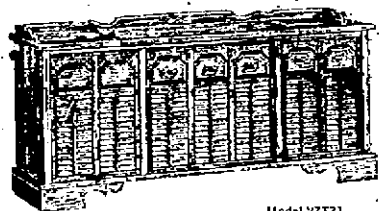

Good defense is teamwork, the same as offense. An effective defensive play is the gang tackle, with one man hitting the ball carrier low and the other hitting high.

How to spot the great TV values in town: it's as easy as dropping by your RCA dealer's.
